THE LAST AIRPLANE SHOW

The painted maw of a P40 "Flying Tiger" that saw service in World War II grins ferociously at spectators at Hamilton Air Force Base's Armed Forces Day. A spectacular show by the Thunderbirds and a unique display of vintage aircraft Saturday brought crowds estimated by base officials at 50,000 to what was probably the last such event at Hamilton, destined to phase down to reserve status by September. Paper Claims Secret Nixon Ballot Fund

President's Attorney Is Reportedly Involved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's personal lawyer, Herbert W. Kalmbach, had control of a secret fund that may have contained as much as half a million dollars during the presidential campaign, the Washington Star-News said today.

The newspaper said the money was kept at a Newport Beach, Calif., bank and that it was used in part "for political spying and disruption" including payments to a Los Angeles attorney, Donald W. Segretti. Segretti previously was identified as an undercover operative during the Nixon campaign.

The West Coast fund, the Star-News said, was kept in a hidden bank account at the Newport Beach branch of the Bank of America.

The money was funneled into the account by cashier's checks bought with cash at a different Newport Beach Bank, the Security Pacific National Bank, the newspaper said.

There have been previous reports of Washington funds during the Nixon campaign totaling $750,000 or more, with some of it being used for political surveillance activities, allegedly including the Watergate bugging case.

The newspaper said "various sources" put the total amount that passed through the Newport Beach account as "anywhere from $200,000 to $500,000."

It apparently was closed out, the Star-News said, early last year —well before the break-in of Democratic headquarters at the Watergate building in Washington June 17.

The new disclosure came as: The Washington Post said it was told by "highly reliable sources in the executive branch" that Nixon was warned as early as last December that some former and present close associates, including John W. Dean III and John N. Mitchell, "were probably deeply involved" in the Watergate scandal.

A spokesman at the Florida White House declined to comment on the Post report.

The Watergate grand jury continued its investigation of the case today, with Dean, White House legal counsel, expected to appear either today

Group Says Public Can Use Span School Buses

A group of San Geronimo Valley citizens has discovered that Golden Gate Transit's school buses can be used by the general public as well as students.

A spokesman for the transit system acknowledged this never has been publicized because school bus schedules tend to vary too much to provide reliable service for the general public.

Most of the dozen buses used part time for school service parallel the system's regular routes, he noted.

Two exceptions, however, are runs from West Marin communities to Sir Francis Drake and Marin Catholic high schools. It was these runs that were discovered for public use by San Geronimo Valley's ad hoc planning group.

Johanna Burkhardt, a member of the group's transportation committee, noted that the only scheduled morning service on weekdays from Inverness leaves at 6:05 a.m., going through the valley 30 minutes later. A school bus, however, serves the same route, but leaves Inverness at 7:03 a.m. It ends its student run at Drake High, then goes through San Anselmo and arrives in San Francisco's financial district at 8:55 a.m.

Another school bus leaves Nicasio — which has no scheduled regular service — at 7:20 a.m. It goes to both Drake and Marin Catholic high schools.

Two westbound afternoon buses leave Drake at 3:15 p.m. Tuesdays through Friday, and at 2:15 p.m. on Mondays. One goes to Lagunitas and the other to Nicasio.

The citizens group has posted the school bus schedules on public bulletin boards in the valley, Niscasio, Point Reyes Station, Inverness and Inverness Park.

The buses, of course, do not run on school holidays.

Fares are 25 cents within Marin.

Nixon May Be Near Decision

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon, planning what appeared to be a major shake-up in his White House staff, returned here today from an overnight visit to a private island retreat in the Bahamas.

Nixon landed at mid-morning following an hour and 15-minute flight from Grand Cay amid reports he would act soon on results of his own investigation into the June 17 bugging of the Democratic Headquarters and announce resignations of some high-ranking assistants.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren, the only Nixon aide available to reporters, had no comment on reports in the Washington Post that Nixon had been warned as early as last December that some of his assistants were involved in the Watergate case and subsequent coverup attempts.

The White House also is no longer bothering to deny that the scandal over political espionage and attempts to cover it up are the worst to hit the Nixon administration since it took office more than four years ago. The President himself reportedly compared it at a meeting of his cabinet last Friday in Washington to the Cambodian crisis of 1970.

His closest political associates and several top assistants —White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman, domestic counselor John D. Ehrlichman, former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, presidential counselor John W. Dean III and others— have become the focus of a grand jury investigation into the case.

Nixon flew to the island home of Robert H. Abplanalp, a close personal friend, Sunday after attending Easter services with his family at a neighborhood church on Key Biscayne, Fla.

With him was C. G. (Bebe) Rebozo, another close friend with whom he has spent time during similar crisis in the past. The President took along a brief case but no aides.

Whatever embarrassment he felt over the illegal intrigue committed in his behalf and the welter of charges and countercharges among White House aides that has followed has scarcely shown in the few glimpses newsmen have had of the President.

Sunday he and his family posed for photographers in their Easter finery on the front lawn of their vacation villa and then hopped into a limousine for the three-minute drive to the Key Biscayne Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. John A. Huffman Jr., who is a Nixon favorite and has presided over services in the White House, preached a sermon on redemption of sin which—whether intended or not —carried overtones of the Watergate case.

Brandt Sees 'No Worry'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt believes he has "no grounds for worry" that the United States will make a substantial reduction in its troops in Europe in the near future.

Brandt noted in an interview published Sunday by U.S. News and World Report that he would confer with President Nixon in 10 days, and he said "I am not going to Washington in a mood of being afraid of anything."

"I am going there to discuss important elements of policy co-operation in the economic and political and security fields," he said.

Probe Is Asked In CSD Funds

The Marin County District Attorney's Office was asked today to consider filing criminal charges against a former Marin City Community Services District employee suspected of embezzling district funds.

In a letter to the district attorney, county Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell said a special audit by his office disclosed $886 in district funds taken by Lillian J. Lee, a secretary-bookkeeper.

Mitchell, the county's fiscal watchdog, told the Independent-Journal today that Mrs. Lee reimbursed the district late last week when informed of the discrepancies in district records.

He said the investigation was requested by the district's board chairman, Frank Phillips Sr., and board member Roger Jones "based on some suspicious activities that may have taken place."

In all, 13 checks made out to the district for rental of its Manzanita center were found missing.

Investigation showed that the checks had been cashed by Mrs. Lee but never deposited in the district's account, Mitchell said.

Mrs. Lee, a resident of Marin City, earned $659 per month as secretary but left her job last month. The missing checks span a period from September to March.

Mitchell said his office is continuing its review of district records, concentrating on whether another $400, taken from the district's special bank account, was appropriately spent.

Four Out Of 10 Think Nixon Knew Of Bugging

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new Gallup Poll shows four of every 10 persons questioned believed President Nixon knew about the Watergate affair in advance.

The poll, published yesterday, also showed that about one-third of the persons interviewed felt the case revealed corruption in the White House.

A large majority of Americans—83 per cent—had read or heard about the case when the poll was taken last week, before Nixon made his announcement that there had been "major developments" in the case and that his aides would testify about it.

The percentage who had heard about it by last week compared to 52 per cent in October shortly before the presidential election. Gallup concluded the high level of awareness could seriously effect Republican chances in next year's congressional elections.

The persons questioned were asked whether the Watergate case revealed "corruption in the Nixon administration "or was a case of "just politics." Thirty-one per cent chose the "corruption" response, while 53 per cent thought it was "just politics." The remainder of the persons polled either had no opinion or had not heard of the case.

Eight Injured, Two In Critical Condition, In Weekend Wrecks

Five persons were hospitalized, two of them in critical condition, and six more were injured in three accidents over the weekend, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The worst accident at 2:30 a.m., yesterday, on Highway 37 at the Marin County end of the Petaluma River bridge, left two persons in critical condition, and three others injured.

Michael McGinty, 18, of Sonoma, was reported in critical condition in the intensive care unit at Novato General Hospital with multiple lacerations and fractures, according to hospital spokesmen.

Kathy Scalon, 15, of Sonoma was reported in critical condition and under intensive care for head injuries at Marin General Hospital. Denise Hillman, 16, of Sonoma, was reported in fair condition with a broken right leg and left wrist and possible internal injuries, at the same hospital, spokesmen reported.

All were passengers in a car driven by Peter Ray Balchinas, 18, of Sonoma who was treated for possible fracture of the right collar bone at Novato General Hospital.

Driver of the other car, Patrick Michael Kauppinen, 22, of Richmond, was treated for a cut lip and leg at the same hospital.

Patrolmen reported that the westbound Kauppinen car crossed the median strip and hit the Balchinas car head-on.

Elizabeth Jane Dooley, 11, of 67 Briarwood Drive, San Rafael, was reported in fair condition with head injuries at Marin General Hospital, hospital spokesmen reported today.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Anna Marie Shannon, 38, of 147 Knight Drive, San Rafael. Mrs. Shannon, Julia Shannon, 11, and Mark Shannon, 7, were all treated for scrapes and bruises at Marin General Hospital, hospital spokesmen reported.

Patrolmen reported that the Shannon car and one driven by Craig Steven Kaplan, 19, of Los Angeles were northbound on Highway 101 at the Tiburon overpass at 2:15 p.m. when an unknown car forced the Kaplan auto into the Shannon car which overturned trying to change lanes. Elizabeth Dooley was thrown from the car, patrolmen reported.

John Anthony Imbimbo, 21, of 41 Dutch Valley Lane, San Anselmo, received a broken leg when his car overturned on Van Winkle Drive west of Butterfield Road, Sleepy Hollow, at 6:30 p.m., Saturday. He was reported in satisfactory condition at Marin General Hospital, according to a hospital spokesman.

A DIFFICULT TASK

Nob Hill Murder Suspect Captured

MERCED, Calif. (UPI) — Two days of murder and kidnap across 500 miles of Northern California ended Sunday when a fugitive accused of rape was shot and captured by lawmen in the Sierra foothills.

Authorities said John P. Bunyard, 28, the suspected "Nob Hill rapist" of San Francisco, killed two women and kidnaped at least 10 persons during his bizarre flight that started Friday noon at Lake Tahoe.

Bunyard was taken into custody after a police sergeant fired two quick shots at the already wounded suspect in a deadend alley after a frantic husband jumped Bunyard as he held a gun to his wife's head.

In the pre-dawn hours in nearby Mariposa, authorities said Bunyard fatally shot Nancy L. Chalburg, 55, manager of the Tenaya motel, and Helen Cramer, 65, a resident of the nearby Fremont motel.

Mariposa County Sheriff Norman Garrett said both women were shot in the forehead when they apparently refused to give the suspect their car keys or accompany him on his flight.

Sheriff's deputies, responding to a prowler call, exchanged gunfire with the suspect in the downtown section of Mariposa, the gateway to Yosemite National Park. Bunyard was wounded in the leg and fled on foot, then commandeered a car that was demolished in a high-speed chase.

Authorities said Bunyard again fled on foot and broke into a motel room where he took as hostage Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Thompson, both 48, of Huntington Beach, Calif. He forced the couple to drive him 40 miles to Merced.

Sheriff's deputies, police and the California Highway Patrol, alerted that the suspect was headed toward Merced, set up roadblocks and cornered him in a deadend street.

"The man took Mrs. Thompson from the car at gunpoint, threatening to kill her and the officers who had boxed him in. But Thompson jumped from the car and knocked him off balance," said police Capt. Dave Knutsen.

Sgt. Mike Southerland, a 10-year veteran of the police force, fired two shots, one of which hit Bunyard in the chest and the other went through both his arms. The Thompsons were unharmed.

Bunyard was charged with murder, kidnap, armed robbery and other felonies. He underwent surgery at Merced General Hospital, where he was reported in good condition.

Six Slain, 10 Wounded In Gun Rampage In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — William R. Bonner got into an argument Sunday with Otha Leavitt, believed to be his grandmother. Police were trying to determine today why that triggered a wild, two-hour outburst of violence in which 16 people were shot, six of whom died.

Bonner, 25, wounded in the legs in a climactic gunbattle with police, was in serious condition at the County-USC Medical Center jail ward, where he was held on murder charges.

Among the wounded was a security guard who forced a car carrying Bonner to the curb and tried to shoot him. The guard, Versell Bennett, was felled by two bullets in the head. Authorities said he may have been hit by police shooting at Bonner.

Police at first believed robbery was the motive for some of the shootings, but said today there were indications Bonner knew all the victims.

The shootings took place at six locations.

The dead included Mrs. Levitt, 53, killed with a 20 guage shotgun at Bonner's home at the start of the rampage.

Police said two teen-agers—Anthony Thomas, 16, and Carolyn Cleveland, 17—were shot and wounded nearby. They were believed to have been with Mrs. Levitt. Miss Cleveland was in critical condition.

In the next two hours:

A 13-year-old girl, Ailene Wells, was shot to death at a service station and her 18-year-old sister, Vickie, 18, was criticaly wounded.

A mechanic at a service station, identified by sheriff's deputies as Raleigh Henderson, 33, was shot and killed.

Jevi Thompson, 57, was killed by a shotgun blast in the stomach at a liquor store. His killer critically wounded Thompson's wife, Edie Mae, 53, and son, Alfred, 15.

At another liquor store, Robert L. smith, an employe, was shot and critically wounded, and Roosevelt Jenkins, another employe, was wounded in the leg.

At a third liquor store, Smitty Sneed, 57, the owner, was shot to death, and a customer, Duly Oscar Bennett, 58, was wounded in the shoulder.

Diane Lore Andrea, 22, was killed by a shotgun blast in the neck at her home.

An all points bulletin was out for Bonner by that time. Police said a patrol car sighted him near Miss Andrea's home and Bonner tried to fire at the officers but there was no ammunition in his shotgun.

Bonner sped off in his car, police said, with the patrol car chasing him. Bonner crashed into another auto stopped at a traffic light and commandeered an auto driven by Mary Felton, 45, of Inglewood, who had her two daughters, 10 and 12 years old, with her.

Bennett, a guard for the Hicks Security Corporation, saw Bonner take over Mrs. Felton's car at gunpoint and joined the chase, setting up a blazing three-way gunbattle, police said.

Bennett maneuvered his auto to head off the Felton car, forced it to the side of the road, and jumped out of his car shooting at Bonner, who was inside with Mrs. Felton and her daughters. Bonner shot back, police said, and when pursuing officers arrived they fired 28 pistol shots and one shotgun blast at Bonner.

In the fusilade of fire between Bonner, Bennet and police, Bonner was hit several times in the legs, Bennett was shot twice in the head, and Mrs. Felton suffered slight wounds in the shoulder.

20 Cars Derail

MCNARY, Tex. (UPI) — Twenty boxcars on a derailed Southern Pacific freight train burned out of control today near this small West Texas town 40 miles southeast of El Paso. No one was hurt when the train ripped off the tracks Sunday night.

Two Ships Reach Capital

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Two supply ships and six tankers carrying more than two million gallons of fuel arrived in Phnom Penh today after a perilous journey up the Mekong river from South Vietnam.

Two of the ships were hit by B40 rocket-propelled grenade fire during the six-hour trip from Tan Chau, a river town nine miles inside South Vietnam. The captain of one ship was slightly wounded.

One crewman aboard another ship, a South Korean vessel, was killed and three others were wounded by fire from the banks of the river.

Crewmen said the convoy came under fire three times inside Cambodian waters.

Each of the six tankers in the convoy carried 400,000 gallons of fuel. The supply ships brought food and ammunition to the beseiged capital.

It was the first convoy to reach Phnom Penh on the MeKong River since April 15.

Cease-Fire Violations Dip To 64

SAIGON (UPI) — Military authorities said today that Communist cease-fire violations for the 24 hours ending at noon today dipped to 64, the lowest number since the Jan. 28 truce agreement.

The bloodiest incident during the 24 hours, officials said, was an explosion at a rural Easter pageant Sunday that left 12 persons dead and another 81 hurt.

Military sources said the explosion may have been an accident. They said authorities were investigating reports a militiaman was toying with a hand grenade when it went off.

The explosion occurred at Phuoc Thien hamlet near Phan Rang, 165 miles northeast of Saigon, the Saigon command said. A Roman Catholic group was presenting an Easter pageant at the time.

In the worst previous such incident—and the worst since the truce began 12 weeks ago—someone threw grenades into a crowded pagoda March 15 in the Mekong Delta, killing 17 persons and wounding 88.

Shortly before dawn today, a dozen rounds of 61mm mortar fire hit in and around a South Vietnamese infantry position six miles west of Hue. Military authorities said two infantrymen were wounded. This was the closest reported shelling to Hue in months.

Costs Zoom On Programs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cost overruns totaling $625 million have been reported for two major Pentagon weapons programs, one of which is not even under construction yet.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said Sunday the cost of a new 50-ship patrol frigate program increased by $513 million and "appears headed for big trouble in terms of cost."

And Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said the contractor for a safeguard Antiballistic Missile (ABM) site at Grand Forks, N.D., was seeking an 81 per cent increase in the original contract price.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Pray For Judge

NEWPORT, Tenn. (UPI) — Members of a fundamentalist mountain church prayed for Circuit Court Judge George Shepherd in weekend services, then followed his injunction prohibiting the use of snakes and poisons in their service.

There were indications, however, that once the curious newsmen, students and other outsiders no longer attend the services, the 48 members of the Holiness Church of God in jesus' Name will worship as they did before.

The judge enjoined the church members from handling the dangerous rattlesnakes and copperheads during services and from passing poisons around. He said, however, that an individual who wanted to drink poison was free to do so.

"We figure he (Shepherd) was as fair with us as he could be," said church elder William Ball, "but we are not changed in our faith."

Sees Chou

PEKING (UPI) — Mexican President Luis Echeverria, the first Latin American chief of state to visit China since the Communists took power in 1949, and Premier Chou En-lai resumed talks today at a tiny collective farm 250 miles southwest of Peking.

Echeverria left the Chinese capital late Sunday on an 11-hour train trip and a two-hour bus trip to the Ta Chai brigade, a small collective farm.

At the last minute, Chou agreed to accompany Echeverria so they could continue their talks.

Indians Arrested

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Six armed Indians protesting proposed construction of a new governor's mansion on a site once occupied by an Indian village were arrested Sunday on charges of assault and trespass when they tried to occupy the ground.

Sheriff's deputies said one shot was fired by the Indians, including five adults and one juvenile, and the six were also charged with assaulting a police officer and malicious mischief.

The Indians, part of a group apparently supported by the American Indian Movement, claims construction on the 11-acre American River site would destroy an ancient burial ground and valuable relics. Gov. Ronald Reagan wants to build a new home for California governors on the plot.

Grape Probe

COACHELLA (UPI) — Senate investigators were on hand today to look into the feud in the grape fields between the Teamsters and Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers Union.

The fields were quiet yesterday during an Easter truce. A group of about 150 of Chavez' followers, mostly Mexican-Americans, attended an Easter mass in the Coachella City Park.

Two members of the five-man investigating team sent by the Senate Labor and Welfare Committee appeared at the substation here of the Riverside County Sheriff's Department to inform deputies they would be carrying out an investigation in the area this week.

Plot For Hess

STUTTGART, West Germany (UPI) — The idea, police said, was certainly bizarre and almost as certainly real.

Nazi sympathizers, they said, planned to hijack a British European Airways (BEA) plane to force the release of Rudolf Hess, the jailed onetime deputy to Adolf Hitler.

"An intensive investigation is going on to find the persons behind the plot," a police spokesman said today.

He declined to elaborate, but sources said a nationwide hunt was underway for other members of the alleged hijack gang.

Blast Kills Seven

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — Leaking gas that collected under a low rent apartment building exploded yesterday and blew the floor against the ceiling. Seven persons, including a pair of newly wed teen-agers, were killed and 23 others were hurt.

The blast ripped through the one-story building at dawn, destroying eight of 15 apartments. Of the 23 persons injured, eight were hospitalized overnight. Most of them were in satisfactory condition.

Miss Devlin Weds

BELFAST (UPI) — Bernadette Devlin, Northern Ireland's fiery civil rights leader, married Michael McAlaskey today in her hometown of Cookstown, County Tyrone.

Miss Devlin led the clashes in late 1968 that provoked the current violence between Roman Catholics and Protestants. In 1969, she was elected to the British House of Commons and two years later gave birth to a daughter out of wedlock.

The bridegroom is a Lurgan schoolteacher with close ties to Catholic political movements in the region, friends of the family said.

Use Of Servants

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The military services have rejected pressures to stop using enlisted men to perform household chores such as grocery shopping, babysitting, bar tending and car washing for generals and admirals.

The Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines told the General Accounting Office (GAO), an investigative arm of Congress, that high-ranking officers and their wives need help so they can devote full time to military duties and community activities.

"The presence of enlisted aides permits both the general officer and his wife the degree of freedom necessary to carry out wide-ranging, never-ending, demanding and sensitive functions essential to leadership in the military community," the Army said.

Pet Controls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A chemistry professor contended today there are too many household pets and that their numbers should be controlled by development of chemical contraceptives.

Dr. Carl Djerassi of Stanford University, who helped develop the birth control pill for women, pointed out that some 2,000 to 3,500 dogs and cats are born every hour, compared to about 450 human beings an hour.

He said this points up the urgent need for a chemical pet contraceptive, but he added that it may not be available for years.

A Safe Landing

TORONTO (UPI) — A British West Indian Airways Boeing 707 with 55 people aboard made an emergency landing Sunday night at Toronto International Airport after its nose landing gear failed to extend.

How To Stop Smoking May 13 at 3:00

On Sunday afternoon, May 13, a group of men and women will arrive — one by one — at the St. Helena Health Center. Most will not know each other. But all will have a common purpose — to stop smoking. Join this group and you will work with our medical team (physicians — including a pulmonary specialist — physical therapists, a dietitian and clinical counselors) for five days. They will help you learn how to overcome the physical addiction to tobacco, how to improve your breathing ability, how to cope with the tensions that "call for a cigarette", and how to keep your weight in line. By Friday, May 18, you should be able to return home free of nicotine and well on the road to better health. (The fresh mountain air, attractive private rooms and good food make the St. Helena experience a memorable one.) Ask your physician about this medical approach to smoking cessation. Send the coupon now for more details, or telephone for our brochure.

If you cannot attend our May 13 session, plan to join us June 3 or June 10.

Robber Hits Petaluma Bar

An armed robber stole weekend receipts today from the Buckhorn Bar at 615 Petaluma Boulevard South, Petaluma police reported.

Bartender Ivan S. Reese, 51, of Rohnert Park, said the robber, the only customer at 1:45 a.m. today, forced him to close the bar early and empty the cash register.

Reese said the man asked for a paper bag and also took his beer mug and ashtray so no fingerprints could be found. He said the man simulated a gun by putting his hand in his right jacket pocket.

He was described as white in his mid-20s with a brown mustache and wearing blue jeans and a blue jacket.

Santa Rosa police said a man of the same description robbed the Grogg Shop, 1911 Santa Rosa Avenue, at 3 a.m.

Scout Operation

OAKLAND (UPI) — It was announced Sunday that thousands of Boy Scouts will take part Saturday in Operation Fire Safe in an effort to clear debris from thousands of dead eucalyptus trees in the Oakland hills.

Septic Tank Inspection Fee Sought In Bolinas

A $1-a-month inspection fee for owners of septic tanks in Bolinas was added Saturday to the terms of a proposed ordinance regulating sewage disposal and drainage.

Directors of the Bolinas Community Public Utility District added the fee after James D. McCamant, accountant for the district consultant firm of Marshall and Farnsworth, said watershed management and septic tank surveillance called for in the new ordinance would require hiring additional personnel at a cost of up to $10,000 a year.

Permits for excavations, fills or other work affecting drainage would be required under the new ordinance, with which directors have been wrestling for months in order to help clean up pollution in Bolinas Lagoon and meet requirements of the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Board members, who had previously decided that both the biennial septic tank inspections and the first two hours of staff work on the permit applications would be free, concluded that charges for both services must be made after also hearing a financial report and cash forecast from Lyman (Rob) Robinson, district secretary-manager.

Robinson said the district had exceeded budgeted expenditures by $13,487, largely because of disaster operations when last winter's flooding rains caused heavy damage to the system. Federal disaster funds amounting to $11,961 will be available to the district, Robinson said, but until these are received, he can project a cash balance of only $12,791 at the end of the fiscal year in June.

Help in solving design problems for owners of failing septic tanks would be included under the fee system, the board decided. There are about 385 tanks in the district boundaries, according to the consultant's report, while an antiquated sewage system serves the downtown area.

Directors briefly debated whether the monthly fees could be properly assessed against owners of septic tanks in good condition, but concluded the program was a form of insurance which would benefit all owners.

"It's everybody's problem," said board chairman William E. Niman. "Even if (a failing tank) is not yours, you walk past it and you smell it."

The board will hear a report from the county counsel's office on legal ramifications of the new ordinance and will consider its adoption in a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the district office.

The Bolinas Community Public Utility District board also:

TIME CHANGE — Decided to begin Saturday meetings at 8 a.m., instead of 10 a.m. The board convenes weekly on Wednesday nights, except on the third Wednesday of each month, when it meets on the following Saturday morning.

LAGOON — Authorized director Orville Schell to write the state Lands Commission in support of the Bolinas Lagoon plan.

WATER — Scheduled discussion of a report on long-range water plans for Wednesday's meeting.

SEWERS — Heard from director Gregory Hewlett that groundbreaking for the new sewer treatment plant should begin in "perhaps midsummer."

BUDGET — Appointed Robinson, Niman, director Marguerite Harris and Clarence L. Seusier, a public member, to a committee to make recommendations for the 1973-74 budget.

Environmental Report Is Due

The San Anselmo City Council will consider an environmental impact report on the proposed Marin countywide plan when it meets at 8 p.m. tomorrow in city hall.

The council will also review a government structure study recommendation that the city consider formation of a Ross Valley fire district and merge various city services with those of Fairfax.

The council will also hear an appeal of the design of a parking lot proposed across from the Tamalpais theater.

Over 30 Years Experience In Nutrition

HERE'S HEALTH!

By JUNE EMBURY

Are you familiar with ICAN - the International College of Applied Nutrition? This remarkable group of physicians, dentists, veterinarians, biochemists, nutrition specialists and researchers have just held their 13th annual symposium in Pasadena. Margot Fraser and I were privileged to attend the two day session as guests and to introduce Birkenstock sandals, which received enthusiastic response. We were profoundly impressed by the calibre of the members, as well as the speakers discussing a variety of nutritional therapies and principles.

Evidently health profession people are finding it difficult to keep up with the demand for nutrition-oriented doctors and look forward to increasing acceptance of the concepts by their colleagues. (Incidentally, we learned of several new, exciting products at the Symposium, which we'll be sharing with our customers. This column will carry word of their availability.)

Bandit With Gun Gets $198 At Cleaners

A bandit brandishing a revolver got away with $198 from a San Rafael cleaners Saturday after threatening to shoot the shop's owner, police reported.

Gladys A. Brown, 27, owner of Thrift-D-Lux Cleaners at 705 B Street, told officers she was behind the counter at about 3:35 p.m. when a man between 22 and 25 years old, entered and asked for change for a dollar.

When she opened the cash register, Mrs. Brown said, the man pulled a revolver from his shirt and demanded she hand over all the money.

The bandit who was described as black, six feet, seven inches tall and wearing a multicolored skull cap, then forced Mrs. Brown into the back of the shop, threatening to shoot her if she didn't go, police reported.

Mrs. Brown told investigators that she waited for several seconds before walking back to the front of the shop when the robber told her, "I'm going to shoot you now." She retreated into the rear of the store while the gunman escaped, police said.

Witnesses said the bandit may have been whisked from the scene by an accomplice driving a getaway car, possibly a Pontiac.

SCHOLARSHIP GOES BEGGING —NO YO-YOS

What if they gave a yo-yo contest and nobody came?

That's what happened at Albert Park in San Rafael Saturday as city parks and recreation officials waited for yo-yo enthusiasts who never showed up.

Consider the plight of the deprived onlookers: Among the 10 basic tricks that would have been required of the contestants were "skin the cat" and "walking the dog."

The winner of the event would have been eligible for a $500 college scholarship.

10 Charities To Share In Schultz Will

Greenbrae developer Niels Schultz, who died April 14 at the age of 85, left his estate in two trusts for his family and also named 10 charities and civic organizations to share in any excess of $1.25 million.

Schultz made the bequests in a will signed just four days before he died. The will, which takes precedence over similiar earlier documents, has been lodged in the Marin County clerk's office for safekeeping but has not been filed in probate court yet.

No estimate of the value of the estate was made in the will, and one of Schultz's lawyers, Robert W. Elliott, said today the property has not been inventoried yet.

He said, however, that he expected the estate will total more than the $1.25 million figure or Schultz would not have made the bequests to the charities.

Named to share in any funds over the $1.25 million set aside for the family were the Shriners Crippled Children's Hospital in San Francisco, Masonic Homes Endowment Fund, Marin Council of Boy Scouts, San Mateo Council of Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, half to Marin and half to the San Mateo County Group), Marin General Hospital, City of Larkspur parks and recreation department, city of Millbrae parks and recreation department, and youth groups of two Greenbrae churches, Church of the Latter-day Saints and St. Sebastian's Church.

The will also set up two trusts, one in the name of Schultz's widow, Ellen, and the other for his five grandchildren. Schultz's sons, Niels Jr. and Alvin, and his daughter-in-law Mary Barbara Schultz, also are to receive unspecified amounts of income.

The widow is to receive a minimum of $120,000 income a year from her trust.

Schultz, who came to this country from his native Denmark, was a builder for more than 60 years. In addition to Greenbrae, he developed Millbrae Highlands on the Peninsula and many other projects in Northern Californai.

Copter Service Will Expand

San Francisco-Oakland Helicopter Airlines will add three new flights to its schedule, two of them from its Marin terminal on Richardson Bay, the firm has announced.

The new flights from Marin to San Francisco International Airport, to start next Sunday, will depart at 9:52 a.m. and 5:45 p.m. and travel via Berkeley, picking up passengers there at 10:03 a.m. and 5:56 p.m.

The helicopter firm also announced some minor changes in its schedule for the summer months.

Impact Discussion Set By Board

The Bolinas-Stinson School District board will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Bolinas School to discuss state-required environmental impact guidelines for district projects.

Also on the agenda is action on an application for state funds for an early childhood education project and a closed session to discuss employee negotiations.

BUGGING

or Tuesday. He has said he will not be a "scapegoat" in the affair.

The 15 federal district judges stationed in Washington arranged a meeting for this afternoon to discuss the leak of grand jury minutes to columnist Jack Anderson. Several days during the past week Anderson has been including excerpts of secret grand jury testimony in his columns and the FBI has been called in to investigate how he got transcripts. Violation of grand jury secrecy is a federal offense.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said he found it "inconceivable" that the President's subordinates would not have told him about the Watergate bugging plans.

White House sources indicated the President plans to announce the resignations of a number of key advisers, as a result of the Watergate investigation, possibly within a few days' time. Nixon was in seclusion today in the Bahamas, reportedly considering his plans.

The New York Times said G. Gordon Liddy, one of the convicted Watergate conspirators, had been passed word by the White House to tell all he knows about the case, but that Liddy has refused.

The Star-News quoted investigators as saying that Kalmbach made payments from the West Coast fund to Segretti, rather than from Washingtonbased funds as previously had been believed. These payments have been said to have totaled $30,000 to $40,000.

The Star-News said a Senate subcommittee learned of the fund last fall but that the findings were not disclosed. It said the new special Senate Watergate committee now was looking into the matter.

The Post said that Nixon was advised in December and again in January about possible involvement of Mitchell, his one-time campaign manager and former attorney general, along with Dean and possibly others on the staff in the Watergate affair.

Nixon responded by saying "give me some evidence," one source said, according to The Post. Nixon reportedly pointed out that Dean and Mitchell had denied any involvement.

Reed Budget Session Is Set

Trustees of the Reed School District board will discuss a proposed $2,422,995 budget for next year when they meet at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Del Mar School library.

The preliminary budget is down $30,800 from this year's estimated budget total of $2,453,795 and provides for step increases for employees but no new raises.

Also on the agenda at the meeting, postponed from Tuesday due to the board elections, is a request by substitute teachers that the $26 per day paid them be increased.

Lagunitas Board Due Budget Work

Trustees of the Lagunitas School District will take a look at preliminary 1973-74 budget projections when they meet at 7:30 p.m. today in San Geronimo Valley Elementary School.

The board also will hear recommendations by the county schools office for improved use of district facilities and go into closed session to instruct its employee salary negotiator.

OBITUARIES

Krebsbach Services Are Held

Mass of the Resurrection for Raymond M. Krebsbach of Santa Venetia was celebrated today at Blessed Sacrament Church in Santa Venetia.

Krebsbach died Saturday in a local hospital after a long illness. He was 58.

He was born in Esmond, N.D. He moved to California 30 years ago and to Marin County 20 years ago. He and his wife, Lucille, who survives him, made their home at 113 Ash Way, San Rafael.

He was a carpenter, last employed by Miller and Olson Construction Co. of Novato.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by five daughters, Jacquelyn Edgemon of San Jose, Sister Lolita of Alhambra, Los Angeles county, Clare, Kerry and Mary Lou Krebsbach all of San Rafael; a son, Tom Krebsbach of Bellevue, Wash.; three sisters, Florence Fraize of San Rafael, Lucile Beg Bengson of Novato and Kathryn Schumacher of Sacramento; four brothers, Ralph Krebsbach of Warwick, N.D., Donald Krebsbach of Whittier, Los Angeles county, James Krebsbach of Spokane, Wash. and Larry Krebsbach of San Jose and three grandchildren.

Burial was in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

JACK MULCRONE

Jack A. Mulcrone, 61, of Novato, a retired machinist, died yesterday at his home apparently of natural causes, according to Coroner's Deputy Donald L. Cornish.

Mulcrone was discovered dead at his home, 28 Palm Lane, by his wife, Elva, at 6 a.m., Cornish said. Two days before he had chest pains and an ache in his arm, but hadn't seen a doctor, Cornish reported.

Mulcrone had been employed by the American Can Co. in San Francisco. He was a native of Wisconsin and had been a resident of Marin since 1967. He served in the Navy during World War II.

Surviving, besides his wife, are four daughters, Margaret Scott and Donna Woehl, both of Seattle; Betty Carson of Kimball, S.D., and sister Mary Margaret of Sioux Falls, S.D., and a son, Robert Mulcrone of Santa Barbara.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Keaton's Chapel of Marin, Novato.

IDA BAXMAN

Funeral for Ida H. Baxman, 78, of Petaluma, was held today in Petaluma.

Mrs. Baxman died Saturday at a local hospital after a short illness. She was a native of Petaluma, but spent most of her life in Cazadero.

Mrs. Baxman returned to Petaluma in 1958 after the death of her husband, Charles, and lived at 956 Thompson Lane. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Petaluma.

She is survived by two daughters, Dee Tunzi and Alitha Wedel of Petaluma; a son, Steven Baxman of Fort Bragg; two sisters, Gladys Goree of Santa Rosa and Wilma Duffy of San Francisco; six grandchildren, and 13 great-grandchildren.

Private burial was at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

Plea Date In Robbery Scheduled

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Two Richmond men charged with the March 29 holdup at a Corte Madera savings and loan office are scheduled to enter pleas May 3, while a third has been dropped from the case.

Kenneth Gerald Taylor, 22, and Raymond Bonitto, 20, are to appear before Judge Charles B. Renfrew in U.S. District Court to plead to charges of armed robbery.

But a similar charge against Edward Barnett, 20, was dismissed Friday by U.S. Magistrate Richard Goldsmith when a government prosecutor said the Federal Bureau of Investigation had accepted the man's story that he was forced to drive the getaway car.

The three were arrested after a high-speed chase across the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge. A total of $1,100 was taken in the robbery at the Civic Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Fairfax Sets Building Plans

The Fairfax Town Council will authorize drafting of construction drawings for remodeling of the police department and construction of a new fire department when it meets at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Fairfax Women's Club.

Fairfax voters last Tuesday voted 1,103 to 419 in favor of a $300,000 bond issue to finance the new public safety facilities.

The council will also review a request for a paint striping machine and announce two vacancies on the town parks and recreation commission.

The meeting will be followed by a meeting of the parks and recreation commission.

MRS. GRESHAM

Funeral for Marguerite L. Gresham, 75, former Petaluma resident, was held today in Petaluma.

Mrs. Gresham was a resident of Arleta, Los Angeles County, and died Thursday at a hospital in Sun Valley.

She was a native of Ohio and had lived in Petaluma for 20 years before moving to Arleta. She was the wife of the late Dennis Gresham.

Mrs. Gresham was a member of the Equestrian Trail Riders of Los Angeles.

She is survived by a daughter, Virginia Carter of Arleta, and a granddaughter.

Private burial was at Liberty Cemetery.

JOSEPH PRONZINI

Joseph J. Pronzini, 65, Petaluma rancher, died yesterday at a local hospital after collapsing at his home.

He was born and reared in Novato and had operated ranches in Marin and Sonoma counties. For the past 12 years Pronzini had worked with his brother, Reno Pronzini, in operating El Adobe Hereford Ranch, Petaluma.

He is also survived by a son, William Pronzini, and a daughter, Katherine Pronzini, both of Petaluma.

Funeral will be Wednesday at 11 a.m. at the Sorensen Funeral Home, Petaluma. Recitation of the Rosary will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow. Burial will be at Calvary Cemetery.

MISS FARRELL

Josephine Farrell, a resident of Ross for the past 75 years, died yesterday in a local convalscent hospital after a brief illness.

A native of San Francisco, she moved with her family to Ross as an infant. She lived all her life on Lagunitas Road.

Miss Farrell, the last survivor of four sisters and a brother, left no immediate family.

A Mass of the Resurrection will be held at 10 a.m. on Wednesday at St. Anselm's Church, San Anselmo, where she arranged the alter for some 40 years. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma. Rosary services will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

LOUISE MILLER

Louise G. Miller, wife of the owner of an interior decorating firm, died Saturday at her home, 128 Knight Drive, San Rafael. She was 67.

The Marin County Coroner's Office said Mrs. Miller was found at 8:30 p.m. on the floor of her bedroom after lying down earlier for a nap. An autopsy was scheduled.

Born in Columbus, Ohio, Mrs. Miller lived in California for 50 years, 19 of them in Marin County.

Her husband, Frank is owner of Frank J. Miller and Son in San Francisco.

Surviving, besides her husband, are two daughters, Mary Louise Phillips and Virginia F. Lavery of San Francisco; a son, Robert Miller of Petaluma; a brother, Richard G. Niswonger of Atherton, and two grandchildren.

Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated at 11 a.m. Wednesday at St. Sylvester's Church, San Rafael. Rosary is scheduled for 8 p.m. tomorrow at Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

WILDA THOLE

Wilda I. Thole, 62, retired Petaluma grocer, died today at a local hospital after a brief illness.

Mrs. Thole was born and reared in Santa Rosa. She and her late husband, George L. Thole, moved to Petaluma 43 years ago.

Mrs. Thole and her late husband opened Thole's grocery store in 1945 and retired in 1960. She lived at 1163 Western Avenue.

She is survived by a daughter, Patricia Conklin of Petaluma; a son, George L. Thole Jr. of Stillwater, Minn; a brother, Lloyd Rhoades of Manteca, San Joaquin County; and four grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow at Parent Funeral Chapel, Petaluma. Burial will be at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

Don't muddy up the googol.*

*Googol: The largest number of things that has a name. Webster defines as the number one followed by a hundred zeroes.

There are googols of little creatures squiggling and burrowing, flitting and squishing under the mud, through the swamps and over the sandy marshes. Sea squirts, copepods, lugworm larvae and the babies of little fish. Each with a kind of a brain, each with the breath of life. But their life is ebbing. And as they start to go—you do, too.

You are standing on the threshold of time in as sacred a place as any in the world. It's where the life of the water and the life of the land converge in biological blur. These are the wetlands—the swamps and the mudflats that sometimes smell like rotten eggs. These are the marshes, clogged with weeds, swarming with bugs, teeming with beautiful life. This is where the moon moves the water in shallow ebbs and floods; where the sun pierces down to the ooze and the nutrients flow in a strange and marvelous way. Nowhere else except here in these sopping grounds is there so much life in so much concentration. But the life is dwindling. And as these lands start to go—you do, too.

These squishy, mushy lands are where most of our fish are born, the fish that feed the fish that feed the fish that fill the sea. These narrow strips of estuarine land are where the birds come to rest and nest and feed; and they are tied inexorably to the life support for the raccoons and the bears and the deer a hundred miles away. And to you.

In California, most of the wetlands are already gone. In Florida, they're going fast. Once there were 127 million acres of interior and coastal wetlands. Now forty per cent are gone, the precious specks of life in these treasured lands exchanged for yacht clubs and marinas and industrial growth. As we dredge the bays and fill the marshes and cover the mud with asphalt; as we spray our poisons and scatter our waste and spew oil upon the waters—we destroy forever the great forces of life that began millennia ago.

But now we have gone too far. Because this planet belongs not only to us but to them as well. To the umpteen zillion other things that fly in the sky and roam on the land and swim in the sea and burrow beneath our feet.

Now, especially now, if we will only stop to think—perhaps we will think to stop.

Armed Forces Day, Farewell At Hamilton

By PATRICIA PERRY

Armed Forces Day at Hamilton Air Force Base Saturday was a day of cheer and nostalgia. A day of color and contrasts. A clear, hot day, that brought Bay Area residents by the tens of thousands to a splendid five-hour show, which was also a farewell to Marin's military installation.

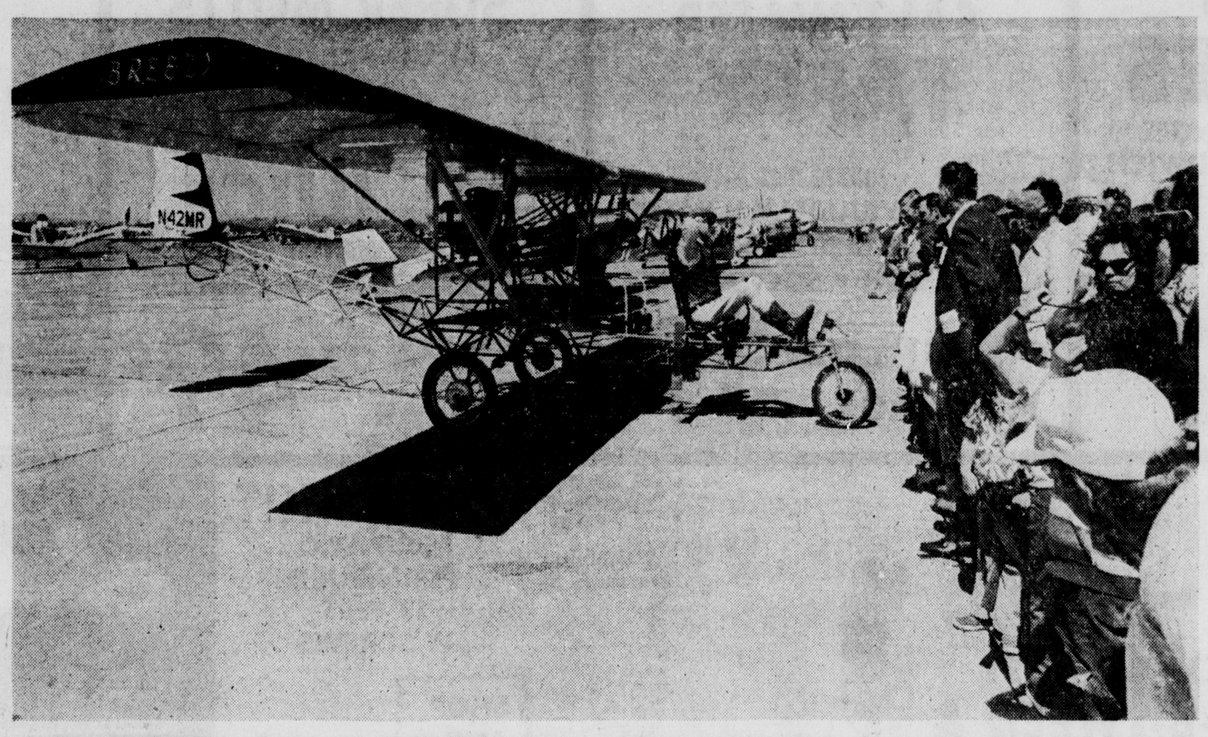
The cheer was evident in the person of Captain William W. Butler of San Rafael, recently released after being held prisoner by the North Vietnamese since 1967.

Captain Butler, hugging his young son on his lap, sat in the front row of distinguished visitors as the Thunderbirds performed their aerial maneuvers.

The whole day was dedicated to returning prisoners of war and in memory of those listed as Missing in Action. Next to Captain Butler's wife, Julie, sat Mrs. Jessie Hill, and her son. Her husband Senior Master Sergeant Robert L. Hill is missing in action in South East Asia.

The three were in the official Thunderbirds inspection team, together with base commander Col. R. R. Melton, San Rafael's mayor, C. Paul Bettini, and Novato City Councilman Wayne Sartain.

Although it was such a cheerful occasion, there was an atmosphere of sadness, for Saturday's show was the last such event at Hamilton, which is destined to become a reserve base by September. Notices scattered on various base facilities read: "Please don't ask about our status. We don't know."



HEADLINER — Breezy, a replica of a prop-driven plane of the Wright Brothers era, was a hit of Hamilton Air Force Base's open House Saturday. Owner Jack Gardiner of Mill Valley flew it.

The contrast between the United States Air Force of the space age and earlier years was dramatically demonstrated.

The five F4E Phantom Jets of the Thunderbirds poised, glittering red, white and blue, on the runway. Two hundred yards away sat vintage aircraft nearly spanning Air Force history.

Visitors could inspect a colorful P-40 of "Flying Tiger" fame, a still sturdy P-38 Lightning, (the twin-engine twin-boomed fighter of World War II,) a fat-bellied C130, three-quarter scale models of World War I planes, and dozens more.

The vintage aircraft display was arranged by Alfred V. Mankedick, assistant chief of airfield management at the base.

Contrasts were on all sides at the open house, which stretched a quarter-mile across the hangar and runway section of the airfield. The 41st Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Squadron displayed the Hc-130 Hercules and HH-53 Rescue aircraft which support their mission at Hamilton (they'll move to McClellan AFB, Sacramento, by September.) A young airman described the activities of para-rescuemen, and fascinated youngsters could inspect a flotation collar used in space capsule recoveries.

Fifteen WAFS from Hamilton put on a fashion show, modeling WAF fashions from the 1940s to today.

Anyone who had any doubt of military changes had only to watch Airman Second Class Karen Lanz later as she stood among the crowds watching the Thunderbirds perform their ritual inspection.

Airman Lanz was dressed in the WAF's outfit of 1942-44. She wore a calf-length khaki cotton skirt, sensible brown shoes, thick stockings, a long sleeved khaki shirt with matching tie, and a broad brimmed khaki forage cap.

The Thunderbirds, on the other hand, looked as if they were garbed by a Hollywood costumer. Pilots wore dazzling white jump suits and sungalsses. The ground crew wore matching blue jumpsuits, with white scarves knotted at their throats, caps and sunglasses.

Jets streaked across the airfield at 3 p.m. precisely, smoke trails forming delicate tracceries. Pilots flew the jets in diamond formation, wings overlapping three feet, and performed complicated rolls and loops and arrowheads.

Then hundreds of visitors waited to see the vintage aircraft take off.

Perhaps everyone's favorite was "Breezy" a modern replica of a Wright pusher, with its wire frame and open cockpit.

Jack Gardiner of Mill Valley, the Breezy's owner, swung the wooden propellor, and, clad in flying helmet, leather jacket and boots, climbed into the cockpit,

Gardiner nonchalantly fastened his seat belt, taxied down the collosal concrete runway and took off in fine style, to applause from the departing spectators.

"It takes some nerve to fly that thing," muttered an Air Force jet pilot, who had watched the Thunderbirds perform without saying a word.

A Leftist Is Named Mayor

TOKYO (UPI) — A leftist candidate was elected mayor of Nagoya Sunday, dealing the conservative government of Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka a political setback in the nation's fourth largest city.

The election was seen as a sign of national discontent that will be reflected throughout the coming week in a series of national strikes and protests against living conditions in this highly industrialized nation.

In the election, Masao Motoyama, 62, defeated the government-backed Liberal Democratic party candidate, giving leftist-backed political leaders control of Japan's five largest cities.

Actor Writes His Own Wedding Vows

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor Rod Steiger was married during the weekend at his oceanfront home in a ceremony he wrote himself.

Steiger, 47, married Sherry Nelson, 36, his secretary. It was the third marriage for Steiger and the second for her.

Small Plane Is Missing

UKIAH (UPI) — Rescue parties searched the mountains in Sonoma and Mendocino counties Sunday for a light plane missing on a flight from Santa Rosa to Ukiah with four persons aboard.

The pilot, Leland P. Monroe of Santa Rosa, was five miles from the Ukiah airport when he last reported in by radio Saturday, but gave no indication of trouble, a spokesman for the Air-Sea Rescue Center at Hamilton Air Force Base said.

An air and ground search was launched when the Piper Cherokee became overdue. Aboard were Monroe, his wife, Doris, daughter, Sheryl Conner, 22, and son-in-law, King Conner, 21.

Redevelopment Session Tonight

The Larkspur City Council, sitting as the city redevelopment agency, will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at city hall to authorize consultants to work on redevelopment plans.

Then in a closed session, councilmen will hire a consultant to prepare an environmental impact report on the redevelopment project, which will support a major regional shopping center on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard next to the present Bon Air Center.

Rate Climbs On Birth Of Girls

LONDON (UPI) — Women who take birth control pills tend to have girls rather than boys when they give birth, the medical journal The Lancet said today.

Dr. Selwyn Crawford, writing in the journal, said evidence of this emerged in an investigation by Birmingham doctors seeking a possible link between oral contraceptives and a marked fall in respiratory complaints among underweight babies.

Coastal States Gas Caught In Squeeze

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Should we hold or sell 220 shares of Coastal States Gas Producing (NYSE) which cost an average of $11.75 a share? — V.R.

Q. I own 200 shares of Coastal States Gas purchased at $40. My goal was growth and needless to say this stock has been a great disappointment. Do you think that this stock will recover in the next year or two? — C.K.

A. Coastal States Gas' reserve position has been a major factor in share weakness. Although the merger with Colorado Interstate, completed on Jan. 2. 1973, helped beef up reserves, demand in the company's service ares is booming. A second important contributor to drop in share price is the cost/price squeeze in which Coastal is caught. While several major contracts have been rewritten on a cost-plus formula, others have not been renegotiated. Thus, this gas gathering and transmission company is in the unenviable position of supplying gas at prices well below their current purchase costs.

An extensive exploration program will be undertaken on property acquired in the merger with Colorado. In order to encourage producers to locate additional new gas reserves, rewritten sales contracts are incorporating incentive payments for these suppliers. Coastal has applied to the Railroad Commission of Texas for rate relief on one major contract and is seeking legal redress in another case. Periods of market strength should be utilized to dispose of these shares.

Q. I am interested in purchasing church bonds and would very much appreciate your views on the enclosed advertisement. — B.S.

A. The 8 per cent interest rate available on these bonds may also be secured in other more marketable debt obligations. The greatest drawback in institutional — church and hospital — bonds is the difficulty which may be encountered when selling prior to maturity. In order to attract buyers, these bonds may have to be sold at prices which are disadvantageous to the seller. While this is also true of other bonds, the resale or secondary market is active and large, thereby affording the seller a greater edge.

Market On Slow Side At Opening

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices drifted lower through midday today on the New York Stock Exchange. Analysts said many investors were still away for the Easter holiday which made for light trading.

Also first quarter earnings continued to show corporate profit gains, analysts said investor concern about inflation dampened any enthusiasm over the improved earnings. On Friday the government reported the consumer price index soared at a 9.6 per cent seasonally adjusted annual rate, the highest single-month gain in 22 years.

Salant Corp. was the most active issue, off ¼ at 8 ½ on 107,300 shares.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange declined in moderate trading. Champion Home Builders was the most active issue, up ⅜ at 6 ⅝ on 31,900 shares.

Italian Delicatessen Type Grocery Store To Open

An Italian delicatessen type of grocery store will open in a couple of months at 275 Marin Valley Drive in the little commercial area south of Hamilton Air Force Base.

The Neighborhood Grocery, to be operated by Guy and Mary Duryee of San Rafael, will be located across the street from the new theater, Cinema II. It will be an old fashioned neighborhood store, with beer and wine as well as groceries.

Duryee is a building contractor and former teacher.

THE UNIQUE EXPERIENCE, a new barber shop featuring plush furniture and private booths, has opened at Northgate Industrial Park north of San Rafael. It is located at 76 Mitchell Boulevard next to Dotto Glass.

Owner is Gary R. Trono of San Rafael, a 1969 graduate of Terra Linda High School, who graduated from San Francisco Barber College and worked for Joseph's of Northgate for two years. Trono takes customers — men, women, and children — by appointment only.

The Unique Experience has wall-to-wall carpeting, ornate furniture, and hanging plants. The shop is open Monday through Saturday.

Simmons

JOHN V. SIMMONS of San Rafael, agent for the Redwood Empire District of Prudential Insurance Company, placed more than a million dollars of financial protection in 1972 with local families and businesses.

Archer C. Rounds, manager of the San Rafael office, said Simmons' achievement ranks him in the top five per cent of Prudential's 3,500 agents in the West. This is the fourth time that Simmons reached the million dollar figure during a year. He has been with the firm since 1964.

REALTORS BREAKFAST — Marin County Assessor Bert W. Broemmel will speak at the 8 a.m. breakfast meeting of the Marin County Board of Realtors tomorrow at the Corte Madera Lions Club.

BUILDING INDUSTRY Association of the Redwood Empire will sponsor a conference to explain OSHA (Occupational Safety and Health Act) on Wednesday (April 25) at Holiday Inn, Terra Linda.

Carl Brown of San Anselmo, executive director of the Redwood Empire Building Industry Association, said the all-day conference is open to anyone connected with the construction industry. Conference registration starts at 8:30 a.m., and adjournment is set for 3 p.m.

Speakers from the State Compensation Insurance Fund will explain OSHA and its impact on the building industry.

BANK OF AMERICA has prepared a guide on how the average family can match its routine expenses, entertainment costs and long-term goals with income.

The Family Financial Planning Kit, an eight-page instructional booklet, is available free at Bank of America offices throughout the state. It provides specific guidelines on developing a spending plan.

NATIONAL REAL ESTATE Fund, headquartered in Novato, announced the purchase of an 80-unit apartment in Sacramento and a 167-unit mobile home park in Lathrop, about 10 miles south of Stockton.

The Fund acquired 50 per cent interest in the Sundale Apartments in Sacramento, which sold for $1,350,000, and the Pacific Western Mobile Estates in Lathrop, which sold for $950,000.

National Real Estate Fund is administered by Capital Planning Securities Co. Inc., subsidiary of Capital Planning Associates Inc. of 97 San Marin Drive, Novato. The Fund, with about 2,600 California investors, owns or has a major interest in 32 properties with a total value in excess of $40 million.

HMO Sale Of Stock Is Planned

LOS ANGELES — HMO International has filed with the Securities & Exchange Commission a registration statement relating to a proposed public offering of 250,000 shares of common stock.

Of the shares to be offered, 175,000 will be sold by the company and 75,000 by certain shareholders. Clark, Dodge & Co. Inc. will manage the underwriting.

HMO International, Los Angeles, is in the business of providing management, marketing, administrative and other services as well as equipped facilities, insurance and prescription drugs, principally as part of a health maintenance organization.

Health maintenance organizations offer contractual prepaid health care in programs designed to reduce cost, broaden coverage and improve the quality of health care delivered.

Revenues were $7,157,000 and net earnings were $758,000 for the nine months ended Jan. 31.

Net proceeds from the shares to be offered by the company will be used primarily to repay certain short-term indebtedness.

Upon completion of the offering, HMO International will have 1,119,000 shares outstnading.

Metal Frame Homes To Be Discussed

Metal framing systems as an alternative to lumber in the construction of homes will be discussed on Tuesday, May 1, at Oakland Airport Hilton Hotel by builders, suppliers and subcontractors during a day long session sponsored by the Building Industry Association of the Redwood Empire.

Frank Conti, president of the association, predicted that lumber may become a thing of the past in home and light commercial building within five years. He said lumber pricing and supply history has forced the builder into accepting alternate products to lumber.

Dow Eyes Zero Water Pollution In Pittsburg

PITTSBURG, Calif. (BW) — Dow's chemical production complex here expects to have eliminated all of its water waste discharges into the San Joaquin River by the end of 1974, it was reported yesterday.

If the goal is achieved, it is believed that the plant could become one of the first major industrial chemical complexes in the nation to have succeeded in achieving zero water pollution.

The ambitious Dow Goal was announced by Dr. Earle Barnes, president of Dow Chemical U.S.A., who was in San Francisco to address California's annual Chemical Progress Week luncheon at the St. Francis Hotel.

Dow's Pittsburg chemical complex is the largest chemical plant in western United States. It occupies 450 acres which have a mile of frontage along the San Joaquin River between Pittsburg and Antioch.

The plant uses 27 million gallons of river water for cooling purposes each day. The plant must clean up the river water before it can be used for cooling purposes in the plant's processes.

Barnes said the plant will have eliminated all of its waste discharges to the river by the end of this year and it will have eliminated all of its thermal impact on the river by the end of next year.

The plant expects to do this by converting all of its chemical production plants in the complex to recycling operations and by disposing of some chemical waste materials in solar evaporation ponds located on the plant property. Three of the eight chemical process plants in the complex already are on total recycle operatins.

By the end of 1974 the plant expects to be in a position of not having to discharge any water back to the river.

It Would Make A Very Big Ball

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — If all the new rubber expected to be consumed in the United States in 1973 were rolled up into a solid ball, it would stand taller than New York's Empire State Building, says a trade source.

Domestic consumption will reach 6.5 billion pounds of new rubber this year, B.F. Goodrich forecasts, enough to make a ball 1,200 feet thick and 3,770 feet around. Less than one-fourth of it will be natural rubber, as the synthetics continue to increase their share of the comestic market.

Roofers Reelect Henris To Board

Horace Henris of Petaluma, president of Henris Supply Inc., was re-elected last month as a director of the Associated Roofing Contractors of the Bay Area Counties Inc.

Richard L. Miller, president of Marin County Roofing Co. Inc. of San Rafael, serves on the same board.

Barely A Nude Look At Muir Beach

By PAT ANGLE

It was clearly a case of no nudes are good nudes at Muir Beach Saturday.

For the first time this year sheriff's deputies on horseback were on hand at the small stretch of sand adjacent to the state beach, ready to discourage undraped sunbathing at the drop of a halter.

So were newsmen, from as far away as Sacramento, there to see what would happen when the law officers came up against the sun worshippers.

All that was missing — at least during the first three hours of the patrol — was the honest-to-goodness naked people, the kind the deputies were there to admonish.

Privately owned Little Beach was sparsely populated, despite the perfect weather, with only about 40 persons scattered along the sand. A few regulars, used to the crowds that sunny weekends have drawn in the past, said they thought most people had stayed away because of the prospect of police surveillance.

It was these past crowds that had led to complaints from the Muir Beach residents and establishment of the seven-day-a-week patrol.

Last year, the first year the mounted deputies were on the scene, the beach was the scene of minor confrontations and some arrests, as the nude bathers teased the sheriffs by running away and slipping in and out of their clothes.

"People were willing to fight for their beach then," said Lisa Landey, a law student from Larkspur.

But Saturday it looked as if the fight had gone out of most of the would-be nudists.

The barest sight around was an undressed baby and it soon became clear the two low-key deputies had no intention of rousting him. One woman briefly disrobed but put on her clothes quickly when a deputy requested it.

The whole scene gave credence to deputy Johan A. Earl's contention that nude beach patrolling is "kind of boring duty."

Despite the calm, however, people were definitely irked by the law officers presence.

"I think it's terrible," said a bearded man who identified himself only as Fred. "It's very intimidating to see those horses go back and forth."

A young woman recalled that last year, as she had been sunning herself fully clothed, a mounted deputy had raced into a group of bathers "in his haste to make his little raid and get his little medal."

"He almost trampled me," said she, adding, "Just hearing those walkie-talkies carried by the sheriffs really freaks me out."

"What are they going to do about the horse dung on the beach," another man asked acidly. "Maybe they'll have to hire a beach cleaner to pick up after the horses."

"They've ruined my beach and turned it into something really ugly," Miss Landey said.

She remembers that three years ago the beach was "a mellow, very friendly place" where people — including grandparents and their grandchildren —flocked happily, took their clothes off, played guitars and sang.

But all that changed in the summer of 1972, after residents complained to the county that the throngs of people, both nudes and nude watchers, were ruining the beach they owned and creating a health hazard because of the lack of sanitary facilities.

Most of the bathers interviewed Saturday said they don't believe that worries about health hazards were the real reasons for the objections voiced by the residents. Rather, they said, they think the beach owners were offended by the sight of naked bodies in the sand, below their hillside homes.

"I think it's their puritanical upbringing," said 27-year-old Jim. "They can't see that nudity is much more natural," he added.

"The . . . sat up there with binoculars — I saw them — and then they had the nerve to call the police and complain," said Miss Landey with some heat.

"Yeah, to be offended they had to use binoculars and get up on chairs too," laughed another woman.

There was frustration too on the beach Saturday because no one could figure out how to bring back the "good old days," sans deputy sheriffs.

Some mentioned petitions and organized protests, but wondered if those would really help. Miss Landey suggested the $1 fee to park on the state beach could be used to clean up Little Beach and set up restrooms there.

Meanwhile, the objects of the discussion — Deputy Earl and Paul Hughes, 35, a civilian member of the sheriff's mounted patrol, sat quietly on their horses, surveying the scene from a vantage point removed from most of the bathers.

"The worst part of their jobs," according to Hughes, "is being resented by some people." He is new to the nude patrol, although he has patroled for three years at Stinson Beach where there is almost no problem with sunbathers disrobing.

Earl, who was at Muir Beach last year, didn't appear too pleased at the prospect of having to make arrests, and said he likes to do his duty with as little fuss as possible.

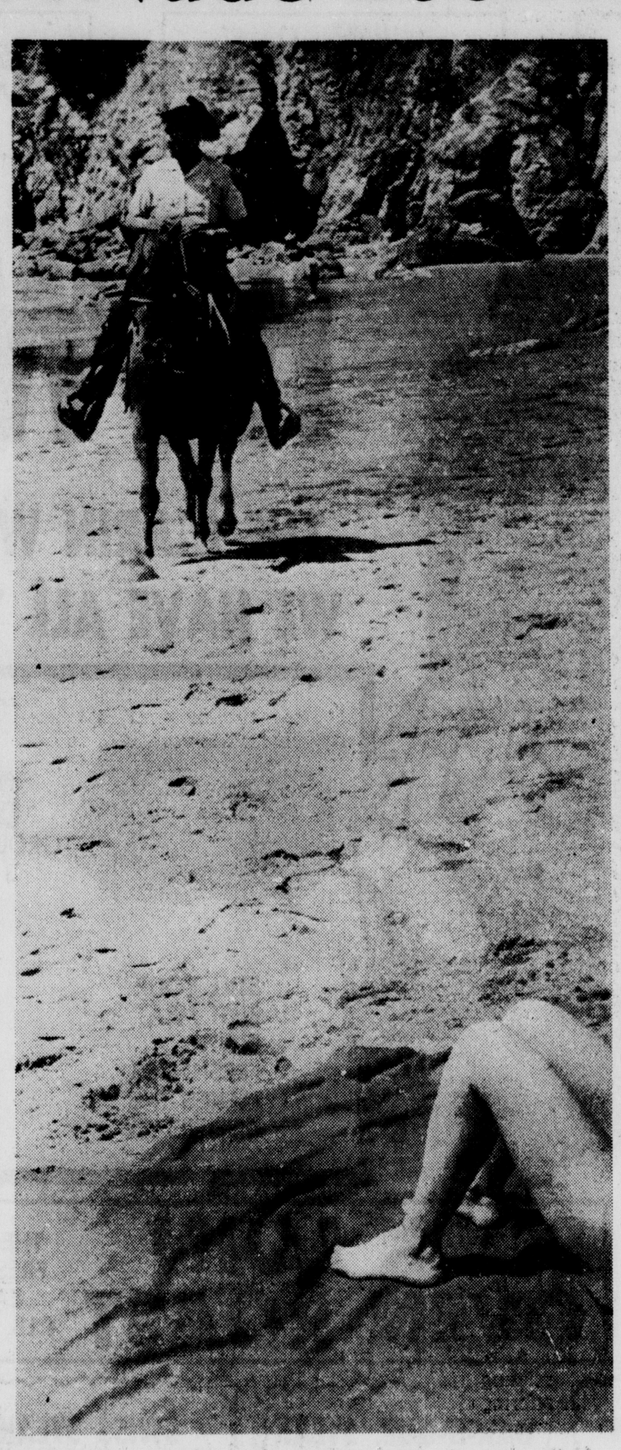
"It's no fun booking people," the 32-year-old deputy said. "So if someone undresses, I will simply ask them nicely — I'll even say please —to put their clothes back on."

Both Earl and Hughes admitted they personally see nothing wrong with nude sunbathing — in the right place.

"It should be in a secluded place where it wouldn't bother people who don't believe in it," said the genial Earl.

The men are also in favor of the Muir Beach Community Services District proposal that the county set aside a beach somewhere in Marin exclusively for nude sunbathers.

"Of course, Iwouldn't use it myself," the boyish-looking Hughes said with a grin. "I'm just the shy type, I guess."



BEACH PATROL — This nude was the exception to the rule Saturday as Marin County Sheriff's Deputy John Earl initiated the county's horse patrol at Muir Beach. The sunbather donned clothing immediately upon a firm and polite request from the Deputy.

Rec Program In Fairfax Due Study

The Fairfax Parks and Recreation Commission will consider a proposal for a sweeping reorganization of the town's recreational program when it meets at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Fairfax Women's Club.

At issue is a recommendation by commissioner Irma Kay that the city fire recreation directors Susan and Richard Woodall and recreation leader Kim Parker be replaced on an interim basis with College of Marin students.

Mrs. Kay has also urged that the commission be responsible for preparing its own budget, rather than allowing City Administrator Robert Crowe to perform the task.

Mrs. Kay first aired her proposals at a commission meeting last month in which several commissioners declared they were confused about commission goals and operation functions.

The commission is expected to draft a recommendation for the town council.

Hamilton House Plan On Agenda

Marin Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere will ask colleagues tomorrow to take steps to preserve surplus housing at Hamilton Air Force Base for senior citizens.

The Pentagon announced last week that Hamilton will be relegated to reserve status in September, and that much of the base housing will become surplus.

Roumiguiere is expected to ask the board to request that the federal government reserve at least a portion of the units for elderly persons.

In other business, the board will take up the City of San Rafael's threat to stop sending its fire equipment to blazes in unincorporated areas just outside the community's boundaries.

San Rafael officials say city residents are being taxed for unincorporated fire service often provided on a first-arrival basis by city equipment.

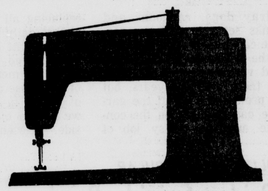
The supervisors, meeting at 9 a.m. at the Civic Center, also will consider reappointing Margaret B. Azevedo to the county planning commission, consider a sheriff's mounted patrol budget, discuss a regional housing task force report and weigh money requests from Marin Parents for Mental Recovery and the county youth commission.

Status Report On Arbitration Will Be Given

The Marin Hospital District board will hear a status report on arbitration to resolve four challenged votes in the recent union representation election at Marin General Hospital when it meets tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the hospital's Coral Room.

Nonprofessional employees at the hospital voted 94 to 91 against union representation March 22, but the final outcome was in doubt because of four challenged ballots. For Teamsters Local 856 of San Francisco to win the election, all four votes must be ruled valid by the state conciliation service and be in favor of Teamster representation.

The board also will hear an explanation of a proposed rate increase for Blue Cross membership.



Take it to the leader.

Moretti Takes Up Drug-Price Cudgel

Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-North Hollywood, has taken up a battle that Marin-Sonoma Assemblyman William T. Bagley fought and lost last year.

As part of what he calls "a package of consumer bills," Moretti has introduced AB 684, to repeal the legal ban on advertising prices of prescription drugs.

Bagley and Assemblyman Harvey Johnson, D-El Monte, pushed a similar bill last year. But drug interests successfully opposed it. Johnson has joined Moretti as co-author of AB 684.

THE NEW BILL, like last year's, would not require any druggist to advertise. It would, however, require that the prices of 100 most frequently sold prescription drugs be posted in the store.

In introducing the measure, Moretti said:

"We know in the Los Angeles area the price of 100 one-grain thyroid tablets varies from $1.85 to $3.90. The cost of 500-milligram tablets of polycillin, a common antibiotic, ranges from $13.95 to $33.60.

"It is time that we quit bowing to the rhetoric that the sale of drugs is a professional service instead of a retail transaction."

OPPOSITION of the drug trade to the Bagley measure — which undoubtedly will follow the same lines regarding Moretti's bill — was based largely on claims that (a) compounding prescriptions is a professional job, and (b) permitting advertising would encourage substitution of inferior ingredients.

There is no argument that compounding prescriptions is anything less than a skilled professional job. But the majority of prescriptions call for drugs which the pharmacist does not compound. They are compounded by the manufacturer. The only difference between them and non-prescription drugs (which can be sold anywhere, and which are heavily advertised) is that they cannot be purchased without a doctor's prescription.

As to the contention that price advertising would encourage adulteration or cheap substitution, that argument also falls flat because most of the drugs are compounded by manufacturers and sold under trade names. If the doctor prescribes a certain label, that is what the pharmacist must use to fill the prescription.

PERMITTING prescription-drug price advertising would not turn druggists into price-cutters. We have clothing stores, furniture stores, grocery stores, etc., which do not court business on the basis of cut prices. But we have others that do. The customer has a choice.

He should have the same choice when he goes to have a prescription filled.

Maybe the current enthusiasm for "consumerism" — plus the additional "clout" of its sponsorship by the Assembly speaker — will enable Moretti's AB 684 to fare better than did Bagley's measure. We hope so.

A Closed Invitation

Stray dogs, raccoons and skunks seem to feel our garbage can is their reserved table at the barbecue pit. We have tried various ideas to discourage them over the years, but the pre-dawn bang of the garbage can toppling on the concrete and the messy job of replacing all the goodies were almost daily events. No more, we hope. At last, we think we have solved the problem. We wired our metal can to the wall of the house and put six inches of gravel in the bottom. Then we placed our plastic can inside. A closed invitation.

POLITICALLY POPULAR

Bridge Suicide Barrier May Be Waste Of Money

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Grandstanding San Francisco politicians on the Golden Gate Bridge District board are eager to waste $820,000 to add a suicide barrier to the bridge.

The same switches that turned on a battery of television cameras at a recent board revival of the proposed barrier also turned on the politicians. Some who virtually never lent a constructive note suddenly blossomed into statesmen calling eloquently for the barrier.

The less eloquent revived the contention that if the barrier saved one life it would be worth it. Since they were talking about the public's money, it was easy to say. It's their guilt feelings, but our money.

The board room, by coincidence, was packed with San Francisco citizens who loudly applauded their new statesmen.

STATISTICS ON SUICIDE in Bay Area counties, however, show that those taking their lives by jumping from high places ranged in most years from nil to about 3 per cent. Only in San Francisco, which abounds in high places, does the percentage leap in some years toward 10 per cent.

The statistics suggest very few jump from high places where there are few high places. In other words, people will continue to jump in San Francisco even if denied access to the bridge railing.

The fact that almost 500 persons have jumped from the span since it opened in 1937 is intolerable to the intense band lobbying for the barrier. We suspect that some of these persons are horrified largely because the tragedies are public. It is an easy nonissue for which to fight.

The unpopularity of opposing the barrier is evident in the fact no one has publicly objected to it. A spokesman for the San Francisco Planning and Urban Renewal Association, however, told us the group will protest on the ground any barrier will eliminate the present open view for pedestrians. People come from all over the world to see it, and hardly would enjoy peering through an endless eight-foot-high row of bars.

THE MONEY it would take to build the barrier would buy 16 additional buses seating 720 commuters a day — each way.

San Franciscans on the bridge board, of course, think little of squandering $820,000 to burnish their image. These same men,, after all, are raiding the district's limited treasury for $9 million to finance ferries instead of a proper bus system.

Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum voted with the San Franciscans to spend $67,500 to complete design and testing of the barrier. Its construction cost was estimated at $750,000, which probably will prove far too low an estimate. San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini voted against the expenditure, and Dean N. Meyer of Mill Valley was absent.

The proposal has been kicked around for 23 years, and deserves at least another 23 years of reconsideration.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

President Misusing Executive Privilege

I believe that the President should allow his aides to testify before the Senate subcommittee investigating the Watergate break-in. I think all of us in America, whether we are Republicans or Democrats, should be concerned enough to voice out opinions on this and any other matters pertaining to the running or legislating of our country.

I doubt very much if executive privilege should be invoked in such matters not pertaining to our national security. The only security the President seems to be concerned with in this matter is his own and his friends' who have high positions on his staff. To me this is deplorable and a deliberate misuse of the President's powers along with a deliberate miscarriage of justice.

I do hope that in time everyone will leave this state of apathy that exists in this country. This is our America and we should believe in it enough to be interested in what is going on in the three branches of government. If the President has nothing to hide about the Watergate, we should call on him to let the facts be known.

Use your influence as American people and write to your legislators and the President as I have already done.

'It All Depends Whose Ox Is Gored'

The past several days of Marin County and state politics provide a disgusting and sad moral commentary, not only for politicians but for many of our covetous citizens and those of the bandwagon type.

Marin County was one of the nation's most eloquent when it came to denouncing military might in Vietnam and to castigating military ponderance and its ancillary expense in general . . . All of this echoed from Sausalito to Kentfield. We had a host of lawyers and grocers and dentists who all suddenly were graduates of the Command and General Staff College . . .

. . . And now the President, throughout the nation, is trimming non-essential military fat — cutting military costs. Nationally this is a popular move but it is always selfishly unpopular wherever the fat is removed . . .

Condescendingly or jealously Supervisor Dorothy Young calls Hamilton AFB the country club of the Air Force . . . She can't believe the Air Force would abandon this great Hamilton super-haven. Supervisor Arrigoni suddenly forgets the county's national posture and nitty-grittily he becomes more provincial. He is going to "protest vigorously and loudly pursue the Pentagon reversal." Roar! Baptiste unflamboyantly "regrets the closure." . . . Yeah! We want the military base! We want uniforms! We want payday!

. . . Senator Tunney, super dove, calls the military closure "cruel and insensitive." And that just boggles the mind, if you have the recall for his previous statements regarding. . . the President bankrupting the country through military expenditure. Meanwhile over in the City, Mayor Alioto refers to military closures as devastating. Yet San Francisco-town was probably the most vocal anti-military establishment urban center in the nation. Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Max Taylor, had to flee out of a side entrance of the Fairmont for a hasty airport debouchment with anti-militarists in hot pursuit.

Doesn't all this strike you, as a thinking person, as politically and morally phoney? . . . Mailliard, who I do not know and have never met, added a measure of dignity to the Cinderella sister act by saying, "Better close it up and put it to another use." Hooray for that kind of fortitude and good sense, whatever his ticket. Shame on a vast multitude of multi-faced Marinites!

Report Of Speech Accurate, Says Speaker

This is to thank you for the excellent article written by your reporter Pat Balmes, about a speech I gave recently. It was printed in the I-J on March 29. It was accurate and beautifully written. You are fortunate to have such a fine employee. I was not personally acquainted with her until this time.

Arabs' Chickens Now Coming Home To Roost

The anguished bleatings of a section of the Arab community against the recent commando tactics of the Israelies are very strange. After all the Arabs have harbored and encouraged the Palestinian guerrillas to commit mayhem against innocent persons for years — all at once, plucky Israel decides to play the same game, and all at once the Arabs are screaming for sanctions and whatnot in the Security Council. When you come down to the nitty-gritty of the matter, it all depends on whose ox is geing gored — and since the Arabs started the terrorism and/or condoned it, or whatever, it appears that the chickens are coming home to roost!

First Aid Training Real Life-Saver

A week ago last Saturday a young man by the name of Steve Brocksen was riding his motorcycle along the Nicasio-Lucas Valley cut-off when he ran into a car at the intersection.

Two young men who were on their way to work in Mill Valley were present on the scene when the accident occurred. Both young men have American Red Cross first aid training. The younger, 15-year-old Patrick Kuhre, went back to Nicasio immedaitely and called in for the ambulance. The older, 17-year-old Frank Kuhre, went to the aid of young Steve Brocksen. He took off the crash helmet and noticed that the boy was in great pain when he tried to breath, so he turned him onto his left side and covered him with his own jacket. He stayed there talking to the boy and keeping him from moving until the police and the ambulance got there.

The I-J reported that 98 per cent of the cases of this type died. I believe that the prompt action of these two young men helped the doctors who operated on young Brocksen by giving them a fighting chance by their actions.

I believe that both young men, especially Frank, deserve a commendation for their desire to take the first aid course and then keep cool and calm when the need came to use their knowledge.

Nixon Can't Dismantle Capitol, But Congress Wants To Do So

WASHINGTON — The day Mr. Nixon bravely announced he had discovered this thing called the Watergate, and he had intrepidly decided to investigate it after scoffing for nine months at the investigation of it by others, and even to send his underlings up to Congress to testify about it under oath — that was the day Congress prevailed at least temporarily in the great executive-privilege showdown with the executive branch, and so it may have seemed to be the day the Capitol was saved from being declared null and void by the White House.

But Mr. Nixon's threat to the capitol never had been more than institutional. Even had he stuck to it, the capitol physically would have remained standing at the other end of the avenue, looking from the White House side very much as it has for more than 100 years.

IT TAKES the Congress itself to destroy the capitol, now that the British are constrained from raiding through the area anymore. And on the selfsame day Mr. Nixon was surrendering in the paper war with his legislative challengers, the House of Representatives was voting to do just that.

Not to tear the capitol down, exactly, but to dismantle and replace the only facade of the building which has survived the legislators' ego-fed campaign for more office space.

It is unfair to say all congressmen joined in this latest assault on the historic building we taxpayers provide for them to work in. The move passed by only six votes, and even as I write there is a counterattack under way to reverse it. But the odds are that the proposal eventually will become law, because it is the personal crusade of the leaders and senior members who will benefit most from it.

THE IDEA is to spend $58 million to extend the west front of the capitol, the one visible from far down the mall in the sweeping view that is the most impressive remaining part of Pierre L'Enfant's master plan for monumental Washington. The project would wipe out the west front as it now stands and the famous landscaped terraces stepping down from it to the mall.

It would insure that during the great influx of visitors from America and abroad expected here during the celebration of the nation's bicentennial, the capitol will be in about as disheveled a state as it was after the Redcoats razed it during construction in 1814.

The cited reason from the congressional elders is that something drastic must be done to keep the west front from collapsing on them. Or at least that was the reason they cited before the likelihood of imminent collapse was refuted by an engineering firm hired to study its condition. Now the repair aspect has been shoved to the background, and the principal reason is the need for more working space.

As speaker of the House Carl Albert, D-Okla., put it, "I know some have a different view, but the capitol has to grow with the rest of the country."

THE MEMBERSHIP of Congress has grown only slightly in this century, as the Senate increased by two with the admission of each new state. In that same period, five huge office buildings have been completed for members and their staffs. These are the Cannon Building (1908), Longworth (1933) and Rayburn (1965) on the House side, and the Russell (1909) and Dirksen (1958) on the Senate side. Together they have more than 2,500 office rooms, numerous hearing chambers, subways, cafeterias, swimming pools, gymnasiums, underground parking garages and much more.

But a signal disadvantage of all that office space is that it is across the street from the capitol itself, and to reach the House or Senate floor from it, a member must either walk or ride the subway as much as a block or even two. Thus the speaker, the party leaders and other elders traditionally have coveted the relatively few offices in the capitol. Nooks and crannies hidden among the clerestories and peristyles of the old building are prized signs of status, and handy repositories of Wild Turkey and Chivas Regal.

Senior members are not about to give up any of those hideaways to make more working space available. In fact, the extension of the west front (the east was pushed out 11 years ago) is largely intended to provide more of them, plus a few extra men's rooms.

It is not leftover Prohibition prudery that prompts such a big minority of members to oppose the extension, nor even envy of their elders. It is a sense of respect for what is left of the old capitol, and incidentally for the estimated $58 million, which is bound to increase. They do not agree that the capitol has to grow with the rest of the country, and I doubt that the rest of the country does, either.

Orient Draws Major Attention In American Foreign Policy

While not neglecting Europe, policy planners at the State Department see the United States dominantly occupied with the Western Pacific for some time to come. Their reasons:

The four great powers — Russia, China, Japan and the United States — converge there.

Except for the Sino-Soviet border dispute, events are improving the climate in their relationships. This opens up new opportunities to stabilize the whole area.

Much of the world's population is concentrated in Asia. Its people are dynamic.

'NIXON SHOCKS' TO JAPAN FADE. When Nixon devalued the dollar the first time and sent Kissinger to China without informing Tokyo, many predicted that U.S.-Japanese relations would be undermined.

It isn't working out that way. The "Nixon shocks" have passed and the emperor of Japan is paying a symbolic visit to Washington late this month in the most favorable atmosphere.

Tokyo is finding that improving Sino-American relations is bringing improved relations between Japan and China. And, as with the United States, the effect is to induce the Soviet Union to be more cooperative.

JAPAN, THE ECONOMIC SUPERSTAR. Its economy keeps expanding. At its present growth rate, the Japanese people will soon achieve an average income equal to that of Americans — $3,500 per capita. They are aggressively competitive but are taking steps to hold down the flow of exports to the United States in order to redress the imbalance of trade.

As in other industrialized countries, the Japanese are finding that improvement in the standard of living is bringing a deterioration in the quality of living. The massed population of Tokyo suffers in a cloak of the most polluted air in the world — worse than Los Angeles or Rome.

The reason: Too many motor vehicles in too small an area. Japan has 164 cars to every squqre kilometer; The Netherlands, 89 per kilometer; Britain, 59; the United States, 17.

FULBRIGHT BOWS TO LIBRARY OF CONGRESS. The chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has disputed every witness — Secretary of State Rogers, Secretary of Defense Richardson, Attorney General Kleindienst — who contended that the President is acting legally in using his war powers in Indochina.

Senator Fulbright has now accepted the verdict of the research staff of the Library of Congress in a study he requested. It concludes that a cease-fire does not of itself end a war and that there is no constitutional bar to resuming any part of the fighting by the President.

Marin's Simulated Earthquake Will Be No Paper Disaster

Marin County workers and officials of seven of the county's cities will cooperate with public schools and medical teams May 11 in the county's second disaster training exercise.

So far as I can find out, it will be the first time in years that any emergency operations area in the Bay Area has such a realistic test of its civil defense organizations.

Frank Kirby, Marin's emergency coordinator, has had telephones to both ears at once, obtaining helicopters, school buses and heavy engineering equipment for actual use in the drill.

The scenario, written by a team of disaster officials, will imagine that an earthquake with a magnitude of 6.0 has shaken the San Andreas Fault. Medical emergency teams will take to the air in helicopters to go to the scene of hypothetical injuries; school buses will transport children to emergency centers, and fire and rescue teams will go through the routines they'd perform in a real emergency.

The county's first disaster drill last December, was held entirely on paper, with no equipment actually mobilized. The second test will be much more realistic — and should be that much better training.

TRISCADECAPHOBIA is a word that I've never been able to find in the dictionary, but musician Harry James recorded a song about it during World War II. The word supposedly means "fear of the number 13," equating it with superstitions about black cats and broken mirrors and Friday the 13th.

I'm now a victom of the ailment — only it seems like Friday the 13th continued all last week end.

Nothing very startling happened on Friday itself — but Saturday the troubles began early.

I was trying to coax a big, black 125-pound dog into his crate to take him to a dog show in Sacramento. He obligingly put his front paws up into the truck, but when I tried to boost his hindquarters in, he flailed his massive head around, whacking me in my sunglasses. The nosepieces dug into the bridge of my nose — copious blood resulted.

A few minutes later, one door of the van slammed on my right hand while I had my arms full of gear I was loading in. That hurt like mad, but nothing broke, it turned out — the hand swelled half again normal size.

On Sunday, the first dog I showed was my friend that bopped me in the nose. As I was running around the show ring with him, he veered into me. I did the darnedest cartwheel you ever saw on the concrete floor, and the judge said too bad and gave the dog second place.

A couple of hours later I was standing at another ring, checking to see when our next dog was to be shown, when another exhibitor's Yorkshire terrier weighing all of about three pounds glared up at me, barked, and ran around and bit me in the heel.

I should have stayed in bed all week end.

The Bureaucratic Approach To 'What Is A Bureaucrat?'

A good sociologist doesn't know the meaning of the word obvious. He will roll a stone — a tough, big-city stone, all angles — down the hill of an urban neighborhood, whacking 10-year-old Fords and Chevies as it goes. Next he will take a nice, round, comfortable stone and push it down a suburban incline — so slowly, so gradually that even a fat middle-class dachshund can get out of the way. Finally he will climb Nob Hill, reverently, and tumble this exquisite jewel of a quartz-piece down upper-upper-middle-class lawns — grass like green velvet.

He will poll all three neighborhoods for opinions, collate his own observations into nine statistical-distribution charts, and then, and only then, announce: A rolling stone gathers no moss.

IRONICALLY Dr. Amitai Etzioni, a Columbia University sociologist, usually an anti-cant man himself, has produced a 374-page study for the U.S. Department of Labor to report — are you ready?: You can't fit a square peg into a round hole.

For those who are not familiar with how one says "Please put a round peg in a round hole" in sociologese, here is Dr. Etzioni's free translation: "A better fit between a person's predisposition and the nature of his or her job should increase genuine satisfaction and reduce alienation, wherever it exists."

The specific "predisposition" Dr. Etzioni happens to be investigating is "bureaucratic predisposition." Are bureaucrats born bureaucrats or can they be made bureaucrats? This is what the Department of Labor really wants to know.

FOR A COUPLE of bucks (tax included) the secretary of labor could have bought a copy of Franz Kafka's "The Trial," the best study of bureaucracy ever written. Instead, at considerably more expense than a paperback, one assumes, the Department of Labor bought the sociologist's approach. And so, 2,592 workers took a 43-item "Tolerance for Bureaucratic Structure" test. The bureaucrat profile emerged thus:

He or she is older rather than younger; married or divorced rather than single; moderately educated rather than highly (or lowly) educated; black rather than white; Protestant rather than Roman Catholic or Jewish; and female rather than male.

It is too fine a point to suggest that the Etzioni test seems a fairly bureaucratic approach to the question of who's a bureaucrat and who isn't? Would anybody but a structure-tolerant" bureaucrat submit to this kind of exam in the first place?

POOR CONSCIENTIOUS bureaucrat! He just does what he's told, and nobody loves him for it, not even himself. In "The Fall of Rome," W.H. Auden caught the bureaucrat, typecast as a Roman, frozen forever in his spasm of self-contempt:

Caesar's double-bed is warm
As an unimportant clerk
Writes I do not like me work
On a pink official form.
Adding, just to rub it in:
Altogether elsewhere, vast
Herds of reindeer move across
Miles and miles of golden moss,
Silently and very fast.

How this soldier-ant, the "uptight" bureaucrat (Dr. Etzioni's adjective), is doomed to envy the nonbureaucrat, the grasshopper! — "easy-going, relaxed, unaware of time rhythms."

WHAT CAN BE DONE? Very little, Dr. Etzioni sighs, taking another plunge into the obvious to report: You can't teach an old dog new tricks. Sociologese coding: "Persons have some set preferences in terms of their work, which seem not easily changed once they reach maturity."

There is a patness to all this categorizing that even a good bureaucrat might be prompted to resist. Perhaps the time has come to announce a "Tolerance for Sociological Structures" test. It may surprise the social science industry, but most people are not thrilled to be identified as "bureaucrats" or even "nonbureaucrats." In their dreams they think of themselves as something more, something as varied — would a social scientist believe it? — as, in fact, individuals.

Extremists go so far as to protest that even sociologists deserve better than to become somebody else's generalization. Sure it sounds absurd, but after all, some of them may be round pegs in square holes too.

Bagley Plans Action On Amending Tax Rebate Bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The trimming of Gov. Ronald Reagan's income tax rebate plan is scheduled to become official this week as squabbling continues over the proposal.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, said yesterday he will amend the Reagan plan which he sponsors on the basis of new estimates showing less-than-expected state revenues.

Bagley, who sponsors most Reagan administration fiscal matters in the lower house, added that he doubted that even his amended version of the rebate plan would win the necessary approval in the Democratic-controlled Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee.

The cut-down form of the rebate proposal will allow the state director of finance to decide how much money the taxpayers will get back — scrapping the earlier firm, one-time 20 per cent rebate figure.

Squabbling over the plan continues to flare because Democratic critics say they don't want the money sent back to taxpayers when the estimated surplus size is bouncing up and down and no one knows for sure where it stands.

The Republican governor said in an April 13 interview that a projected $176 million cut in the state budget surplus might reduce — but wouldn't stop — his plans for an income tax rebate. Bagley said the cut probably will be in the vicinity of $100 million.

Democratic critics say the reduced revenue would "ruin" both the rebate plan and the governor's controversial plan for limiting future state governmental spending.

Reagan's original tax rebate plan was based on projections of a $852 million state budget surplus by June 30.

Besides the income tax rebate, Reagan proposes delaying the effective date of a one cent per dollar boost in the sales tax hike from June to Jan. 1, 1974.

Bagley said the legislature must agree soon on how long to delay the sales tax hike because it will cost $200,000 to print and distribute new tax tables for the June hike.

Meantime, Bagley said he will push a separate measure to delay the sales tax hike for one month — something he said everyone can approve.

"I ask, beg, entreat and implore the legislature to stop playing chicken with the taxpayers of California or the chickens will come home to roost on the legislature's back, and I don't want that," Bagley said.

Reagan's rebate plan, which Democratic legislature leaders agreed to hear in committee, is also the subject of an initiative petition campaign to place the issue on a special November ballot.

The governor says his initiative will save taxpayers millions of dollars over a 15-year period without curbing essential services. Critics say it would place state government in a straightjacket.

The ceiling provision is missing from Bagley's rebate bill. But Bagley said his bill will continue to provide a delay in the sales tax hike until Jan. 1 — the date Reagan prefers — and will appropriate $70 million for park acquisitions.

Corte Madera Panel Sets Final Meeting

The Corte Madera Citizens Fire Department Improvement Committee formed in 1971 after a series of disastrous residential fires in the town will wind up its affairs at a final meeting at 7:30 p.m. next Monday at town hall.

Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels said the committee will make its final report to the town council and then disband.

Since the committee's start, the Corte Madera Fire Department has added manpower and has begun manning the fire station on a 24-hour basis.

The committee will consider next Monday a five-year plan for the fire department prepared by Chief Frank L. Nelson.

He recommends moving the fire station headquarters to a site near the present California Highway Patrol building east of Highway 101. (The CHP would be displaced by Corte Madera's redevelopment plans, and is expected to relocate at the Larkspur ferry terminal.)

Nelson, in the five-year plan, says that since Corte Madera is a one-fire-station town, a station by the freeway cloverleaf would make runs to any location in town "acceptable for adequate response."

If the headquarters isn't moved from its present location on Tamalpais Avenue next to the town hall, Chief Nelson suggests remodeling the substation on Paradise Drive, east of the freeway, to give east side coverage.

He envisages the town hiring an extra fireman each year from 1974 through 1978.

Five Killed In Head-On Crash

SEATTLE (UPI) — Five persons died Sunday night when two cars collided head-on on the rain-slick Evergreen Point floating bridge spanning Lake Washington. Two others cars plowed into the wreckage.

The victims were identified as Patricia Jane Young, 25, Kirkland, Wash.; her daughter, Shannon Renee Young, 5; Daniel B. Solbach, 29, Seattle; his wife, Joanne Solbach, 27; and their son, Todd Belmont Solbach, 4.

All but the elder Solbach were dead at the scene. He died a short time after reaching University Hospital.

Board To Set Principalships

The Kentfield School District board will be asked to approve assignments of principals of its four schools for the 1973-74 school year when it meets tonight at 8 o'clock at Wolfe Grade School.

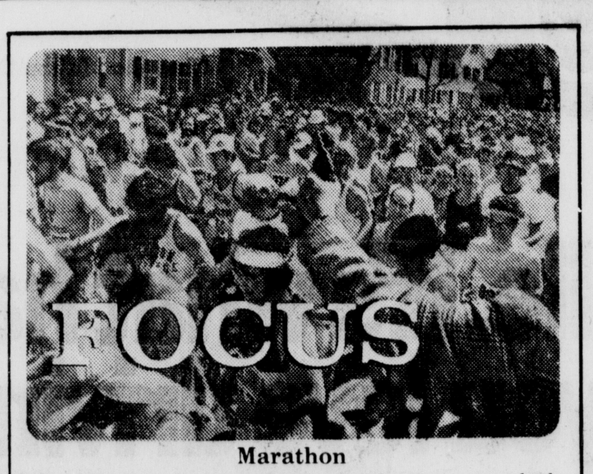
Arcima F. Taylor will become principal of both Adaline E. Kent elementary and junior high schools, Roy L. Smith, principal of Wolfe Grade, and Edward A. Allen, principal of Greenbrae School and assistant principal of Kent elementary.

Gene L. Hendsch, at present principal of Kent elementary, will be reassigned as an administrative assistant.

Freighter Sinks But Crew Is Safe

ATHENS (UPI) — The Panamanian freighter Astrid, swept by fire and a series of explosions, sank in the south Aegean Sea today but its 21 crew members were reported safe, a Merchant Marine spokesman said.

The Italian and Egyptian crew members abandoned ship in two lifeboats when seawater began flooding the 3,198-ton vessel.



Marathon

In 490 B.C., a small force of Athenians attacked and repulsed an invading Persian army near the town of Marathon. The Persians are said to have suffered losses of 6,400 men while only 192 Greeks fell in battle. A Greek soldier, Pheidippides, ran the 22 mile distance from Marathon to Athens bearing the news of the spectacular victory. When he arrived he cried out, "Rejoice, we conquer," and fell dead from exhaustion. To commemorate this event, a "marathon" run of 26 miles, 385 yards, has been included in the modern Olympic Games since they were first held in Athens in 1896. Appropriately, the first marathon winner was a Greek, Spyros Loues.

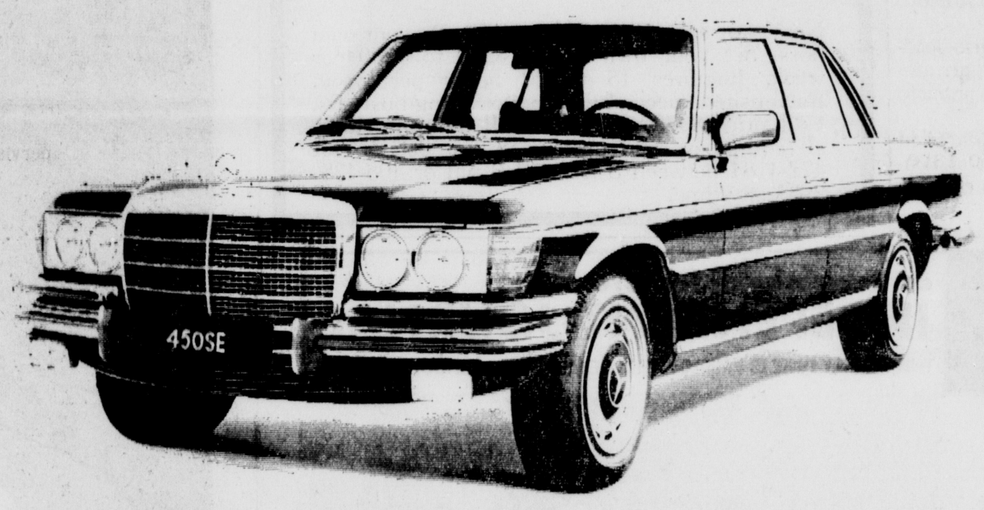
Introducing a $13,500 sedan that promises the most remarkable driving experience of your life: the new Mercedes-Benz 450SE



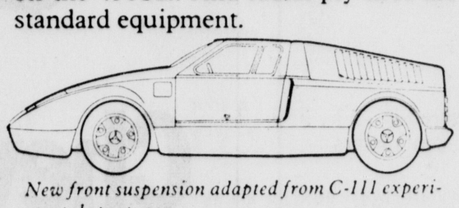
YEARS OF intense engineering effort were invested in the new Mercedes-Benz 450SE. Technical advances everywhere combine to produce handling response, security and stability that may well surpass any Mercedes-Benz sedan yet built, according to the engineers.

New front suspension

This car's sense of control is uncanny. The 450SE goes where you aim it—so precisely, that even veteran Mercedes-Benz drivers may find themselves astonished.

The reason: a zero steering offset front suspension system, adapted from the 180-mph C-111 experimental coupe.

Rear suspension design is the same fully independent system you will find on the 450SL. And radial-ply tires are standard equipment.



New front suspension adapted from C-111 experimental sports car.

The 450SE's designers wanted to keep the car as unruffled as possible—even in sudden, violent maneuvers.

2.7 turns lock-to-lock

An already superb power steering system was reworked to transmit an even surer road feel. Steering response has been improved, too. The 450SE goes from full left to full right in only 2.7 turns of the steering wheel—a figure unmatched by any domestic luxury sedan.

Under the hood is a 4.5 litre electronically fuel-injected V-8. And specifically designed to mate with this engine is a 3-speed automatic gearbox with a floor-mounted shift lever.

A disc brake on every wheel

In the new Mercedes-Benz 450SE a ring of air scoops is built into the inside of each wheel. Purpose: to bathe all four disc brakes in a steady gust of air. No domestic luxury sedan even employs 4-wheel disc brakes. Mercedes-Benz has used this system in its sedans for nearly a decade. Of course, the 450SE carries on in this tradition.

Shaped in the wind tunnel

Its designers gave the 450SE a shape that owes much to aerodynamics.

Massive windshield wipers are meant to harness the car's airflow to stay flat on the glass, even at maximum speeds. Vanes on the forward pillars and catch gutters on the rear window are placed there to scoop rain over the roof and away from the side and rear windows. Ribbed taillight lenses were designed to use the car's own air turbulence as a constant "scrubber" in rain and slush—staying visible to following traffic.

Compact outside, surprising inside

This spacious 5-passenger sedan only needs a turning circle of 37.5 feet—more than 7 feet smaller than any domestic luxury sedan. The 450SE itself is smaller, too. It is narrower and over 2.9 feet shorter. Surprise: in most vital respects, this new Mercedes-Benz gives you equal room inside. And there is more trunk space.

Front doors that breathe

The 450SE's built-in air-conditioning system is designed to prevent jarring blasts of frigid air; instead, controls are infinitely adjustable for temperature. Cooling or warming air is channelled not just through separate instrument panel vents but also via hidden outlets in both front doors.

A vacuum-operated central locking system is also built into your 450SE. One twist of the key in the outside driver's door lock silently secures all 4 doors, the trunk lid and the gas port.

Besides that air-conditioning system, standard equipment includes power steering and brakes; automatic transmission; electric windows; AM/FM stereo receiver; tinted glass; twin front fog lights and front- and rear-seat armrests.

The brief option list includes: leather upholstery; electric sun roof and fitted luggage.

The final significance

The 450SE incorporates more safety thinking than any Mercedes-Benz in history.

Mercedes-Benz motor cars: from $16,498* to $6,662*

Mercedes-Benz offers a vast range of models. Here are suggested retail prices for 8 of the most popular types:

450SLC Coupe	$16,498
450SL Coupe/Roadster	$12,773
450SEL Sedan	$14,605

Anti-U.S. Call Made In Cairo

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

A Cairo newspaper editor said today Arab attacks on American interests in the Middle East were inseparable from military confrontation with Israel and urged the Arabs to prepare a detailed plan for striking at U.S. interests in the area.

Moussa Sabry, editor of the newspaper Al Akhbar, said, "The guns on the confrontation front... will not be silent for long. The days of sacrifice are approaching faster than some people may think."

"There must be a detailed study of a plan to boycott America, an effective plan stemming from the will of the masses," Sabry wrote. "This is the responsibility of all Arab people on all Arab soil. Let the Arab struggle against everything American go on for years and years so that the White House will come to realize what a high price it will have to pay."

Sabry's bellicose statement was the latest in a series of statements from Egyptian leaders which have led diplomats at the United Nations to fear a new war in the Middle East may break out before the end of the year.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohamed H. el-Zayyat said Sunday Egypt is determined to "reestablish our territorial integrity." His statement, on the CBS program "Face the Nation," followed by one day a plan submitted to Parliament by Egypt's President Anwar Sadat calling for full mobilization of the country's resources for a new confrontation with Israel.

Egypt announced it would build "popular resistance training camps" as part of the mobilization program.

In Paris today, newspapers reported that French-Israeli relations had reached "a grave crisis" over Israeli charges that Libya had sent French Mirage jets to Egypt. France has denied the allegation.

The French Foreign Ministry said Sunday that Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban "had not furnished any proof that the Franco-Libyan agreement has been violated..." The agreement provides that French jets will not be sent to any of the belligerents in the 1967 Six Day War.

Arab military chiefs of staff met over the weekend to discuss a common strategy against Israel. They said they made some progress in "confronting the Israeli enemy."

Egyptian Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Saad Eddin Shazli said after the strategy talks in Cairo that despite the "progress" achieved at the meeting, there was no success in attempts aimed at reviving the Jordanian front against Israel.

Shazli said the Jordanian front, which collapsed when King Hussein expelled Palestinian guerrillas in September, 1970, "has not assumed satisfactory form yet, though more attempts will be made to revive it."

Shazli said the meeting did not take up the Israeli commando April 10 raid on Beirut.

"The conference cannot deal with particulars," he said, "but with the overall method of confronting the Israeli enemy."

In other Middle East developments, the Italian newspaper Il Messaggero said Sunday a new peace initiative is being formulated based on the construction of a second Suez Canal.

The paper said Italian leaders have been working privately for nine months to promote the plan.

A similar report appeared in the Sunday Telegraph of London and Cairo sources called it "complete nonsense."

Two Men Rob Airlines Office

Two men, one armed with a snubnosed revolver, held up the offices of SFO helicopter airlines in Mill Valley yesterday and escaped with an undetermined amount of cash.

Marin sheriff's deputies said the men accosted attendant Matthew Cervelli about 8:26 p.m., flashed a revolver and fled on foot with the contents of a cashbox.

The men were described as in their 20s, black, six feet tall, medium build, both with beards and Afro haircuts, and both wearing floppy hats.

Effect Of Boycott Said Poor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., concedes the weeklong meat boycott had an almost "nonexistent" effect on prices but says consumer groups may try it again early in May.

Rosenthal, a leader of the boycott the first week of April, said Sunday the boycotters want both lower prices and a change in the nation's "archaic agricultural system."

"They understand that the boycott can have only a minimal effect on prices and it did have only a minimal, if almost a nonexistent effect on prices," Rosenthal said.

He said, however, consumer groups may launch another weeklong boycott early next month "contingent on the federal government taking certain action."

Crash Cushions Being Placed On Freeways To Ease Accidents

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — New crash cushions are being installed along California's most dangerous freeways to ease the blow of high-speed accidents, state officials said yesterday.

The plan is to replace sheer wall and gore nose abutments with more desirable barriers. The new types being used by the state are yellow water tubes, large garbage can-like containers of sand and 55 gallon steel drums with holes cut in the top.

"We have 29 that are operational statewide," explained Edward Tye, assistant state traffic engineer. He said initial results indicate that the crash cushions are a valuable tool in the campaign to reduce the number of deaths on the nation's highways.

During 1972, there were 38 accidents involving a crash cushion. There was only one death among them and that fatality was caused by fire rather than impact.

Seventy-one additional crash cushions have been proposed at critical places on various freeways.

On impact, the water tubes send a geyser of spray into the air, the sand tubs explode and the steel drums carefully collapse. Thus far, the state has 19 water installations, eight sand tubs and two steel barrels.

The gore nose is a sloping structure which highway engineers once thought would gradually stop a careening car rather than force it to crash violently into a sheer wall.

"But they work like a ski jump and launch cars into the air," Tye said. "They can roll a car, too, which is equally bad because of the number of people who don't wear seatbelts and are in danger of being ejected."

Videotape cameras have been installed at four locations of crash cushions. The cameras are on a continuous 12-minute tape which is running at all times. They are rigged to shut off automatically two minutes after the crash cushion is hit, giving highway engineers 10 minutes of film before the crash and two minutes after it.

The tapes have produced some interesting results. They often show cars hitting the crash cushions, backing away and driving off. They also have demonstrated that drivers sometimes cannot explain why they hit barriers.

In one case, a driver said his car was forced into the barrier by another car. The tape showed there was no other car in sight.

In another instance, a car rolled up to a Los Angeles freeway installation of sand filled tubs and the driver got out carrying a sack. He wobbled over to the tubs and pulled unsuccessfully on the lids. Finally, he gave up, got back into his car and left.

Highway engineers who watched the film think the driver was intoxicated and looking for a freeway garbage can where he could stow his empties.

Fire At Yosemite Ruins Cafeteria

YOSEMITE (UPI) — A fire Sunday destroyed the main cafeteria and damaged some shops at Curry Village, a recreation area in Yosemite National Park.

No injuries were reported in the blaze, which was contained about three hours after it broke out.

GM MARK OF EXCELLENCE
Chevelle Malibu Colonnade Hardtop Coupe
Chevelle. It's what happens when you love driving as much as we do.
When you start with a car the caliber of Chevelle (which we did) and add new suspension design, wider tread and wider 6″ wheels (which we also did), what you end up with is one great mid-size road car. (Which you should.)
But reading about how a new Chevelle handles is like reading about falling in love. What you really want to do is experience it.
Front disc brakes. A car like this deserves fade-resistant self-adjusting disc brakes. So do you.
Full Coil suspension. Refined this year for added stability, smooth, quiet ride, improved road contact during cornering.
Full-foam swing-out bucket seats available. For easy in, easy out. Release the side locking handle and the seat pivots up to 90°. There's a 5″ forward and backward adjustment, too.
Chevrolet. Building a better way to see the U.S.A. CHEVROLET

Florynce Kennedy Preview Of Her Views On The Media

By BARBARA HOSMER

"Women are tired of turning the other cheek — after all, we only have four."

Noted for her pithy speech, activist and attorney Florynce Kennedy punched out her theme in an hour-plus monologue press session at a Tiburon home in preamble to the "Women and the Media" talk she will give at Redwood High School May 18, sponsored by Women on the Move.

"The sweet sound of reasonableness is out of style. Women should begin to criticize the sacred cows of this society," she emphasized with the thrust of a hand laden with rings. To Flo Kennedy the sacred cows include the media, the medical community, the Pentagon and the product manufacturers who cause huge waste of consumer dollars.

The media, she charges, have tended to distort or blackout the women's movement ideas, helped set women against women and inveigled women to waste consumer dollars in products that are a rip-off and bad nutrition.

"WOMEN HAVE been betrayed by the media." Referring to constant sports emphasis of media, she added, "We're at least as important as swimming, tennis and golf and should get coverage on a regular basis, and I don't mean the Chanel No. 5 — women have had the Chanel No. 5."

She also finds it "insulting that everytime Dick Cavett has Germaine Greer on his show, he also has to have somebody from the other side. And we women pay his salary. We pay for those shows" by buying the products that support them, she remarked.

To point up what she called the cultural tactic of pitting women against each other which the media emphasizes, she said that her Feminist Party will put on a Cinderella production in Boston this summer in which "Cinderella refuses the Prince's proposal and opens a bootery with her stepsisters, and I hope, her stepmother, too."

An activist since the early days of the National Organization for Women, Flo Kennedy went on in 1971 to set up the National Feminist Party. And it plans to caravan June 6 to 12 from Seattle to Hollywood to dramatize the media rip-off of women in films and television. "We'll do a campy shift on the Rose Parade to visualize attitudes" of the media to women, she said.

"We are protesting the media involvement in racism, sexism, advertising that waste consumer dollars, the image of women in films and the image of doctors," she emphasized.

AT 57, the early advocate of civil rights for blacks and women says, "At my age and in my condition, honey, I'm going to do what I want," and that means activism for women, minority oppressed peoples, consumerism and peace.

A graduate of Columbia University Law School and a former practicing attorney in New York, she is currently living at San Francisco's Golden Gateway Center, drives a 1965 black London taxi, and is finishing up a book, "The Pathology of Oppression."

She co-authored "The Abortion Rap" and is a leader in the current suit to deprive the Catholic Church of its tax exempt status on the grounds that it spends money to influence legislation, including anti-abortion regulations.

She pounces on the sterling image of the medical profession in media, including television, with relish:

"They fail to dramatize the poor health care, including radical mastectomies that women may not need, and the ignorance and incompetence of the medical profession is not shown . . . Women need to tell the medical profession to stop saying who can treat us, who can have abortions . . . They've given us hysterectomies when we don't want it.

"YET THE medical profession doesn't rise up at the atrocities," she commented, reciting the experiment on Chicano women giving one group the pill and the other group placebos but never telling them it wasn't the pill." The medical profession didn't say a word and then they said, 'We can't give you abortions" when the women became pregnant 'because it's against the law'.

"We need to encourage women to become paramedics and midwives and dare the medical profession to control our lives. We need to challenge the arrogance of the medical profession," she stated.

On consumer dollar waste she cited the media's ads for "new" soaps that are no better than the previous product but cost the consumer millions of dollars in advertising promotion, and media promotion of bad nutrition products.

"We pay for these people to give us Arid Extra Dry and the bad cereals," she remarked.

"We need to teach people the pathology of the production of an expensive soap. It cost $24 million to propagandize Bold by Procter and Gamble. We ask for $200,000 for child care and don't get it."

She also warned women about the restrictions being put on accessibility to abortion in California. The state legislature turned over the matter to the California Board of Medical Examiners who passed emergency regulations to raise the cost of abortion and other minimal medical procedures to prevent hospital competition with cheaper clinics, Flo Kennedy said.

"And they were enacted nine days after the Supreme Court decision . . . California put on the kind of regulation that the Court outlawed in the Georgia test case," the attorney pointed out.

The requirements include doing the medical procedures in a room at least 18 feet by 18 feet with blood bank and X-ray equipment. This means that what in a doctor's office would be a $25 procedure will cost from $200 to $400 in a hospital, she said.

"Now I don't want anybody to have an abortion who doesn't want one. I'm for freedom of choice, that's what we're talking about," but such regulations drive costs beyond reach of many women who then have no choice, she stated.

ON FEMINISM, she said, "Women shouldn't try to fight with the husband at home. Women should try to enlist him to understand how society uses him to oppress her. They say 'be a man, join the Marines,' He learns to punch people out. Kids are reared that way. We need to get to kids early. Show me a heavily oppressed woman and I'll show you unhappy kids.

"The husband takes the kid and says 'hit me. Hit me, ouch, that hurts. Hit me again. That's how the little boy learns, she said.

Women have a right to demand money for the real needs, she said, suggesting that the Pentagon and HEW switch budgets.

"Let volunteers fight the wars and pay the woman who reads to the blind . . .

"Whether you're a Marin County suburban woman or anything else, when you get ripped off, you're poor, honey!"

"I want choice for women. I don't want to have one group dictating jeans and another saying they don't like those 'dirty long-haired women.' We have to stop allowing media to prejudice us against each other," she finished.

WOMEN ARE ripped off by the media, activist Flo Kennedy maintains and plans a protest by her Feminist Party from Seattle to Hollywood in behalf of "opressed groups." "The Feminist commitment on the media is the same as getting fed one meal a week," she remarked at a Marin press conference. ""Media perpetuates gulfs among people."

FOUNDER OF the National Feminist Party, attorney Flo Kennedy says "It's time for women to protest. We've had the Chanel No. 5 from the media," she said.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Six Years Is Long Enough For This Kind Of Honesty

DEAR HELEN:

Psychiatrists say that if you face up to your faults, admit them, discuss them with concerned people, you're on your way to eliminating them. Wrong!

Before we married, my man was very honest with me. He said his worst weakness was women. I could understand that because he is the type that gets chased — and he never ran very hard.

Naturally he said all that was in the past, and it was — for six months. Then he started flirting at parties, or he'd disappear with a girl and return later in time to take me home. Afterwards he'd be very contrite, and would remind me about the "weakness."

Later, when he actually had affairs, he remained honest. "I just can't help it," he'd say, adding, "I warned you."

For six years he's expected me to forgive and forget, while "helping him to change." But the more he discusses his fault, the nearer he is to a new female interest. Each time he insists this one is his last, and my "understanding" has brought him to his senses. We both know better!

Last night I said, "No more! — I'm filing for divorce." He can't understand this. Says he's always leveled with me and he loves me best — and all he needs is a little more time.

Isn't six years long enough? — AMATEUR PSYCHOLOGIST WHO FAILED

DEAR A.P.:

Overlong, I'd say!

Your husband is like the girl who warns friends about her hot, hot temper. Then, when she explodes she can say, "Didn't I tell you?" She's using her honesty to excuse her actions, and she probably won't change until people stop accepting them as "her way."

Perhaps your husband can never change. If so, he should be a bed-hopping bachelor — or find a wife who doesn't think sexual fidelity is important. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I guess sex will never really go out of style, but I wonder how many people — men and women alike — are beginning to feel so pressured about it that they're losing the ability to enjoy?

You had a recent article about male impotence, giving fear as one of the main reasons — fear of failure, of not pleasing his mate, of being compared unfavorably to others. So true; but how about women?

We're fearful, too, these days. Books and movies tell us we're more sensual than men. Those explicit "How To" manuals that we're supposed to read avidly if we'd be complete women, say "Perform, perform, perform." We can't just relax and enjoy sex anymore, we must make a production of it, learn all the tricks, be super females who never fail. And if we don't always go crazy with ecstasy, we have to pretend — or we're to blame when our men drift elsewhere. Sometimes I feel as if I'm a trained courtesan, rather than a loving mate.

I long for the days when sex was fun, and I didn't have to keep trying for new heights (fantasize, they say, take Vitamin E, try everything kinky and new). Women as well as men are being forced into competition, and the elusive goal is "perfection," which none of us can reach all the time.

So ... I've come to dread what I once enjoyed. I'll never be frigid or unresponsive, but I'm tired of "performing," and trying to outdo my last response. Where did Love go?

Do any other men and women agree with me? — I WANT LOVE

DEAR IWL:

According to my mail, a great many men and women agree with you. As one man said, "Sex these days is like eating at the automat: You press the right buttons and you get what you came after, but it sure doesn't beat home cooking!" — H.

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? A fun idea? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, care of the Independent-Journal.

MONEY MATTERS

How To Run A Garage Sale

By JOSEPHINE RIPLEY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D. C. — What makes garage sales so popular?

I put the question to a number of people who not only stage these sales, but come home from others loaded with loot.

One answer: "It really goes back to the high cost of living. If you can get something in good condition for 50 cents to $2, why pay the full price for it?"

Or, as a grandmother put it: "If they had had garage sales when I was raising my family, I would have furnished the whole house and clothed the children from these sales."

Do people put on the sales to make money or to unload unused items?

A young husband replied, "Both. Many of us hold garage sales for the excitement of it. You have a lot of people coming to the house, and it's fun — a change from the routine of suburban life."

SAID HIS WIFE: "It's a way of getting rid of things you no longer need or use. And they may be just what someone else wants."

Who gets the best of the deal — the seller or the buyer?

"Probably the buyer," was the consensus, "since items are priced 'dirt cheap' for quick sale."

As for profits, the usual "take" varies from $30 to $50 per family participating (or even more if a family happens to be disposing of all expendables before moving overseas or into smaller living quarters).

It is common practice for neighbors to put on these sales jointly. There is an advantage in this collaboration since a larger display attracts more people.

"We have noticed," observed one authority, "that those who follow garage sales often pass by without getting out of the car unless there are sufficient items on display to pique their interest."

When is the best time to hold a garage sale?

There seemed to be general agreement among those interviewed that Saturday and Sunday are the best days or, for a big sale, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. Some feel a sale should last two days, at least. Others limit their sales to one day.

Suggested hours: From 10 a.m. to dark, or 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Time of year: spring or summer, or whenever the weather is propitious.

"Be very specific as to days and time. And be prepared for people to arrive early! Have free hot beverages to serve if weather is chilly."

Christian Science Monitor Sketch by Gene Langley

HOW DO you advertise a garage sale?

"By mimeographed flyers to be distributed in the neighborhood. By advertisements in the local paper. By a sign in front of the house. Strategically placed arrows are helpful in finding the right house, too."

The veteran garage-sale follower touches base at several sales during the day, carefully mapping his route in advance.

Garage sales are not always held in garages. They may be held in a carport, a basement, on the porch, or in front of the house. So make this clear in your announcement.

How should items be displayed in order to attract the buyer?

"Place items on tables, not on the ground. People don't want to bend over. Group things together — toys in one place, pots and pans in another. Antiques, if you have any, should be on a separate table.

"Clothing, which of course has been washed and ironed, should be displayed on hangers. Price and size of clothes should be clearly indicated."

Particularly stressed in the interviews was the importance of having in mind a "second price at which you would be willing to sell if a lower offer is made."

Advice to buyers: "Make up your mind quickly if you are interested in an item. If you turn away in indecision, the item may be gone when you come back."

A GARAGE sale calls for careful planning. You may be collecting things for months. Put different items in separate boxes.

Mark all items with masking tape. If several people are participating in the sale, identify each person's items by an initial or other insignia, in addition to the price.

Have separate cash boxes for each participant so there will be no problem when it comes to division of profits.

"Do not accept checks," warns one garage saleswoman. She also suggests a table of five and ten-cent items for children to buy.

Do you really get any bargains at these sales?

One veteran of the garage-sale circuit reeled them off:

"An electric knife sharpener for $2; tea kettle for 50 cents. A perfectly good radio for $1; crystal and bone china dishes, 50 cents to $1. A fertilizer spreader (for which she was hunting) at half price. It was brand new and had not even been taken out of the box.

"A new wheelbarrow, wool blankets, children's clothing, fur coat, and jewelry."

She is especially interested in antiques, and checks antique stores to find out what is selling well at the time. She looks for these items as she makes the rounds of garage sales. If she finds them, at the right price, she buys them and then resells at a profit.

Garage sales techniques and experiences may differ in different sections of the country. If you would care to tell us about them, write me in care of Money Matters, Box 353, Astor Station, Boston, Mass. 02123.

Indian Stereotypes Are Big Concern

By RICKY ROSENTHAL
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Mary Ann Red Cloud's daughter returned from school one afternoon in tears, asking, "Do we still scalp people?"

That was all her mother needed to ask the school principal for an assembly meeting — "to tell what American Indians stand for.

"We are not savage — not a scalping people," Mrs. Red Cloud explained to the students and teachers. "We have crafts, music, and arts — my tribe is known for its beadwork, designs, materials and colors."

Contrary to the TV images, Mrs. Red Cloud is more concerned than ever about attitudes and stereotypes of American Indians.

The children at her daughter's school in Whippany, N.J., listened to her explanations, she says, as do the many church and civic groups she addresses.

"SOME QUESTIONS are far out — such as, 'Do you still live in tepees?'" Mrs. Red Cloud acknowledges, "but at least people are interested."

MARY RED CLOUD

ever since she was a young girl, growing up with a mixture of pride in being an Indian, and the wish to flee Indian poverty.

Mrs. Red Cloud was born and raised on the Oglala Sioux Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota. The affluent white world of "Dick and Jane" textbook fame was "pretend" for her, although she had to learn to live with it. "My hands were beaten with a ruler many times for not speaking English," she says, "but my thinking processes are still in Sioux."

Stories that transmitted Indian culture were a regular feature of evenings at home on the reservation. "Grandfather would tell them over and over again until you couldn't stand them," says Mrs. Red Cloud.

One series of stories dealt with a spider called Iktomi. "Once he was hungry and wanted to eat the grass the buffalo were enjoying," Mrs. Red Cloud recounts. "The buffalo asked him to do certain things in order to share their feast, but Iktomi could not make sacrifices to get what he wanted — he was a coward."

Mrs. Red Cloud goes on to explain that some of the Oglala Sioux at Wounded Knee, S.D., were willing to make sacrifices to get what they wanted.

"WOUNDED KNEE was not a surprise to me," she says. "I have been trying to prevent this kind of thing for the last four years, but apparently there isn't interest in America in general. What senators, what congressmen do we have supporting us?"

Mrs. Red Cloud's great-great grandfather, Chief Red Cloud, signed a treaty with the U.S. Government in 1868 which ceded to the Sioux all land west of the Missouri River in the Dakotas. But homesteading gradually reduced the breadth of the land, and new government policies were developed that further broke up the holdings, leading to the eventual massacre of Sioux at Wounded Knee in 1890.

Less than a century later, some of Mrs. Red Cloud's relatives were again facing the U.S. government — and each other.

"Full bloods' were suspicious of the president of the Tribal Council, Richard Wilson," she says. "A lot of people were starving, and charges were swirling that he had misappropriated funds."

The specter of racism that she has worked to destroy, is rising, says Mrs. Red Cloud. "Sioux are afraid — of the federal government, of the bureau (Bureau of Indian Affairs), and of whites."

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Two of a kind! Yes, two of today's birthday greats were born the same day, month and year. Guess which two?

1. SHIRLEY TEMPLE, 45 or 52 today. Her singing of "Baby Take a Bow" in a Hollywood film in 1934 shot this youngster to stardom. Overnight she became a top money maker, earning more than $3 million in less than five years. Adulthood sank her Good Ship Lollypop but she's happily married now (Mrs. Charles A. Black) and was appointed a delegate to the United Nations by President Nixon in 1969.

2. JANET BLAIR, 45 or 52 today, became an instant star 31 years ago in the film, "My Sister Eileen." Born in Altoona, Pa., she changed her name from Martha Lafferty when she began her movie career at $70 a week for Columbia Pictures. She was the vocalist for Hal Kemp's band until he was killed in an auto accident.

3. WARREN SPAHN, 52 or 74 today, is considered one of the greatest left-handed pitchers in the history of National League. He won 20 or more games a season 13 times; and he struck out batters 2,583 times in his career, both records for a southpaw. Serving with the combat engineers in World War II, he was the only major leaguer to win a battlefield commission for bravery. His Battle of the Bulge wounds earned him a Bronze Star.

4. LUCIUS D. CLAY, 52 to 74 today, was the United States military governor of West Germany when Berlin was threatened with a blockade in 1948 by the Communist powers. He came up with the idea of breaking the squeeze on food and supplies with a gigantic airlift, which was so effective the Reds finally gave up their threat and Berlin was saved. For this, the general is being awarded the $10,700 Konrad Adenauer Prize this year by the Germany Foundation.

ANSWERS: 1 - Shirley Temple, 45; 2 - Janet Blair, 52; 3 - Warren Spahn, 52; 4 - Lucius D. Clay, 74. (Blair and Spahn are the same identical age.)

A Peek Not Necessarily Needed For South To Refuse A Finesse

"You must have a very good oculist," West said rather bitterly when his singleton king failed to make a trick. Actually, however, South had just made the right play. Peeking had nothing to do with the matter.

SPADE ACTION

West led the three of spades, and East won with the ace. East returned a spade, and South won.

At this point, South led out the ace of trumps, felling West's singleton king. South could now draw two rounds of trumps with the jack and queen and could eventually give up one trump and one club. The contract was, of course, now unbeatable.

Why did South lead out the ace of trumps instead of trying a finesse? He simply made the right play instead of the wrong play.

CAN'T AFFORD LOSS

If South gets to dummy with a club in order to try a heart finesse, he will lose his queen of hearts to the singleton king. Later on, he will lose a second trump trick to East's ten. This will doom the contract, for South cannot afford to lose two trump tricks.

South didn't expect to drop the singleton king of trumps. He was merely taking out insurance against the only 4-1 trump break that he could handle. If either opponent had four trumps headed by the king, South was in trouble. But if the singleton trump were the king, South could survive as long as he didn't try a finesse.

TRUMP BREAK

South really expected the trumps to break 3-2. In that case, he would win the ace of trumps and give up one trump. This was all right since South could afford to give up one trump trick. The important thing was to avoid the loss of two trump tricks.

Slide Show Is Set On Insects

Ray Peterson, an entomologist at California State University at San Francisco, will narrate a slide presentation about insects of the Tiburon Peninsula at 8 p.m. Friday in the music room at Del Mar School in Tiburon.

Peterson, also a consultant for Natural Science Education Resources in Marin County, will lead a walk to study insects May 28 at 10 a.m., leaving from Shepherd Way off Trestle Glen in the Reed area.

The program is the third in a series sponsored by the Tiburon Parks and Recreation Commission.

Court To Hear Reserve Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court agreed today to decide whether members of Congress violate the Constitution by holding commissions in the military reserves.

The justices will hear arguments on the issue in the fall or winter and hand down a written opinion next term. At issue were two lower court rulings in the District of Columbia that the long-standing practice is unconstitutional.

The Defense Department appealed the decisions.

In other actions, the Court:

Agreed to hear an appeal by the Interior Department from a ruling in an Arizona case that the federal government must provide general welfare assistance to all Indians, not just those living on reservations.

Agreed to decide next term whether a firm which has a policy of refusing to employ aliens is violating the 1964 Civil Rights law.

Refused by an 8-1 vote to hear an appeal by a Baltimore Sun reporter, David M. Lightman, who is facing jail for contempt if he refuses to give a county grand jury the location of a shop mentioned in an article on lax law enforcement at Ocean City, Md.

Agreed to review local school board policies in Cleveland, Ohio, and Chesterfield County, Va., which require women teachers to give up their jobs midway during pregnancy. Lower federal appeals court handed down conflicting verdicts on the issue.

Declined to hear an appeal by a student who was suspended from school in Chattanooga, Tenn., for wearing a jacket with a patch replica of a Confederate flag on the sleeve. The Court let stand a lower court ruling that while the ban on the flag itself was unconstitutional, school authorities had the right to suspend the Brainerd High School student, Rod Melton, under their disciplinary powers.

The challenge to members of the House and Senate holding reserve commissions was initiated by a group of noncongressional reservists who opposed the Vietnam war.

The Constitution says "no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either House during his continuance in office." U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell relied on this provision in one of the actions upholding a challenge to the practice.

The secretary of Defense Department and other defendants argued that the situation is governed by another section of the Constitution which says "each house shall be the judge of the ... qualifications of its own members."

Reserves are divided into "ready," "retired" and "standby" categories.

The Justice Department said in an appeal that 6 members, with the exception of active-status standby reservists who are subject to a 15-day call each year, stand on "virtually the same footing as all civilians."

They can be activated "only if Congress declares war or a national emergency," the appeal said.

The department argued that the group —known as Reservists Committee to Stop the War —had no standing to bring the suit. The rulings if not reversed will encourage other suits by citizens seeking to air particular grievances about the conduct of government, the appeal said.

Most of the representatives and senators named by the committee when the suit was filed were in the "no pay" classification. Those said to be receiving pay were Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and Sens. Hiram L. Fong, R-Hawaii; Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz.; Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla.; John J. Sparkman, D-Ala.; J. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.; and J. Caleb Boggs, R-Del.

Members of the House include Speaker Carl Albert and Reps. William G. Bray, R-Ind.; Cornelius E. Gallagher, D-N.J.; Charles R. Jonas, R-N.C.; G. V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D-Miss.; Bill Nichols, D-Ala.; Alexander Pirnie, R-N.Y.; and Louise C. Wyman, R-N.H.

Egyptian Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Saad Eddin Shazli said after the strategy talks in Cairo that despite the "progress" achieved at the meeting, there was no success in attempts aimed at reviving the Jordanian front against Israel.

Shazli said the Jordanian front, which collapsed when King Hussein expelled Palestinian guerrillas in September, 1970, "has not assumed satisfactory form yet, though more attempts will be made to revive it."

Sahzli said the meeting did not take up the Israeli commando April 10 raid on Beirut.

In other Middle East developments, the Italian newspaper Il Messaggero said Sunday a new peace initiative is being formulated based on the construction of a second Suez Canal.

Tribunal Handed Hot Issue On Richmond School Desegregation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court was told today during arguments in a major school case that white students in Richmond, Va., were freely allowed to transfer from the city into nearby counties purely to avoid desegregation.

In what may lead to a landmark decision affecting big city school across the nation, the Court was asked to uphold a district federal judge's desegregation order that ignored county-city political boundaries in the Richmond area.

Judge Robert R. Merhige Jr., in January 1972, ordered consolidation of the school boards of the city of Richmond and of adjacent Henrico and Chesterfield counties as the only means of ending racial isolation of the all-black inner ci ty schools.

The order has been held in abeyance pending Supreme Court appeal. The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals held Merhige's action invalid last June.

William T. Coleman, attorney for the NAACP Legal Defense Fund, argued before the Supreme Court that white children were allowed to move freely across the county lines into the rural, mostly white county systems when their city schools were ordered desegregated.

"It is only when it comes to desegregating schools that (school) districts all of a sudden become the most sacrosanct thing in the world," Coleman said.

Coleman and George B. Little, attorney for the Richmond school board which joined in an appeal in favor of consolidation, also argued that neither the city nor the county systems now meets the Supreme Court's desegregation standards, either individually or collectively.

They charged the state had maintained county lines as a barrier against correcting the imbalance in city schools — some all black —and county schools whose black enrollments never exceeded 5 per cent.

The case, because of the impact it may have on other metropolitan areas, has attracted wide interest and an overflow crowd of visitors waited outside in line for seats.

The arguments were heard by eight of the nine justices Associate Justice Lewis F Powell Jr., formerly a Richmond attorney, disqualified himself because he served on both the city and state school boards in the past.

THE EUCALYPTUS grove egret rookery and Samoa Bridge in Humboldt Bay near Eureka.

Highway Design Award Winners

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Projects designed by California engineers in state service have taken seven prizes in the latest U.S. Department of Transportation's competition for outstanding projects emphasizing the highway and its environment, says State Director of Public Works James A. Moe.

Moe said the California Department of Public Works has won three first, two second and two third place awards.

He pointed out that since the beginning of the national competition five years ago, the Department has taken more awards than any other state with a total of 14 firsts, five seconds, six thirds and an honorable mention. He said this is nearly a quarter of all awards and more than one-third of all first place awards offered by DOT during that time. "We feel this outstanding showing by California's engineers emphasizes our concern for the environmental effect of our highways program."

He added that it is also evidence of the sensitivity and technical skill of state highway engineers and designers to the whole problem of harmonizing construction with the environment.

Moe listed the current winners as follows:

The William M. Sell Bridge across the East Fork of the Chowchilla River on Highway 49 in Mariposa County. The cast-in-place, prestressed concrete box girder structure is the largest ever constructed in California. It was built on curving alignment with piers rising 160 feet above the canyon floor and produces a simple, light appearance that blends well with the surrounding terrain.

Preservation of the Egret Rookery during construction of the Samoa Bridge across Humboldt Bay on Highway 255 near Eureka. The bridge crosses the bay via two islands. The larger of these, Gunther Island, contains a grove of eucalyptus trees used by the local populace of American Egrets as a rookery. Design of the bridge was made to preserve the rookery and construction specifications carefully worked out so that the birds would not be disturbed during their nesting season. The large number of birds continuing to use the grove attests to the success of these measures.

The retaining wall of Interstate 280 Potrero Hill in San Francisco. Dubbed 'Babylon by the Bay" by both admirers and critics, this modern version of the famous hanging gardens of classical times was already a previous DOT prizewinner minus its greenery under a different category in 1971. The architecture of the landscaping, like the architecture of the wall itself, is a reflection of this cosmopolitan city.

SECOND PLACE

The Miramar Road Overcrossing on Interstate 805 in San Diego. Public Works projects are often impressive for their size or technical complexity. It is less common when a project also displays unquestionable esthetic qualities. Structures like the Miramar overcrossing should do much to increase demands for higher esthetic standards in public architecture.

The Grove-Shafter Freeway Park on Highway 24 in Oakland. The recently opened facility is located entirely within the freeway right of way. The project was one of the first and by far the most ambitious of this type ever taken under new legislation allowing for the joint use of right of way through lease agreements.

THIRD PLACE

A nine-mile section of scenic highway on Route 32 in the foothills of the Sierra Nevada east of Chico. This improved rural highway follows the top of a ridge providing panoramic views on both sides making it one of the most scenic drives in the state.

The Mission Bay Park on Interstate 5 in San Diego. This park displays an excellent solution to the use of the limited flat land in the San Diego area. The harmonizing design of the freeway and the landscape to the park serves multiple functions.

Moe said winners of former years include the section of Highway 88 over the Carson Pass for outstanding highway in a rural setting, the murals painted on the retaining wall on Interstate 210 in Duarte for outstanding example of landscape treatment, the Division of Highways maintenance station under the Intersate 10-405 interchange in Los Angeles for outstanding multiple use of highway right-of-way and the John Muir Parkway in Contra Costa County for outstanding preservation of historic sites.

THE CHARGE OF THE EGG BRIGADE

More than 500 eager, egg-hunting children, their faces aglow with Easter expectation, lapped San Rafael's Albert Park Saturday in search of four cases of candy eggs hidden by the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department, San Rafael Jaycees and Police Officers Association. A similar egg blitz was held near the Terra Linda Recreation Center on Saturday, according to Andrew J. Snyder, parks and recreation director.

Wildflower Show Finale Is Set

By GEORGE NEVIN

The Stinson Beach Magical Mystery Wildflower Caravan pulls out sometime this week, just as it has for the past 14 years, bound for the wildflower fields from the Oregon border to Mexico.

And just as in years past, three Stinson Beach women — Roberta Shockey, Anne E. Leary and Barbara Menzies — will crawl, stoop, bend, poke, probe and search for blossoms for the annual Stinson Beach wildflower show.

They'll drive dozens of dusty miles on potholed back roads, avoid border agricultural inspectors like the plague and look high (the Sierra Nevada) and low (the desert country) for flowering oddities and unusual plants to delight, educate and interest showgoers.

The women will return early next week, dump their booty in the Stinson Beach Community Center, site of the show May 5 and 6, then head out again for two more days.

On Friday, May 4, they'll attend to the last-minute details of arranging and identifying the more than 350 examples of native wildflowers and plants they expect to find, and the doors will swing open Saturday.

But after the show closes Sunday and all the flowers have been given to flower pressers and students, there will be no show to prepare for next year.

After 15 years, this is the finale, the last Stinson Beach Wildflower Show.

"We just wanted to quit while we're ahead," said Mrs. Shockey. "We didn't want the high quality and caliber of the show to decline."

"We'll just overwhelm everyone with the best flowers we've seen in our 15 years of doing the show," said Mrs. Leary.

The extraordinary winter and spring rains have resulted in the grandest display of wildflowers in 47 years in the Paso Robles area, she said.

On a scouting expedition two weeks ago, she said, "we drove all the way from McKittrick to Simmler (near Paso Robles) at five miles an hour, saying, 'Look at that, and look over there.' We couldn't believe our eyes."

Not only will the three women drive about 6,000 miles among them to gather blossoms, as in previous years, but two other helpers are expected to log an additional 1,800 miles.

Helen MacGavin and Gordon True Jr. will head out on their own to hit some of the spots that otherwise would be missed.

Looking back over 14 years of showgoing, Mrs. Leary and Mrs. Shockey said they couldn't have done it without the help of many others.

Thanks are due, they said, to botanist John Thomas Howell, curator emeritus of the California Academy of Science in San Francisco and author of "Marin Flora," especially for his help in identifying plants and flowers; Harriett Greene and Ruth Miller, who have collected tickets at many shows, and Mildred Sadler, who takes charge of refreshments.

The end of the Stinson Beach Wildflower Show doesn't mean that the three women expect to be idle from now on.

"We're planning another flower show July 13 and 14 for the Oakland Museum," said Mrs. Leary, "but that will be easy. We'll just collect the flowers and turn them in. No worries about labeling or arranging."

But that's not all they'll be doing. They said they'll be embarking on a campaign to get Marin road crews to spare roadside patches of wildflowers, now routinely mowed down.

And then there's a drive to halt the spread of three members of the pea family which literally are taking over Marin.

"You've heard of the eggplant that ate Chicago," said Mrs. Shockey. "Well, three plants — Scotch broom, genista and forse — are doing the same here."

The plants, which originated in Europe, were cultivated by Bay Area gardeners around the turn of the century, and literally escaped from back yards. They've been creeping across the landscape ever since.

Mrs. Shockey and Mrs. Leary, both of whom look far too kindly to hate anybody or anything, get quite heated when they talk about the three plants.

The most spectacular of the three is broom, with its bright yellow flowers, but genista definitely is the biggest problem in Marin, the women agree.

In case anyone doesn't know what broom looks like, sprigs of it, along with sprays of gorse and genista, will be on display at the wildflower show. Hours of the show are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

As in prior years, proceeds from the show will pay the women's car and lodging expenses, and the surplus will go toward building a retaining wall to keep part of the community center's patio from washing into a small creek.

One new wrinkle, a sign of the times, will be added to this year's show. A guard has been hired to protect the community center hall from break-ins during the show, not to prevent the flowers from being stolen but to prevent thefts of the valuable vases and dishes used in displays.

WILDFLOWER FAREWELL — Tending to wildflowers they view as good and evil, Roberta Shockey (left) and Anne E. Leary are about to embark on preparations for the last Stinson Beach Wildflower Show, May 5 and 6. While the poppies in the foreground measure up as colorful and essential in the roadside environment, the Scotch broom held by Mrs. Leary is considered by the women as a menace.

Mill Valley Play Group Sets Opener

"The Roar of the Greasepaint, the Smell of the Crowd," a musical comedy which "caricatures the game of life we all play," will open in Mill Valley in May.

The Anthony Newley-Leslie Bricusse play is the first offering of a new community theater group in Mill Valley, the Rainbow Players. It will be staged May 4-6, 11-13 and 18-20 at the Mill Valley Masonic Hall. Show times will be 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 3 p.m. Sundays.

The plot concerns the antics of Cocky, who hops about the stage on a huge board as he plays the game of life, sometimes winning and sometimes losing. Kristi La Bianca, will produce and direct the musical and play piano as well.

Playing the role of Cocky is Dr. F. Thomas Shipp of Larkspur. Other cast members are Mark O'Brian, Susan Mosher, Mark Shepherd and Jenny Shipp, all of Mill Valley; Donna Gubbins, Craig Sandison, Nancy MacLean and Susan Geary of San Francisco; Ginny Riddle, Terra Linda; Susan Baldwin, Larkspur; Dyan Stebbins, Berkeley, and Marla Burr, San Anselmo.

Choreographer for the dance numbers is James Piersall, head of the Mill Valley Ballet Center.

The Rainbow Players, formed in February as an offshoot of Heliotrope, a free university based in San Francisco, is composed of about 50 members, Mrs. LaBianca said. Their ages vary from 15 to 43.

Newcomers are welcome to join the players "no matter what they have to offer," she said. "We'll teach them what to do if they want to learn. We all encourage each other. We're noncompetitive."

IN THE MIDDLE — Dr. F. Thomas Shipp, who plays Cocky in the musical, "The Roar of the Greasepaint, the Smell of the Crowd," is harrassed both by Sir (Mark O'Brian) and the Kid (Donna Gubbins) as he tries to play the game of live by someone else's rules.

Some Things A Coach Just Can't Forget

OAKLAND — Golden State Warriors coach Al Attles will be trying to prove himself the world's best salesman tonight. His awesome task will be to convince the Warriors they are as good, if not better, than a team which beat them by 56 points only two days ago.

That's some idea to sell. If the Warriors lose tonight to the Lakers, which should very well be the case, the season is all over for them. Looking on the positive side, that means the team won't have to go back to Los Angeles and that in itself is something.

IT'S PRETTY HARD to say anything about a 126-70 game. The amazing thing was that it came when the Warriors were in a "must win" situation. Down 2-0 in the NBA's Western Conference finals, the Warriors would be coming out smoking, or so thought the 13,183 fans who had each plunked out $9 a ticket for the chance to sit in on Saturday night's action.

They got some of their money's worth for the first seven minutes or so. The score was tied at 12-all at the time, but then all kinds of silly things started happening. For every Warriors' shot that bounced off the rim, the Lakers would put one through the hoop. In no time the Lakers were ahead by 12 and things got progressively worse. By the time it had reached proportions of 114-62, Cazzie Russell and Fitz Williams were on the bench rocking with laughter, apparently telling jokes to each other. Since Fritz never got in the game, one in which even the ball boys were hoping to get into, it's a good bet his playing days with the Warriors are through.

AFTER IT WAS ALL over, Attles answered all the questions quietly, politely, although after a game like that all questions sound like stupid ones. What is the turning point in a game which really isn't a game? What do you say about a three-point play that puts a team down by 49 instead of 46? Normally a coach will say something about "forgetting" such a loss and trying to prepare for the next game. I think Attles will remember this one for the rest of his life.

"It's going to be very tough to forget this one," Attles said, putting his head back against the wall of the locker room. "You can't forget 75 rebounds, you can't forget shooting 23 per cent." The rebounds were those of the Lakers and the percentage, obviously, was that of the Warriors.

"THE BIGGEST single thing I'm bothered about is that they gave up," he said.

He said the Sunday schedule was going to call for the team to view the films of the game and then to engage in a normal practice session for tonight's game. Viewing that horror show should be enough punishment to last for years.

Lakers' coach Bill Sharman said he was going to discount the thing. "A game like that doesn't mean anything. They're a great team and we hope we don't let down," were his words on the subject. "They couldn't do anything right and we couldn't do anything wrong."

THE BEST part of Saturday night's show came at halftime when four members of the Berkeley Frisbee Group gave a demonstration of the art of frisbee tossing. Those little discs were flying all over the Oakland Arena and it was fantastic what those young men could make frisbees do. Behind the back and under the leg throws were sending frisbees all over the place.

One of the spectators at the game was USF guard John Boro, former Redwood cager who was seeing what not to do in basketball. He was doing some work for Sports Comm, a telegraph communications service, and it gave him the chance to see the game. Said Boro shaking his head, "It reminded me of that UCLA game when we got blown out so fast." The game John was talking about was played Jan. 19 in UCLA's Pauly Pavilion, the Bruins bombing the Dons, 92-64. The south rises again!

Warriors Seek To Salvage Pride Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) — Scenting a kill, Los Angeles Lakers coach Bill Sharman doesn't want his team to go "soft" on the Golden State Warriors tonight at 8 o'clock in their fourth playoff game for the National Basketball Association's Western Conference title.

Leading 3-0 in the best-ofseven series, the defending champion Lakers can advance to the NBA finals against either the New York Knicks or Boston Celtics with a victory.

The Knicks go into their fifth game of the playoffs Wednesday at Boston, needing only one more win to clinch the Eastern crown.

Los Angeles humiliated the Warriors by 56 points, 126-70, Saturday night to send a sellout crowd of 13,183 home disappointed and bewildered. But not Warrior guard Jeff Mullins.

"All we can do is attempt to salvage some pride," said Mullins. "You go out there Monday night playing it loose rather than tight because you have nothing to lose.

"Who knows? You might suddenly find that you're still in it."

Sharman kept telling his club to be aware of the old bugaboo overconfidence.

"We caught them on a cold night and these things happen," he said. "But I don't want us to get soft on the job here on Monday night."

Even Warrior center Nate Thurmond was embarrassed.

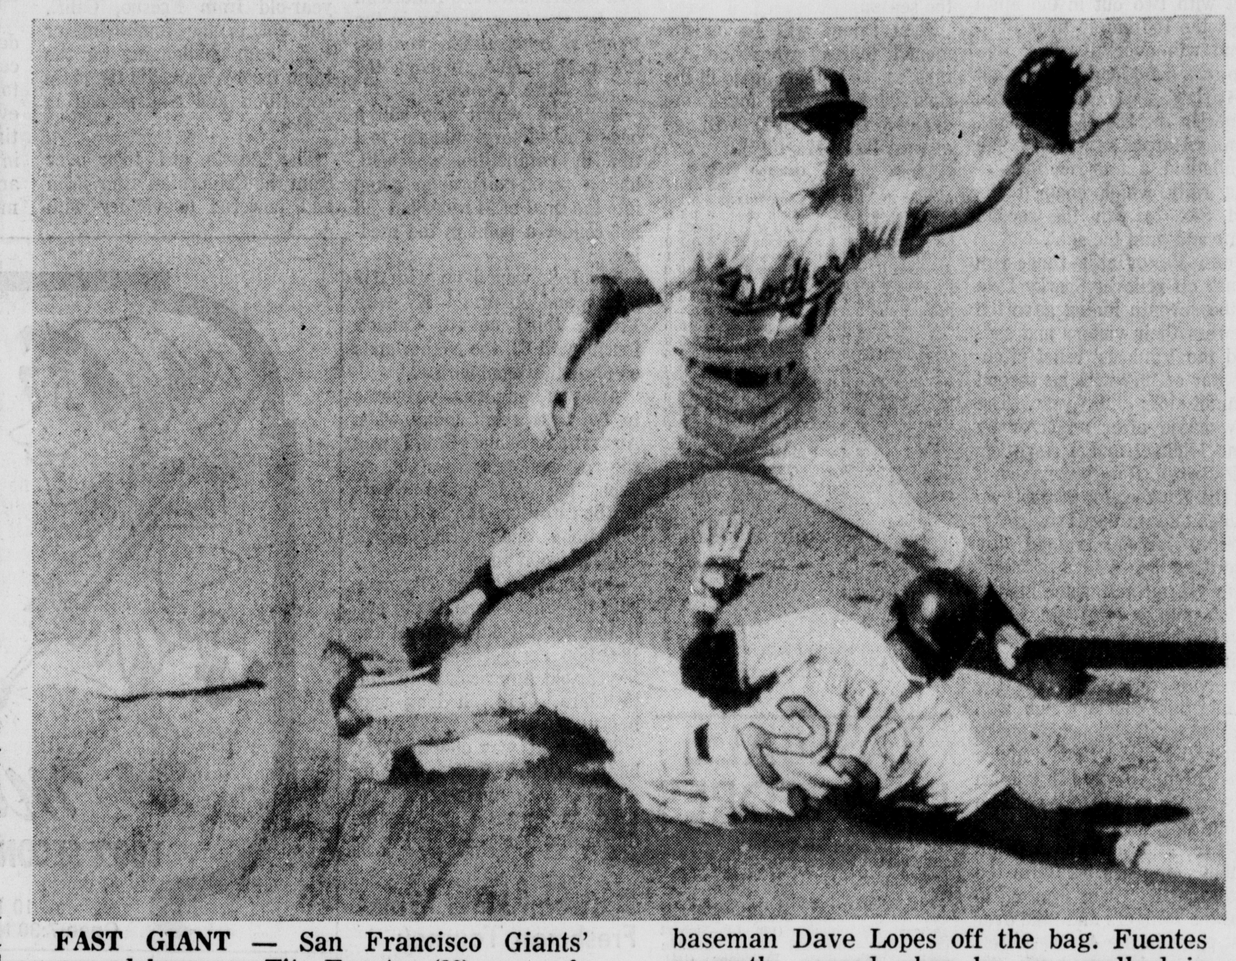
"I've never seen a thing like this happen before," he said. I've seen cold nights but not one where every man had a cold hand."

The 70 points totaled by the Warriors were the lowest in NBA playoff history since the introduction of the 24-second clock in the mid-fifties.

The victory may have been a costly one for the Lakers. Forward Jim McMillian, who topped all scorers with 28 points, strained ligaments in his knee late in the first quarter. And Keith Erickson suffered a twisted ankle when he bumped into teammate Wilt Chamberlain and fell.

Their availability for tonight's game will remain in doubt until game time.

Chamberlain, the Lakers' 7-2 center, has been an important factor in the Lakers success against the Warriors. He has hauled down 80 rebounds in three games, blocked nearly two dozen shots and cut off the middle on the Golden State forwards.



FAST GIANT — San Francisco Giants' second baseman Tito Fuentes (23) was safe at second base yesterday during the sixth inning in Los Angeles as the throw from Dodgers' catcher Joe Ferguson pulled second baseman Dave Lopes off the bag. Fuentes promptly scored when he was walked in from third by Los Angeles pitcher Andy Messersmith. The Giants, the National League Western Division leaders, won, 4-2.

Chicago Hosts Sizzling Giants

Combined AP & UPI

LOS ANGELES — Randy Moffitt, the relief ace of the red-hot San Francisco Giants and the brother of tennis star Billie Jean King, is asked more questions about tennis than about baseball.

"Yes," he said to inquiring newsmen after quelling a potential rally by the Los Angeles Dodgers for the second time in the series Sunday afternoon, "I do play a little tennis."

Moffitt of Mill Valley choked off a rally to preserve a 4-2 victory for Jim Barr as the Giants took three of the four games with their arch-rivals.

Both teams are idle today. The Giants, retaining a one-game lead over Cincinnati in the National League West, continue their trip Tuedsay in Chicago against the cubs.

Garry Maddox slammed a three-run homer, his first of the season, to provide the impetus for Barr's second triumph in three decisions.

Maddox discussed Sunday's game, in which he also had a double and a walk.

"I'm not trying to hit home runs this season," he insisted, "and when I do, it's strictly a mistake. We have Willie McCovey healthy so I've cut down on my swing and I'm just trying to meet the ball."

The Giants, who won a National League West Division flag in 1971 but then slipped to fifth last season, now have won 13 of their first 18 games. Meanwhile, the Dodgers are 7-10.

"Yeah, things have been going our way," Maddox agreed, "But we never beat these guys easy. They're always tough for us."

Joe Ferguson homered for Los Angeles, his fourth. He's now collected 18 hits of which 10 have gone for extra bases.

But it came down to the eighth inning with San Francisco leading 4-1. Dave Lopes and pinch hitter Steve Garvey led off with singles, only the fifth and sixth hits off of Barr.

Manager Charlie Fox immediately went for Moffitt, who three nights ago pitched out of a similar jam with two hitless innings.

Moffitt, 24 got out of trouble with two infield outs and a pop up although one run scored.

"I like the pressure of relieving," said the native of Long Beach, Calif. "I started out as a starter in the minors, went to long relief, then short relief. That's how I got to the majors.

"My best pitches are my fast ball and my sinker."

Dave Kingman started at third base for the Giants in place of Ed Goodson, who sufferred a pulled groin muscle Saturday night. Goodson is hitting .393.

Marin 'Cats' Cronin Hurls A No-Hitter

SOQUEL — Since Tom Cronin's parents came all the way to Santa Cruz County to watch him play baseball, he couldn't very well disappoint them, so he pitched a no-hitter Saturday morning as Marin Catholic High School defeated Marello of Santa Cruz, 3-0.

The victory gave the Wildcats seventh place in the Soquel Boosters baseball tournament.

Cronin, a junior right-hander, struck out 12 and allowed only two baserunners — one on a walk on a 3-and-1 pitch in the second inning, the other on an error in the seventh.

"He was mixing 'em (his pitches) up pretty well, and he was throwing the ball right by people," said 'Cat coach Dave Gonsalves. "They only hit two balls to the outfield off him."

Shortstop Layne Cozza made what Gonsalves called "a super play" in the second inning as he dove to knock down a line drive up the middle, picked the ball up and threw the batter out at first.

It was the first varsity no-hitter for Cronin, who pitched one on the freshman team two years ago. He is 5-2 this year with one save.

Marin Catholic scored in the second inning when Cozza tripled and came home when the relay throw bounced away, and added two more runs in the fourth on an error by Marello's second baseman.

Cronin's parents were part of a contingent of Marin Catholic fans estimated by Gonsalves at "20 or 30."

A's Kubiak Proves Worth In Victory Over Angels

Combined AP & UPI

OAKLAND — Switch hitting Ted Kubiak of the Oakland A's would rather bat left-handed. Sometimes he doesn't get a choice.

He had to bat right-handed Sunday and came through with a 10th inning single that gave the A's a 3-2 victory over the California Angels.

"I have more confidence when I bat left-handed," Kubiak said. He went into the game with a .263 average from the left side and only .143 from the right.

"I was looking for a good pitch to hit, just to get the run home," he said.

Kubiak took a strike then hit relief pitcher Ron Perronoski's next pitch to left field to score Angel Mangual with the winning run.

That ended a strategy battle in which Oakland manager Dick Williams outfoxed Bobby Winkles of the Angels.

"We had the situation we wanted," Winkles said. "We didn't want to change pitchers because Oakland would have used a pinch hitter. We wanted Kubiak to hit right-handed."

Williams stayed with Kubiak as his batter because he knew the Angels would change pitchers if he didn't.

The victory went to Horacio Pina 2-1, who took over for Catfish Hunter in the eighth inning.

Hunter failed to finish for the fourth game in a row, but Williams said it was his best effort of the year.

"He was great," Williams said. "I wanted a lefthander to pitch in the eighth inning and that's why I took him out."

Darold Knowles came in to pitch and gave up a single to pinch hitter Billy Grabarkewitz and that's when Pina came in to pitch. He struck out Frank Robinson to end the inning.

Nolan Ryan went the first 8⅔ innings for the Angels. He struckout nine but allowed 10 hits.

"I didn't have the velocity on my fast ball and didn't know where my curved ball was going," Ryan complained. It was the first time this season he failed to win and complete a game.

"He's a super pitcher," Williams said. "It was a game neither team deserved to lose."

The A's almost won it in the ninth inning but Lee Stanton leaped above the fence in right field to take a grand slam

Touch Of Fate In Lee-Jack Battle

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino each won six tournaments to qalify for the mony tournament of Champions and it seemed like fate they should end up on the last day in a duel for the $40,000 first prize.

Nicklaus had a two-stroke lead going into the fourth and final round Sunday and Trevino caught and passed him once on the 'back nine but he couldn't make it stick.

Trevino had a string of five birdies on the eighth through the 12th holes with a pair of 25-foot putts, one 15-footer, a 12-footer and a three-footer. But he bogeyed the 13th when he missed a three-footer and Nicklaus got away from him.

Nicklaus put the clincher on with a five-foot putt for a bird on the 15th hole and parred in for a 68. Trevino was one stroke better with a 67 but still one short for 72 holes and settled for second money of $23,404.

Nicklaus had rounds of 70-70-68-68—276, 12 under par for the La Costa Country Club course. Trevino shot 68-71-71-67—277.

Trevino ran his career earnings to $985,138. The first prize would have given him million-

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Orioles' Williams Belts Ball, Gives Team Punch

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Joe Coleman has a 4-0 record for the Detroit Tigers, Orlando Cepeda has hit five homers for the Boston Red Sox and Jim Ray Hart is hitting .667 for the New York Yankees but the most significant statistic in the American League East may be Earl Williams' five homers in six games for the Baltimore Orioles.

Acquired from the Atlanta Braves in a winter trade that wasn't too popular with Baltimore fans, Williams is on a tear of five homers in his last six games and appears to be giving the Orioles the punch which they lacked last season while finishing third in the AL East.

Williams hit a two-run homer off Jim Perry to produce a 2-2 tie between the Orioles and Tigers Sunday and Baltimore went on to win the game, 5-3, with the help of Mike Cuellar's four-hit pitching and a three-base error by left-fielder Willie Horton. Horton's error came in the sixth inning when the Orioles scored three runs to take a lead they never lost.

The Red Sox beat the Cleveland Indians, 5-2, after an 8-7 loss, the Milwaukee Brewers shaded the Yankees, 4-3, the Kansas City Royals downed the Chicago White Sox, 6-1, after losing the opener, 8-4, the Oakland A's nipped the California Angels, 3-2, and the Minnesota Twins scored a 6-4 triumph over the Texas Rangers in other AL games.

In the National League, it was Philadelphia over St. Louis, 4-2 and 2-1, Montreal 2 New York 1 and New York 13 Montreal 3, Chicago 11-3 over Pittsburgh after a 10-4 loss, San Francisco 4 Los Angeles 2, Houston 4 San Diego 3 and Cincinnati 6 Atlanta 3.

"I don't have a homer-hitting formula," said Williams after the game. "If I did I'd sell it. I wasn't worried when I heard the Baltimore park isn't a hitter's park because I know when you hit a ball good it's going to go out no matter where you play. It's true my homers came in streaks and that this is a very fast start for me."

"He's won two games for us with homers," said Manager Earl Weaver, noting that lack of home run power contributed to the four-time AL champions' third-place finish in the AL East last season. "He's hit five of the nine homers we've hit, leads the club in RBIs and hasn't made an error yet."

Horton, who doubled in Al Kaline to give the Tigers a 3-2 lead in the sixth inning, let Don Baylor's single go through him in the bottom of the frame in which the Orioles scored three runs. Cueller, 1-2, yielded four hits, struck out three and walked three.

Ron Lolich's grand slam homer off reliever Sonny Siebert with two out in the ninth lifted the Indians to their first-game win over the Red Sox, who took a 7-4 lead with the aid of Carl Yastrzemski's two-run homer in the top of the inning. Tommy Harper's two-run single highlighted a four-run fifth-inning rally which enabled the Red Sox to win the second game and gain the split.

John Vukovich's three-run homer off reliever Sparky Lyle in the seventh inning gave the Brewers their victory and saddled the Yankees' relief pitching star of 1972 with his second straight loss this year. The blow came after an error by Gene Michael and a single by Ollie Brown. Ray Newman shut out the Yankees for the last two innings to earn the save.

Wilbur Wood raised his record to 3-2 behind a 13-hit White Sox attack which included four hits by John Jeter and a key two-run double by Chuck Brinkman plus a three-run homer by Carlos May as the hard-hitting Chicago club won the first game. Two run-scoring doubles by Steve Hovley and a run-scoring double by John Mayberry gave the Royals the victory in the nightcap.

Steve Braun's bases-filled double snapped a 2-2 tie in the sixth and the Twins went on to beat the Rangers and take over first place in the AL West. Jeff Burroughs homered for the Rangers and Harmon Killebrew connected for the Twins.

Nicklaus' golf earnings now are $1,849,769. Nicklaus leads in the yearly money race with $146,064 while Trevino remains second with $125,715.

The 21st annual T of C ended up as a two-man show but the 29 other entrants took home a lot of money, too. Jim Colbert, Kansas City, Kan., took third place at 281, five shots back of Nicklaus and four back of Trevino, and won $14,628. He had a final round 69.

Chi Chi Rodriguez, the amiable Puerto Rican, took fourth place with 69—282 and won $9,384.

Five players were tied for fifth and each won $6,921 for 285 totals. They were Lanny Watkins (70), DeWitt Weaver (71), J.C. Snead (73), Jim Jamieson (71) and Bruce Crampton (74).

Defending champion Bobby Mitchell, who beat Nicklaus in a playoff last year, finished in a tie for 16th with 76—292 and won $4,091. Arnold Palmer, who has won this tournament three times, was in contention for two rounds but slipped and finished with 75—293 in a tie for 19th, and won $3,646.

No one in the field of 31 went away empty handed. The last man, Bob Shaw, an Australian, shot 75—302 and won $2,000.

WHA Playoff Losers Outshoot Winners

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The New England Whalers and Houston Aeros took the most shots on goal in Sunday's two World Hockey Association playoff games but the Cleveland Crusaders and Winnipeg Jets came away with the victories.

The Whalers hammered 36 shots at Cleveland goalie Gerry Cheevers but only two of them got past the pudgy netminder while the Crusaders connected on five of their 33 shots to post a 5-2 victory. The win was the first in four games for the Crusaders and moved the semi-final series back to Boston for a fifth game Thursday night.

Houston fired 28 shots at Winnipeg goalie Ernie Wakely but Wakely was more than equal to the task as he blanked the Aeros and helped the Jets, who took 27 shots, score a 2-0 victory and take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series. Game No. 3 will be played Tuesday night in Houston.

Gary Jarrett tallied three of Cleveland's five goals and Ron Buchanan notched the other two to help the Crusaders avoid elimination in four straight games. The Crusaders took a 2-1 lead in the first period on Buchanan's goals, which were sandwiched around Tim Sheehy's fifth goal of the series for the Whalers.

Jarrett's first tally was the only goal of the second period but New England reduced the margin to 3-2 on a score by Larry Pleau at 1:16 of the third period. Jarrett then scored two more goals from near the crease to ice the victory for the Crusaders.

Dunc Rousseau scored on a rebound with less than five minutes left to play in regulation time to snap a scoreless deadlock and Norm Beaudin fired a shot into an open Houston net in the final minute of play to give Winnipeg its victory.

Rousseau's goal was set up when linemate Milt Black dug the puck out of the corner and fed Larry Hornung at the blue line. Houston goalie Don McCloud was down when Rousseau got the rebound, stepped back, and pumped a shot high into the Aeros' net.

The insurance goal came when Chris Bordeleau blocked a shot at the Winnipeg blue line and sent it ahead to Beaudin. The Jets' rightwinger skated into the Aero zone and fired the puck into the net which McCloud had vacated for a sixth attacker.

Suburban Splits 2 With Vallejo Team

The Suburban Auto Pistons of San Rafael scored three runs in the sixth inning Saturday night on consecutive singles by Greg Schaefer, Dennis Staub and Jess Munyon and repelled Wilson-Russell Ford of Vallejo, 5-1, en route to a split of a softball doubleheader at Albert Field.

Wilson-Russell's Rich Balswick hit a three-run homer and pitched a no-hitter for 6⅔ innings until Phil Gambucci's single as the visitors won the second game, 4-0.

Lacrosse Results

The Church of Latter Day Saints (2-2) defeated Novato Parks and Recreation (2-4) Saturday, 8-7, in a Northern California Lacrosse Association junior league game at Novato High.

homer away from Reggie Jackson.

The A's put together the inning rally in the 10th inning on a two-out walk to Mangual, a single by Ray Fosse and Kubiak's single.

Both California runs came on homers. Bobby Valentine hit one in the sixth inning and Tommy McCraw tied the score with another leading off the ninth inning against Pina.

Sal Bando homered for Oakland's first run, his fourth of the season.

John Odom will be on the mound tonight when the A's take on the Angels again in the final game of their four-game series. Odom (0-2) will go against Rudy May (0-1).

Redwood Nine Wins Freshman Tourney

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO — Redwood High School's freshman baseball team Saturday won the championship of the Westborough Easter tournament by defeating Southwood of South San Francisco in the title game, 11-6, as Dave Hoffmire went three for four and drove in four runs.

Redwood placed left fielder Chuck Hall and infielder-pitcher Hank Kasprzak on the all-tournament team. The Giants reached the finals by beating Sacred Heart of San Francisco, 19-1, and Marin Catholic, 5-2.

Weekend Hours Set For Tennis Cards

Sausalito residents unable to obtain tennis court reservation cards during weekdays will be able to do so this Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. at the Department of Public Works office, 530 Nevada Street, city tennis director John Minton announced today.

The office will continue to be open weekdays from 10:30 a.m.-3 p.m. to accept applications, Minton added.

Weekend Swim Fatal For Former 49er

BIG SUR, Claif. (UPI) — Harold Ledyard, 41, quarterback with the San Francisco 49ers in 1953, drowned during the weekend while vacationing here with his wife.

Authorities said Ledyard, now of Winnipeg, Canada, drowned while swimming at Pfeiffer Beach.

200 MEDLEY VICTORY

Rick Colella Leads U.S. To One-Point Swim Win

LONDON (UPI) — The United States snatched victory by a single point over Australia today with a win by Rick Colella of Seattle, Wash., in the final event of the Coca Cola International swim meet.

Colella, who with his sister Lyn spearheaded the American bid for the team trophy in the 18-nation competition, won the 200 meter medley to edge the U.S. past the Aussies.

Australia, which also had a one-point victory margin last time the competition was held, had a seven-point edge going into the final of 24 races but did not collect a point in the medley.

The U.S. wound up with 118 points and Australia 117 with Britain third on 86, Canada fourth with 63, the Netherlands on 57 and Sweden with 47.

America had an early reverse in the first event today when Australia's Shane Gould won the 800 women's freestyle, an event the U.S. hoped Keena Rothhammer, the Olympic Champion and world record-holder, would win.

Australia's triple Olympic gold medalist Shane Gould collected her third victory at the 18-nation competition with the 16-year-old American from Santa Clara, Calif., a long way back.

The event was one the U.S. badly wanted to win in its struggle with Australia for the team trophy after starting the day with a four-point lead.

Miss Gould, who was second to Miss Rothhammer in the 800m at Munich, clocked nine minutes 1.8 seconds — nearly eight seconds outside the American's Olympic and world record — but won easily.

Heather Greenwood, a 15-year-old from Fresno, Calif., but not in the four-swimmer U.S. team challenging for the team trophy, provided the main opposition and was second in 9:04.9.

The Aussie girl took over from the Californian after 400m and powered to victory with Miss Rotthammer struggling home in 9:23.4.

The tremendous strength of American sprint swimming was emphasized in the mens 100m freestyle when the top six places all went to U.S. entries. None were in the "official" team.

Ken Knox of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., the American short course champion, clocked 51.7 to win and post the fastest time ever seen in Great Britain. His time made him the third fastest in the world behind the legendary Mark Spitz whose world mark is 51.22.

He had nearly five meters in hand over Stan Carper of Portland, Oregon in his heat with Rick Klatt of Albuquerque, N.M., clocking 53.1 in another heat to steal second place overall. Carper placed third with 53.2.

In the 200m freestyle Heather Greenwood reversed the 800m placings and handed Shane Gould her first defeat of the meeting by winning in 2:06.4.

Miss Gould clocked 2:06.7, more than three seconds outside her world and Olympic gold medal mark, with Keena Rothhammer again below par when finishing fifth in 2:08.8.

Miss Greenwood held a two meter lead at the halfway stage and just held on to a fingertip advantage as the Aussie blonde whittled away the deficit on the last length. Shirley Babashoff of Fountain Valley, Calif., was third in 2:08.0.

San Marin On Redwood Track

San Marin High School will be seeking the inside track to its first Marin County Athletic League track and field championship Friday when it visits Redwood at 3:30 p.m. for a dual meet.

If the Mustangs (5-0) defeat Redwood (4-1), they need only get past Drake the following week for an undefeated season and an undisputed title. Should Redwood win, however, the Giants, Mustangs and possibly Terra Linda will have one defeat and a championship tie will be probable.

In tennis, the MCAL playoffs will be held Saturday beginning at 8 a.m. at College of Marin to determine the league's top doubles team for the North Coast Section tournament May 5.

In swimming, Redwood (10-1) is expected to clinch the undisputed title at Novato tomorrow at 4 p.m. The MCAL championships in diving will be held Thursday and swimming Friday at College of Marin, top finishers advancing up the ladder to subsequent regional meets.

In golf, contenders Redwood (4-0) and Novato (3-1) were to meet today at Peacock Gap, while San Rafael (3-1) and Terra Linda (4-0) will clash tomorrow at Marin Country Club.

The first half of the baseball season will conclude tomorrow with first-place Redwood (6-0) and second-place San Rafael (5-1) meeting Marin Catholic and Terra Linda, respectively.

Exiled Ugandan Wins Car Race

Combined AP & UPI

NAIROBI — Exiled Uganda businessman Shekhar Mehta today won the closest fought east African Safari Auto Rally in recent history after an unprecedented points tie with Harry Kallstrom of Sweden.

Mehta and Kallstrom finished with 406 points apiece. But according to rally rules, Mehta won the individual title because he had fewer penalty points through the first three checkpoints in the event. The organizers said the tie on points was unprecedented.

Shekhar, who reached Nairobi first of the 21 cars that finished, led Kallstrom by one penalty point at the checkered flag but dropped one during scrutineering to finish even with the Swedish rally driver.

More Auto Racing

IRWINDALE, Calif. — Don Dieckman, a 22-year-old drag racer from Long Beach, Calif., was killed Saturday when his "funny car" hit a guard rail and disintegrated before 15,000 spectators at the Irwindale Raceway.

Track officials said Dieckman was running a poor second to another car in the first race of the night when his vehicle began drifting toward the left guard rail about 500 feet from the starting line. He suffered massive head injuries and was dead on arrival at Santa Teresita Hospital.

Baseball

ATLANTA — Relief specialist Cecil Upshaw wasn't surprised when the Atlanta Braves sent him packing Saturday to the Houston Astros.

"I've had the feeling since spring training that I would be traded. It was just a matter of the right deal coming along," said the 30-year-old Upshaw.

The Braves sent Upshaw to Houston for 27-year-old reserve outfielder Norm Miller and a player to be named later.

Golf

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Hubert Green, who decided to stop letting things get him down, had his decision sorely tested yesterday before winning the $75,000 Tallahassee Open Golf Tournament.

Green went into the final round with a one-stroke lead and, playing steadily, increased it to three strokes over Rookie John Simon. But, on the 17th hole, he took a bogey and Simon birdied, leaving them but a stroke apart again.

Refusing to let things bother him, he played carefully through the remaining two holes. On the 18th, he took his par and then watched Simons' six-foot birdie putt lip the cup and roll away.

Green finished with a one-under-par 71 for an 11-under-par total of 277. Simons' 70 gave him a 278.

Tennis

TOKYO — Toshiro Sakai today upset three-time Wimbledon singles champion John Newcombe 8-6, 6-4, 4-6, 0-6, 6-3 to prevent Australia from making a 5-0 sweep over Japan in the Davis Cup Eastern Zone semifinals.

Malcolm Anderson scored his second victory by defeating Japan's top player Jun Kamiwazumi 4-6, 4-6, 6-4, 8-6 in the second of the anti-climactic reverse singles before a small crowd of 2,000 at the Denen Coliseum Clay Courts.

Australia won the semifinals yesterday when Newcombe and Geoff Masters defeated Sakai and Kamiwazumi in the doubles 6-4, 7-5, 6-4 for an unbeatable 3-0 lead in the best of five competition.

Australia will now meet India in the final round.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Australia's Margaret Court overcame a sluggish start yesterday to defeat Rosemary Casals of Sausalito in three sets and win $6,000 first prize in the Jacksonville Invitational Tennis Tournament.

"I feel I am very fortunate to have won," Mrs. Court said after her 5-7, 6-3, 6-1 victory that boosted her earnings to $83,000 this year.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Chris Evert yesterday overcame a shaky second set to defeat Australian Evonne Goolagong, 6-2, 0-6, 6-4, for the $5,000 first prize in the St. Petersburg Masters Tennis Tournament.

The check boosted earnings for the high school senior from Fort Lauderdale to $41,000 since she turned pro in January.

Horse Racing

NEW YORK — Angle Light, $2.60, Saturday won the $114,000 Wood Memorial by a head over Sham as the highly-regarded Secretariat, an entry with Angle Light, finished a soundly beaten third, four lengths back.

ALBANY, Calif. — Linda's Chief, $2.60, opened a 10-length lead Saturday and hung on to win the $123,500 California Derby at Golden Gate Fields by three-quarters of a length over Easy Ern.

Frazier Steers Knicks To Win

NEW YORK (UPI) — Walt Frazier had a license to drive in the fourth quarter and he steered the New York Knicks to a double overtime victory over the Boston Celtics.

Trailing by 16 points in the fourth session and Frazier having anything but a hot hand, Coach Red Holzman "gave Frazier license to take his man one-on-one" and the strategy started a Knick rally that beat Boston, 117-110, Sunday for a 3-1 lead in their National Basketball Association semifinal playoff series.

"With both Jo Jo White and Frazier having five fouls, it was to our advantage to have Walt play that way," Holzman said. Then, shrugging, he added "if it didn't work, so you lose."

Frazier scored a game-high 37 points, but it was in the fourth period that he turned the contest around as he netted 15 points, including a basket with 17 seconds left that tied the game at 89-all after regulation time.

"When we were down by 16, I was already thinking ahead to Wednesday," said Frazier, "but suddenly everything seemed to jell."

Bill Bradley said of Frazier: "Down the stretch, Clyde was 10 feet off the ground all the way."

Boston played a fantastic defensive game to make up for the absence of injured John Havlicek, out with torn muscles in his right shoulder. The injury may keep Hondo out of Wednesday night's game in Boston, too, and allow New York to clinch the series. If a sixth game is needed, it will be played here Friday night.

Havlicek said the Celtics were up for the game and there was no overconfidence when Boston held the 16-point lead in the fourth quarter.

"We've all seen teams come back from 16 points and win," Havlicek said. "To get that lead requires a great deal of defense. But sometimes the momentum swings the other way and that's what happened in this case.

"Our guys played an incredible game. Everyone tightens his bootstraps in a playoff situation and they were up for this one."

The Knicks, in turn, praised rookie John Gianelli, who filled in brilliantly when Williis Reed picked up his sixth foul. Gianelli scored four key points in the second overtime period and drew Dave Cowens into his sixth personal with 1:45 remaining. White fouled out a minute later and the Boston attack was throughly destroyed. White scored 34 points in the game and Cowens had 33.

"I think Gianelli did it in the end, when he blocked a key shot and then drew the foul on Cowens," Frazier said warmly.

Zwieg Injures Leg, Defaults Net Match

John Zwieg of Greenbrae, who was ahead at the time, was forced to default due to a leg injury Saturday in his first-round match in the 29th Northern California Sectionals tennis tournament in San Francisco's Golden Gate Park.

Zwieg took the first set from former University of California star Paul Wells, 6-3, despite the injury. He lost the second, 5-7, but was winning the third, 5-3 and 40-15, when he fell heavily and could not continue.

Baseball Leagues To Play Tomorrow

Petaluma Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park, St. Vincent of Petaluma and Tomales High Schools will resume league baseball action tomorrow (after a week's holiday respite) in a second-place tie, but not with each other.

Petaluma (3-1) is tied with Ukiah in the North Bay League, one-half game behind Napa's streaking Indians (4-1). Tomorrow the Trojans host the Ukiah Wildcats to complete the first round of league action, and then Friday travel to Napa to face the Vintage Crushers, whom they edged 8-7, in the first round.

Rancho Cotate (3-2) is tied with El Molino in the Sonoma County League, one-game behind co-leaders Piner of Santa Rosa and Healdsburg (4-1). Tomorrow the Cougars complete first round league play at El Molino in Forestville, and then Friday host Piner, which beat them, 1-0, in the first round.

St. Vincent and Tomales (3-1) are tied in the North Central League, one-half game behind the undefeated Kelseyville Indians (3-0). Tomorrow the two schools finish the first round of league competition with St. Vincent venturing to Kelseyville and the Braves hosting Upper Lake. Friday both are on the road with the Mustangs at Upper Lake and Tomales at Point Arena.

HOUSEBOAT BLAZE — Flames whip across second floor of Sausalito houseboat from which two women leaped into Richardson Bay Saturday to safety. Flames and black smoke could be seen for miles and attracted hundreds of spectators. The fire spread from the second floor into the lower level, burning the boat to the waterline and causing damage to a second houseboat docked nearby.

Two Women Plunge Into Bay To Escape Blaze

Two women jumped into Richardson Bay from the second floor of a houseboat Saturday to escape a fire which burned the houseboat to the waterline at Gate 6, Waldo Point.

Nancy Hill, tenant of the upper floor, and her guest, Susan Hill, made the leap to safety. Susan Hill was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut foot.

Fireman William Lewis of Marin County Fire department, was treated at the same hospital for a cut middle finger on his right hand, received from breaking glass, according to Marin County Fire Department reports.

The fire, which could be seen for miles, attracted a crowd of about 200 spectators, but they did not interfere with the fire departments, county firemen reported.

Damge was estimated at $18,000 to the boat owned by Daniel Lombos of San Francisco and $800 to another nearby houseboat owned by David Wolfe of San Rafael.

Cause of the fire, which engulfed the houseboat, was not known. The boat was completely in flames when firemen arrived after receiving the call at 6:17 p.m., firemen reported. The fire was under control at 7:21 p.m.

The county fire department had three engines and eight men fighting the fire. Tamalpais Valley fire department sent one engine and two men; Sausalito sent two engines and six men and Tiburon fire department sent one engine and two men to fight the fire.

More Gas Seeping Into Town

WILLIAMSBURG, Mich. (UPI) — State and local officials intensified efforts today to guard against a possible explosion of volatile gas seeping from craters that have pockmarked this community.

The local Red Cross chapter planned to set up facilities on the outskirts of town to aid the approximately 50 families routed from their homes after the gas and mud filled geysers began erupting Wednesday night. State authorities completed standby arrangements to insure adequate firefighting manpower and equipment for any possible emergency use.

Meanwhile, Amoco Production Co., a subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana which is being blamed for the craters, said it planned to begin drilling shallow relief holes to ease gas pressure today. State geologists theorize the craters were caused by a natural gas leak during oil drilling in the area.

A similar proposal to drill Saturday was rejected by the Michigan Natural Resources Department because of the high concentration of the potentially volatile gas.

Seven new geysers were discovered during the weekend about three miles west of the community, which was described as "virtually evacuated" by a Grand Traverse County sheriff's deputy Sunday night.

Phones and electrical service were shut off from the area where gas concentration was heaviest and cars were banned from the area.

R.B. Le Fever, Amoco district production superintendent, said although "no gas was evident" at two of the six company wells in the area, his company has learned the location of core holes drilled for geological purposes in the area several years ago.

Judge Succumbs

ALAMEDA (UPI) — Alameda Superior Court Judge Frederick M. Van Sicklen died Sunday. He was 62.

Officer's Atrocity Charge Said Untrue

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lt. Col. Anthony Herbert, who says the Army failed to investigate a series of atrocities reported by him in Vietnam, has been accused by a CBS News producer of making unsubstantiated charges against the military.

Barry Lando, a producer for CBS-TV's "60 Minutes," said Herbert's accusations were not supported either by factual evidence or statements of colleagues who served with him in Vietnam. Lando's claim appeared in the May issue of the Atlantic Monthly, which was released Sunday.

Herbert, the most highly decorated enlisted man in the Korean War, has reiterated his own claims in the book," Soldier." Herbert contends that he witnessed several atrocities on Feb. 14, 1969, and reported them that day to his commanding officer, Col. J. Ross Franklin.

Herbert says when he got no satisfaction from Franklin, he then reported them to Gen. John Barnes, the brigade commander, but that neither man took any action. Herbert also claims he was told to drop the matter, and that when he did not he was forced to retire from the Army.

The Army claims Franklin was on R & R (rest and recreation) in Hawaii on Feb. 14 and did not return to Vietnam until Feb. 16, two days after Herbert says he reported the war crimes.

Lando said in the course of his own investigation Franklin gave CBS a canceled check for a bill at the Illiai Hotel in Honolulu, indicating he was in Hawaii on Feb. 14.

"We went all over the country following (Herbert's) leads, but when it came to critical facts, the people he had told us would support his claims just did not," wrote Lando. "After talking with scores of men who had known Herbert in Vietnam, many of whom still admire him, we could not find a single person who believed that Herbert had been relieved (of command) for trying to get war crimes investigated."

Marin Musical Group To Give College Concert

Banana and the Bunch, a group of West Marin musicians, will appear at 8 p.m. Friday at the College of Marin's Fine Arts Theater.

The group's music has been described by critics as "a good strong sound."

Leader is Lowell (Banana) Levinger, composer, guitarist, pianist, pedal steel, mandolin, banjo, cowbell and glockenspielist. He is a former member of the Youngbloods group, as is bassist Michael Kane.

The other members are singing saxophonist Jack Bonus and David Getz, the drummer for the old Big Brother and the Holding Company.

Inmate Is Stabbed Twice

A San Quentin inmate, serving six concurrent sentences, was stabbed yesterday in the south cell block.

Larry D. Walters, 36, was stabbed once in the abdomen and once in the left chest. He was in good condition today in the prison hospital, according to Lee DeBord, information officer.

Prison officials are questioning one suspect in the stabbing which occurred at 5:35 p.m., DeBord said.

Walters was first sentenced in October, 1967 to six months to five years for conspiracy to commit petty theft in San Diego County. He was sentenced to five additional terms of six months up to 15 years for escaping from Rupert Crittenden Center in Oakland, and forgery, forging public seals, burglary and receiving stolen property in Los Angeles County, DeBord said.

This is the 15th stabbing this year at San Quentin.

ALMANAC

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Monday, April 23, the 113th day of 1973 with 252 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn.

English dramatist and poet William Shakespeare was born April 23, 1564.

On this day in history:

In 1898, the U.S. government asked for 125,000 volunteers to fight against Spain in Cuba.

In 1917, almost every performer stepped forward at a mass rally in New York City when asked to volunteer to entertain the troops overseas in World War I.

In 1941, thousands attending an "America First" rally in New York City heard Charles Lindbergh say: ". . . it is obvious that England is losing the war." The noted aviator opposed American entry into the conflict.

In 1965, more than 200 U.S. planes struck North Vietnam in one of the biggest raids of the war.

A thought for the day: Roman poet Horace said, "The brief span of life forbids us to cherish a long hope."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, light air pollution.
Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, light air poliution.
San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Pastor Gladly Eats On Roof

KENOVA, W.Va. (UPI) — Rev. Carl H. Hartman ate his dinner on the rooftop of the Poplar Street Church of God Sunday, keeping a vow he made last September.

The 30-year-old minister promised his congregation if Sunday School attendance ever reached 150, he would eat his dinner on the rooftop.

Easter Sunday drew 153 worshippers and Hartman climbed up on the roof and dug into a dinner made up of a hamburger-rice dish, salad, homemade biscuits soaked in butter and a soft drink.

Injured Deer Has To Be Killed

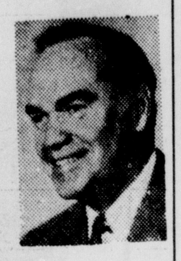
A deer that had been hit by a car on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Greenbrae, had to be shot, on Friday at 8 p.m., reported Larkspur Police department.

The badly injured animal was found lying on the sidewalk 100 yards from the La Cuesta Drive intersection.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Urine Test Tablets Can Cause Severe Stricture Of Esophagus



Clinitest tablets tell the diabetic whether there is sugar in the urine. The tablet is dropped in a given amount of urine, and color changes indicate a positive or negative response. These tablets are widely used, but some people make the mistake of storing them in the medicine cabinet with other drugs. This is dangerous, because the tablets contain 38 per cent sodium hydroxide which, if swallowed, is very caustic to the wall of the esophagus. The result can be likened to ingesting lye.

A case in point was recently reported by Dr. R. J. Payten in the British Medical Journal. An 82-year-old woman with poor vision swallowed a Clinitest tablet beliving it was aspirin. Soon after severe burning pain developed behind the breastbone.

THE DISTRESS subsided, but three weeks later the burned area in the esophagus began to heal. The ensuing scar contracted, leaving a stricture, or narrowing of the gullet. Swallowing solids and liquids became so difficult that X-rays were taken. There was a narrow localized stricture halfway down the esophagus.

According to Dr. Payten, after the narrowed part was stretched several times with a special instrument, improvement occured. He searched the medical literature and found 16 reported instances of accidental Clinitest ingestion.

VERY LITTLE HARM is done if the tablet is taken with water, because the caustic is flushed promptly into the stomach. One man took a tablet with water four times a day without ill effects. But strictures developed in 11 of the 16 reported cases. Five were children, emphasizing again the importance of keeping medicines out of reach of youngsters.

Clinitest, Clinistix, and Tes-Tape are tests for urinary sugar. They are much easier to use than the old Benedict solution that had to be boiled. Actually, Clinitest tablets contain the ingredients formerly in Benedict solution, combined with sodium hydroxide to provide the heating action. The later is so caustic it harms the wall of the esophagus. But after all, it was never intended to be swallowed.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, % the Independent-Journal.

FINGERLIKE TUMORS

A reader writes: What is a papilloma?

REPLY

A tumor that protrudes from the skin or the mucous membranes that line the cavities of the body. Warts, horns, polyps, and fingerlike skin projections are examples.

MOUTH GERMS

H. W. writes: Is it true that the mouth harbors more germs than any other part of the body?

REPLY

Yes, and this is why human bites are so potentially serious.

CHILD'S LEGS ACHE

Mrs. P. T. writes: My 4-year-old girl complains of leg ache for days at a time. Besides romping too much, what would cause this aching? I did not take her temperature at these times.

REPLY

Rheumatic fever, arthritis, and some of the rarer joint disorders are possibilities. This girl should be examined when pain is present, because it might be of nervous or emotional orgin.

CROOKED SHOES

Mrs. M. S. writes: Our 13-month old daughter's shoes are crooked. The tops curve in and are misshapen. Is this serious enough for her to see a doctor?

REPLY

If the toes curl up, the shoes may be too short. See a physician, because it is difficult to picture the shape of the shoe from your description.

Public Notice

ORDINANCE NO. 1093
AN URGENCY ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL AMENDING TITLE 14.62, SECTION 14.62.03, BY ADDING THERETO CERTAIN PROVISIONS REGARDING JOINT OWNERSHIP

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

DIVISION 1. Title 14, Section 14.62.03 of the Municipal Code of the City of San Rafael is hereby amended and shall read as follows:

"14.62.03 WHEN REGULATIONS APPLY. Wherever a parcel, lot or area contains two acres or more of undeveloped land; or wherever five or more adjoining parcels, lots or areas, regardless of acreage are undeveloped, the GPC shall be combined with the existing district or districts on the entirety of said parcels, lots, or areas and shall supersede the respective regulations of the existing district or districts, to the extent set forth in this Chapter and shall apply in lieu of the regulations hereinbefore specified for said districts; provided, however, that the lands listed below are excepted from the provisions of this Ordinance:

1. Where a detailed development plan has been approved by the Planning Commission within the 18 months immediately preceding the enactment of this Ordinance.

2. Wherein a grading, excavating, fill or building permit has already been approved and has not expired.

The zoning map shall be changed to show all districts so established with the designation GPC-, followed by the district designation as it now is (to be read as: GPC-R1, GPC-R2, GPC-C1, etc.) Such notations shall be utilized on all applications pertaining thereto, notices, ordinances, and zoning map.

The provisions of this Section shall apply to any of the aforesaid categories of land as set forth in the first paragraph of this Section, irrespective of whether or not the title to said property is vested in one or more owners."

DIVISION 2. This Ordinance is an ordinance for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety and one of urgency, and shall take effect immediately. The facts constituting the urgency are that the City Council of the City of San Rafael heretofore adopted Ordinance No. 1075 providing for General Plan Conflict Combined District and at the time said ordinance was passed, the City Council of the City of San Rafael intended that there should be no development on certain parcels, lots, acres or land within the City of San Rafael, irrespective of whether said parcels are vested in one or more owners, and whether or not said parcels, lots, or areas were owned by the same or different parties. A question has arisen as to the meaning of Section 14.62.03 and the City Council does now clarify the meaning of that Section. If any other meaning were allowed to prevail, it could in part abrogate the intent and meaning of Ordinance No. 1075 as previously passed, and would be detrimental to the orderly development of the City of San Rafael. Furthermore, the public peace, health, safety and general welfare of the citizens of the City of San Rafael will be jeopardized.

Date': March 19th, 1973.

Security Police Unit Named Outstanding

The 4661st Security Police Squadron at Hamilton Air Force Base has been selected as the outstanding security police unit in the aerospace defense command during 1972.

The top rating was awarded after a series of inspections, staff visits, tests and evaluations, the air force reported.

Chief M/Sgt. Andrew Howell, base security police superintendent, was selected as the 1972 outstanding security police senior noncommissioned officer.

S/Sgt. Bobby L. Gulley, administrative security noncommissioned officer-in-charge, was selected as the outstanding noncommissioned officer, grades E-4 through E-6.

Airman 1/C Franklin T. Pearson of the 4661st Security Police Squadron, was selected as the outstanding security police airman for 1972.

Delaying Switch

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Rep. J. J. Pickle, D-Tex., a longtime friend of former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, says the Watergate affair has delayed Connally's decision to switch parties, even if Connally is not willing to admit it publicly.

Mr. J. Oliver Finds Way To Help Shrink Painful Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues

...caused by inflammation and infection.

Junction City, Kansas.—Mr. J. Oliver writes: "I couldn't get relief. Then I bought Preparation H. I surely recommend it. It's worth its weight in gold."

(Note: Doctors' tests have proved Preparation H® actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation. It's so effective that in many cases the first applications give prompt, temporary relief from pain and itching in such tissues. There's no other formula like Preparation H.)

CHANNEL CHUCKLES

"They've really updated this movie. Five minutes after Don Ameche invents the telephone he gets a call from Acme TV surveys, Inc."

Smoking Climbs

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Cigarette consumption is increasing in California, despite the ban on radio and television cigarette commercials, according to Richard Nevins, a member of the state Board of Equalization.

Show For 118 Breeds Of Dogs

Dogs representing 118 breeds will be on display at the Redwood Empire Kennel Club show May 6 at 8 a.m. at the Sonoma-Marin Fairgrounds, Petaluma.

A total of 2,120 dogs have been entered in the show. Club president and show chairman Frances Pricolo of Petaluma said 22 judges have been selected from throughout the United States.

Benched judging will begin at 9 a.m. with best of breed judging scheduled for 3 p.m. Obedience trials will also be held.

Proceeds from entry fees finance a $250 club scholarship for a third year veterinary medicine student at University of California at Davis and a donation to guide dogs for the blind, San Rafael.

Students End A Long Holiday

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Thousands of young sun-worshippers headed for home and back to school today after one of the quietest Easter weeks on Florida beaches in recent years.

Authorities estimted more than 300,000 people jammed "the world's most famous beach" Sunday—most of them vacationing college and high school students enjoying the spring school recess.

Considering the number involved, police said there was very little trouble. The major problems were rough tides and an invasion of stinging Portuguese men-of-war.

Course Set For Parents

Six-week "communications" courses for parents will be given in May by the Family Service Agency of Marin at locations in Novato and San Rafael.

The Novato course will start at 10 a.m. May 2 at the Novato Human Needs Center, 1200 Grant Avenue. In San Rafael, a similar course will start at 7:30 p.m. May 17 at the agency office, 1005 A Street.

The courses teach skills of listening and expressing feelings between parents and children.

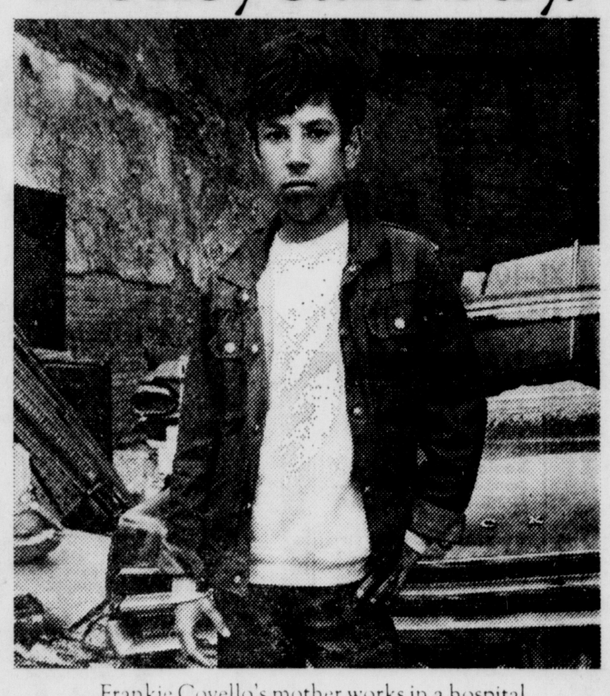
P.S.: Why Don't You Sneak Out This Week & Have A "Look-See"!!

What he needs, money can't buy.



Frankie Covello's mother works in a hospital. She puts in a lot of overtime. So Frankie takes care of his five brothers and sisters.

Frankie never met his father.

Last summer, he and three buddies got arrested for stripping cars. He got off with a probation and a warning. Next time it'll be the state reform school.

Frankie's mother loves him, but he needs someone to talk to. Man to man. Someone who thinks there's more to life than gang fights, pushing drugs or rolling bums.

Someone like you.

We know lots of fatherless kids like Frankie who need you. And we know a lot of other people who need you, too. Guys in veterans' hospitals. Unwed mothers. Old people. Blind people. Patients in mental institutions.

If you can help, even for a few hours, call your local Voluntary Action Center, or write to: "Volunteer," Washington, D.C. 20013.

Plans Drawn To Save Marsh

By REBECCA LARSEN

Across one wall of the room was a huge sheet of paper with men, women and children writing, pasting and drawing on it.

At one end a woman glued up pictures torn out of a magazine. She labeled photos of a polluted stream and a traffic jam with the words, "Man Did This."

Another woman wrote: "Happiness near the ducks, freedom near the creek's earth channel. . . ."

The scene was the College of Marin where 40 Greenbrae, Kentfield and Larkspur residents gathered Saturday to draw and write down the feelings they had had during a visit to what was once an all-salt marsh behind Marin Catholic High School.

Out of those impressions, the group later drew plans which they hope will replace a San Jose developer's proposal for putting up 272 townhouses and a 22-suite medical center on the 27-acre site owned by the San Francisco Catholic Archdiocese.

If the ecology-minded residents have their way the filled land there now, about 24.5 acres, will be partly reconverted to marsh with the rest turned into an "unstructured" park.

The group called the Greenbrae-Kentfield Citizens for a Neighborhood Marshland and Park will present its ideas to the Marin County Planning Commission May 7 when the commission is scheduled to review the massive development from builder Goodwin B. Steinberg. His plans have been before the commission for several months while residents have argued against him.

The land they are concerned about was once entirely a tidal marsh connected to Corte Madera Creek. Then a few years ago, the Army Corps of Engineers began filling and building levees at the site as part of stream channelization on the creek.

Saturday's session, run by landscape architect Lawrence Halprin of Kentfield, started out as a sort of sensitivity training session designed to raise awareness of the environment of the site.

First, the residents went out for three hours onto the land bordered by Corte Madera Creek and the creek bike path on the south. In the afternoon they met at the College of Marin to make plans for the property which they hope to buy by forming a county service area and floating a bond issue.

The group decided that the "unstructured" park just off Bon Air Road would take up one-half to two-thirds of the site and would include trees, grass, benches and a fenced tot lot.

"But let's not use any of our precious land for parking," said Barbara Boxer, one of the organizers of the group and a former unsuccessful candidate for supervisor. "Let the people park at the Safeway or the pizza palace."

The remaining land would be reflooded by dredging channels from the creek and the marsh still on the land, the group decided. Russell Ridge, College of Marin biology teacher, suggested that some of the dredged zones could serve as buffers between people and birds.

"We want to flood it to form a lagoon," said a woman, representing the Marin Canoe Club. "You can always sell a water area to the public."

Other proposals included extending the bike path from the creek to the park, building a canoe dock in the creek and planting a screen of trees and bushes between the site and Bon Air Road.

But several steps remain before these plans can become reality.

First, members of the group must win approval from the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission for a county service area which would coincide roughly with the boundaries of the Kentfield School District.

Then, they have to talk the county planning commission into turning down the developer's master plan.

Failing that, they plan to appeal the planning commission decision to the board of supervisors.

They have to persuade the archdiocese to sell them the property, and they have to sell their neighbors on paying for the project.

They hope to gain voter approval in November for a $500,000 bond issue which would cost the average homeowner $8 to $12 per year.

The group will meet again May 7 at 8 p.m. at the Marin Ecology Center, 1011 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur, to discuss the planning commission decision and plan the next moves.

Low Bidder For Work Announced

Apparent low bidder on a state Division of Highways project for improvements at Shoreline Highway and Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Olema is Grover Wilson of San Rafael.

Contracts will be awarded after verifications of bids are received, according to a department spokesman. Wilson's bid was $21,721. The work will include installation of flashing beacons to warn motorists of the intersection.

THE LAST AIRPLANE SHOW

The painted maw of a P40 "Flying Tiger" that saw service in World War II grins ferociously at spectators at Hamilton Air Force Base's Armed Forces Day. A spectacular show by the Thunderbirds and a unique display of vintage aircraft Saturday brought crowds estimated by base officials at 50,000 to what was probably the last such event at Hamilton, destined to phase down to reserve status by September. Paper Claims Secret Nixon Ballot Fund

President's Attorney Is Reportedly Involved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's personal lawyer, Herbert W. Kalmbach, had control of a secret fund that may have contained as much as half a million dollars during the presidential campaign, the Washington Star-News said today.

The newspaper said the money was kept at a Newport Beach, Calif., bank and that it was used in part "for political spying and disruption" including payments to a Los Angeles attorney, Donald W. Segretti. Segretti previously was identified as an undercover operative during the Nixon campaign.

The West Coast fund, the Star-News said, was kept in a hidden bank account at the Newport Beach branch of the Bank of America.

The money was funneled into the account by cashier's checks bought with cash at a different Newport Beach Bank, the Security Pacific National Bank, the newspaper said.

There have been previous reports of Washington funds during the Nixon campaign totaling $750,000 or more, with some of it being used for political surveillance activities, allegedly including the Watergate bugging case.

The newspaper said "various sources" put the total amount that passed through the Newport Beach account as "anywhere from $200,000 to $500,000."

It apparently was closed out, the Star-News said, early last year —well before the break-in of Democratic headquarters at the Watergate building in Washington June 17.

The new disclosure came as: The Washington Post said it was told by "highly reliable sources in the executive branch" that Nixon was warned as early as last December that some former and present close associates, including John W. Dean III and John N. Mitchell, "were probably deeply involved" in the Watergate scandal.

A spokesman at the Florida White House declined to comment on the Post report.

The Watergate grand jury continued its investigation of the case today, with Dean, White House legal counsel, expected to appear either today

Group Says Public Can Use Span School Buses

A group of San Geronimo Valley citizens has discovered that Golden Gate Transit's school buses can be used by the general public as well as students.

A spokesman for the transit system acknowledged this never has been publicized because school bus schedules tend to vary too much to provide reliable service for the general public.

Most of the dozen buses used part time for school service parallel the system's regular routes, he noted.

Two exceptions, however, are runs from West Marin communities to Sir Francis Drake and Marin Catholic high schools. It was these runs that were discovered for public use by San Geronimo Valley's ad hoc planning group.

Johanna Burkhardt, a member of the group's transportation committee, noted that the only scheduled morning service on weekdays from Inverness leaves at 6:05 a.m., going through the valley 30 minutes later. A school bus, however, serves the same route, but leaves Inverness at 7:03 a.m. It ends its student run at Drake High, then goes through San Anselmo and arrives in San Francisco's financial district at 8:55 a.m.

Another school bus leaves Nicasio — which has no scheduled regular service — at 7:20 a.m. It goes to both Drake and Marin Catholic high schools.

Two westbound afternoon buses leave Drake at 3:15 p.m. Tuesdays through Friday, and at 2:15 p.m. on Mondays. One goes to Lagunitas and the other to Nicasio.

The citizens group has posted the school bus schedules on public bulletin boards in the valley, Niscasio, Point Reyes Station, Inverness and Inverness Park.

The buses, of course, do not run on school holidays.

Fares are 25 cents within Marin.

Nixon May Be Near Decision

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon, planning what appeared to be a major shake-up in his White House staff, returned here today from an overnight visit to a private island retreat in the Bahamas.

Nixon landed at mid-morning following an hour and 15-minute flight from Grand Cay amid reports he would act soon on results of his own investigation into the June 17 bugging of the Democratic Headquarters and announce resignations of some high-ranking assistants.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren, the only Nixon aide available to reporters, had no comment on reports in the Washington Post that Nixon had been warned as early as last December that some of his assistants were involved in the Watergate case and subsequent coverup attempts.

The White House also is no longer bothering to deny that the scandal over political espionage and attempts to cover it up are the worst to hit the Nixon administration since it took office more than four years ago. The President himself reportedly compared it at a meeting of his cabinet last Friday in Washington to the Cambodian crisis of 1970.

His closest political associates and several top assistants —White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman, domestic counselor John D. Ehrlichman, former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, presidential counselor John W. Dean III and others— have become the focus of a grand jury investigation into the case.

Nixon flew to the island home of Robert H. Abplanalp, a close personal friend, Sunday after attending Easter services with his family at a neighborhood church on Key Biscayne, Fla.

With him was C. G. (Bebe) Rebozo, another close friend with whom he has spent time during similar crisis in the past. The President took along a brief case but no aides.

Whatever embarrassment he felt over the illegal intrigue committed in his behalf and the welter of charges and countercharges among White House aides that has followed has scarcely shown in the few glimpses newsmen have had of the President.

Sunday he and his family posed for photographers in their Easter finery on the front lawn of their vacation villa and then hopped into a limousine for the three-minute drive to the Key Biscayne Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. John A. Huffman Jr., who is a Nixon favorite and has presided over services in the White House, preached a sermon on redemption of sin which—whether intended or not —carried overtones of the Watergate case.

Brandt Sees 'No Worry'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt believes he has "no grounds for worry" that the United States will make a substantial reduction in its troops in Europe in the near future.

Brandt noted in an interview published Sunday by U.S. News and World Report that he would confer with President Nixon in 10 days, and he said "I am not going to Washington in a mood of being afraid of anything."

"I am going there to discuss important elements of policy co-operation in the economic and political and security fields," he said.

Probe Is Asked In CSD Funds

The Marin County District Attorney's Office was asked today to consider filing criminal charges against a former Marin City Community Services District employee suspected of embezzling district funds.

In a letter to the district attorney, county Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell said a special audit by his office disclosed $886 in district funds taken by Lillian J. Lee, a secretary-bookkeeper.

Mitchell, the county's fiscal watchdog, told the Independent-Journal today that Mrs. Lee reimbursed the district late last week when informed of the discrepancies in district records.

He said the investigation was requested by the district's board chairman, Frank Phillips Sr., and board member Roger Jones "based on some suspicious activities that may have taken place."

In all, 13 checks made out to the district for rental of its Manzanita center were found missing.

Investigation showed that the checks had been cashed by Mrs. Lee but never deposited in the district's account, Mitchell said.

Mrs. Lee, a resident of Marin City, earned $659 per month as secretary but left her job last month. The missing checks span a period from September to March.

Mitchell said his office is continuing its review of district records, concentrating on whether another $400, taken from the district's special bank account, was appropriately spent.

Four Out Of 10 Think Nixon Knew Of Bugging

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new Gallup Poll shows four of every 10 persons questioned believed President Nixon knew about the Watergate affair in advance.

The poll, published yesterday, also showed that about one-third of the persons interviewed felt the case revealed corruption in the White House.

A large majority of Americans—83 per cent—had read or heard about the case when the poll was taken last week, before Nixon made his announcement that there had been "major developments" in the case and that his aides would testify about it.

The percentage who had heard about it by last week compared to 52 per cent in October shortly before the presidential election. Gallup concluded the high level of awareness could seriously effect Republican chances in next year's congressional elections.

The persons questioned were asked whether the Watergate case revealed "corruption in the Nixon administration "or was a case of "just politics." Thirty-one per cent chose the "corruption" response, while 53 per cent thought it was "just politics." The remainder of the persons polled either had no opinion or had not heard of the case.

Eight Injured, Two In Critical Condition, In Weekend Wrecks

Five persons were hospitalized, two of them in critical condition, and six more were injured in three accidents over the weekend, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The worst accident at 2:30 a.m., yesterday, on Highway 37 at the Marin County end of the Petaluma River bridge, left two persons in critical condition, and three others injured.

Michael McGinty, 18, of Sonoma, was reported in critical condition in the intensive care unit at Novato General Hospital with multiple lacerations and fractures, according to hospital spokesmen.

Kathy Scalon, 15, of Sonoma was reported in critical condition and under intensive care for head injuries at Marin General Hospital. Denise Hillman, 16, of Sonoma, was reported in fair condition with a broken right leg and left wrist and possible internal injuries, at the same hospital, spokesmen reported.

All were passengers in a car driven by Peter Ray Balchinas, 18, of Sonoma who was treated for possible fracture of the right collar bone at Novato General Hospital.

Driver of the other car, Patrick Michael Kauppinen, 22, of Richmond, was treated for a cut lip and leg at the same hospital.

Patrolmen reported that the westbound Kauppinen car crossed the median strip and hit the Balchinas car head-on.

Elizabeth Jane Dooley, 11, of 67 Briarwood Drive, San Rafael, was reported in fair condition with head injuries at Marin General Hospital, hospital spokesmen reported today.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Anna Marie Shannon, 38, of 147 Knight Drive, San Rafael. Mrs. Shannon, Julia Shannon, 11, and Mark Shannon, 7, were all treated for scrapes and bruises at Marin General Hospital, hospital spokesmen reported.

Patrolmen reported that the Shannon car and one driven by Craig Steven Kaplan, 19, of Los Angeles were northbound on Highway 101 at the Tiburon overpass at 2:15 p.m. when an unknown car forced the Kaplan auto into the Shannon car which overturned trying to change lanes. Elizabeth Dooley was thrown from the car, patrolmen reported.

John Anthony Imbimbo, 21, of 41 Dutch Valley Lane, San Anselmo, received a broken leg when his car overturned on Van Winkle Drive west of Butterfield Road, Sleepy Hollow, at 6:30 p.m., Saturday. He was reported in satisfactory condition at Marin General Hospital, according to a hospital spokesman.

Nob Hill Murder Suspect Captured

MERCED, Calif. (UPI) — Two days of murder and kidnap across 500 miles of Northern California ended Sunday when a fugitive accused of rape was shot and captured by lawmen in the Sierra foothills.

Authorities said John P. Bunyard, 28, the suspected "Nob Hill rapist" of San Francisco, killed two women and kidnaped at least 10 persons during his bizarre flight that started Friday noon at Lake Tahoe.

Bunyard was taken into custody after a police sergeant fired two quick shots at the already wounded suspect in a deadend alley after a frantic husband jumped Bunyard as he held a gun to his wife's head.

In the pre-dawn hours in nearby Mariposa, authorities said Bunyard fatally shot Nancy L. Chalburg, 55, manager of the Tenaya motel, and Helen Cramer, 65, a resident of the nearby Fremont motel.

Mariposa County Sheriff Norman Garrett said both women were shot in the forehead when they apparently refused to give the suspect their car keys or accompany him on his flight.

Sheriff's deputies, responding to a prowler call, exchanged gunfire with the suspect in the downtown section of Mariposa, the gateway to Yosemite National Park. Bunyard was wounded in the leg and fled on foot, then commandeered a car that was demolished in a high-speed chase.

Authorities said Bunyard again fled on foot and broke into a motel room where he took as hostage Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Thompson, both 48, of Huntington Beach, Calif. He forced the couple to drive him 40 miles to Merced.

Sheriff's deputies, police and the California Highway Patrol, alerted that the suspect was headed toward Merced, set up roadblocks and cornered him in a deadend street.

"The man took Mrs. Thompson from the car at gunpoint, threatening to kill her and the officers who had boxed him in. But Thompson jumped from the car and knocked him off balance," said police Capt. Dave Knutsen.

Sgt. Mike Southerland, a 10-year veteran of the police force, fired two shots, one of which hit Bunyard in the chest and the other went through both his arms. The Thompsons were unharmed.

Bunyard was charged with murder, kidnap, armed robbery and other felonies. He underwent surgery at Merced General Hospital, where he was reported in good condition.

Six Slain, 10 Wounded In Gun Rampage In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — William R. Bonner got into an argument Sunday with Otha Leavitt, believed to be his grandmother. Police were trying to determine today why that triggered a wild, two-hour outburst of violence in which 16 people were shot, six of whom died.

Bonner, 25, wounded in the legs in a climactic gunbattle with police, was in serious condition at the County-USC Medical Center jail ward, where he was held on murder charges.

Among the wounded was a security guard who forced a car carrying Bonner to the curb and tried to shoot him. The guard, Versell Bennett, was felled by two bullets in the head. Authorities said he may have been hit by police shooting at Bonner.

Police at first believed robbery was the motive for some of the shootings, but said today there were indications Bonner knew all the victims.

The shootings took place at six locations.

The dead included Mrs. Levitt, 53, killed with a 20 guage shotgun at Bonner's home at the start of the rampage.

Police said two teen-agers—Anthony Thomas, 16, and Carolyn Cleveland, 17—were shot and wounded nearby. They were believed to have been with Mrs. Levitt. Miss Cleveland was in critical condition.

In the next two hours:

A 13-year-old girl, Ailene Wells, was shot to death at a service station and her 18-year-old sister, Vickie, 18, was criticaly wounded.

A mechanic at a service station, identified by sheriff's deputies as Raleigh Henderson, 33, was shot and killed.

Jevi Thompson, 57, was killed by a shotgun blast in the stomach at a liquor store. His killer critically wounded Thompson's wife, Edie Mae, 53, and son, Alfred, 15.

At another liquor store, Robert L. smith, an employe, was shot and critically wounded, and Roosevelt Jenkins, another employe, was wounded in the leg.

At a third liquor store, Smitty Sneed, 57, the owner, was shot to death, and a customer, Duly Oscar Bennett, 58, was wounded in the shoulder.

Diane Lore Andrea, 22, was killed by a shotgun blast in the neck at her home.

An all points bulletin was out for Bonner by that time. Police said a patrol car sighted him near Miss Andrea's home and Bonner tried to fire at the officers but there was no ammunition in his shotgun.

Bonner sped off in his car, police said, with the patrol car chasing him. Bonner crashed into another auto stopped at a traffic light and commandeered an auto driven by Mary Felton, 45, of Inglewood, who had her two daughters, 10 and 12 years old, with her.

Bennett, a guard for the Hicks Security Corporation, saw Bonner take over Mrs. Felton's car at gunpoint and joined the chase, setting up a blazing three-way gunbattle, police said.

Bennett maneuvered his auto to head off the Felton car, forced it to the side of the road, and jumped out of his car shooting at Bonner, who was inside with Mrs. Felton and her daughters. Bonner shot back, police said, and when pursuing officers arrived they fired 28 pistol shots and one shotgun blast at Bonner.

In the fusilade of fire between Bonner, Bennet and police, Bonner was hit several times in the legs, Bennett was shot twice in the head, and Mrs. Felton suffered slight wounds in the shoulder.

20 Cars Derail

MCNARY, Tex. (UPI) — Twenty boxcars on a derailed Southern Pacific freight train burned out of control today near this small West Texas town 40 miles southeast of El Paso. No one was hurt when the train ripped off the tracks Sunday night.

Two Ships Reach Capital

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Two supply ships and six tankers carrying more than two million gallons of fuel arrived in Phnom Penh today after a perilous journey up the Mekong river from South Vietnam.

Two of the ships were hit by B40 rocket-propelled grenade fire during the six-hour trip from Tan Chau, a river town nine miles inside South Vietnam. The captain of one ship was slightly wounded.

One crewman aboard another ship, a South Korean vessel, was killed and three others were wounded by fire from the banks of the river.

Crewmen said the convoy came under fire three times inside Cambodian waters.

Each of the six tankers in the convoy carried 400,000 gallons of fuel. The supply ships brought food and ammunition to the beseiged capital.

It was the first convoy to reach Phnom Penh on the MeKong River since April 15.

Cease-Fire Violations Dip To 64

SAIGON (UPI) — Military authorities said today that Communist cease-fire violations for the 24 hours ending at noon today dipped to 64, the lowest number since the Jan. 28 truce agreement.

The bloodiest incident during the 24 hours, officials said, was an explosion at a rural Easter pageant Sunday that left 12 persons dead and another 81 hurt.

Military sources said the explosion may have been an accident. They said authorities were investigating reports a militiaman was toying with a hand grenade when it went off.

The explosion occurred at Phuoc Thien hamlet near Phan Rang, 165 miles northeast of Saigon, the Saigon command said. A Roman Catholic group was presenting an Easter pageant at the time.

In the worst previous such incident—and the worst since the truce began 12 weeks ago—someone threw grenades into a crowded pagoda March 15 in the Mekong Delta, killing 17 persons and wounding 88.

Shortly before dawn today, a dozen rounds of 61mm mortar fire hit in and around a South Vietnamese infantry position six miles west of Hue. Military authorities said two infantrymen were wounded. This was the closest reported shelling to Hue in months.

Costs Zoom On Programs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cost overruns totaling $625 million have been reported for two major Pentagon weapons programs, one of which is not even under construction yet.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said Sunday the cost of a new 50-ship patrol frigate program increased by $513 million and "appears headed for big trouble in terms of cost."

And Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said the contractor for a safeguard Antiballistic Missile (ABM) site at Grand Forks, N.D., was seeking an 81 per cent increase in the original contract price.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Pray For Judge

NEWPORT, Tenn. (UPI) — Members of a fundamentalist mountain church prayed for Circuit Court Judge George Shepherd in weekend services, then followed his injunction prohibiting the use of snakes and poisons in their service.

There were indications, however, that once the curious newsmen, students and other outsiders no longer attend the services, the 48 members of the Holiness Church of God in jesus' Name will worship as they did before.

The judge enjoined the church members from handling the dangerous rattlesnakes and copperheads during services and from passing poisons around. He said, however, that an individual who wanted to drink poison was free to do so.

"We figure he (Shepherd) was as fair with us as he could be," said church elder William Ball, "but we are not changed in our faith."

Sees Chou

PEKING (UPI) — Mexican President Luis Echeverria, the first Latin American chief of state to visit China since the Communists took power in 1949, and Premier Chou En-lai resumed talks today at a tiny collective farm 250 miles southwest of Peking.

Echeverria left the Chinese capital late Sunday on an 11-hour train trip and a two-hour bus trip to the Ta Chai brigade, a small collective farm.

At the last minute, Chou agreed to accompany Echeverria so they could continue their talks.

Indians Arrested

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Six armed Indians protesting proposed construction of a new governor's mansion on a site once occupied by an Indian village were arrested Sunday on charges of assault and trespass when they tried to occupy the ground.

Sheriff's deputies said one shot was fired by the Indians, including five adults and one juvenile, and the six were also charged with assaulting a police officer and malicious mischief.

The Indians, part of a group apparently supported by the American Indian Movement, claims construction on the 11-acre American River site would destroy an ancient burial ground and valuable relics. Gov. Ronald Reagan wants to build a new home for California governors on the plot.

Grape Probe

COACHELLA (UPI) — Senate investigators were on hand today to look into the feud in the grape fields between the Teamsters and Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers Union.

The fields were quiet yesterday during an Easter truce. A group of about 150 of Chavez' followers, mostly Mexican-Americans, attended an Easter mass in the Coachella City Park.

Two members of the five-man investigating team sent by the Senate Labor and Welfare Committee appeared at the substation here of the Riverside County Sheriff's Department to inform deputies they would be carrying out an investigation in the area this week.

Plot For Hess

STUTTGART, West Germany (UPI) — The idea, police said, was certainly bizarre and almost as certainly real.

Nazi sympathizers, they said, planned to hijack a British European Airways (BEA) plane to force the release of Rudolf Hess, the jailed onetime deputy to Adolf Hitler.

"An intensive investigation is going on to find the persons behind the plot," a police spokesman said today.

He declined to elaborate, but sources said a nationwide hunt was underway for other members of the alleged hijack gang.

Blast Kills Seven

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — Leaking gas that collected under a low rent apartment building exploded yesterday and blew the floor against the ceiling. Seven persons, including a pair of newly wed teen-agers, were killed and 23 others were hurt.

The blast ripped through the one-story building at dawn, destroying eight of 15 apartments. Of the 23 persons injured, eight were hospitalized overnight. Most of them were in satisfactory condition.

Miss Devlin Weds

BELFAST (UPI) — Bernadette Devlin, Northern Ireland's fiery civil rights leader, married Michael McAlaskey today in her hometown of Cookstown, County Tyrone.

Miss Devlin led the clashes in late 1968 that provoked the current violence between Roman Catholics and Protestants. In 1969, she was elected to the British House of Commons and two years later gave birth to a daughter out of wedlock.

The bridegroom is a Lurgan schoolteacher with close ties to Catholic political movements in the region, friends of the family said.

Use Of Servants

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The military services have rejected pressures to stop using enlisted men to perform household chores such as grocery shopping, babysitting, bar tending and car washing for generals and admirals.

The Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines told the General Accounting Office (GAO), an investigative arm of Congress, that high-ranking officers and their wives need help so they can devote full time to military duties and community activities.

"The presence of enlisted aides permits both the general officer and his wife the degree of freedom necessary to carry out wide-ranging, never-ending, demanding and sensitive functions essential to leadership in the military community," the Army said.

Pet Controls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A chemistry professor contended today there are too many household pets and that their numbers should be controlled by development of chemical contraceptives.

Dr. Carl Djerassi of Stanford University, who helped develop the birth control pill for women, pointed out that some 2,000 to 3,500 dogs and cats are born every hour, compared to about 450 human beings an hour.

He said this points up the urgent need for a chemical pet contraceptive, but he added that it may not be available for years.

A Safe Landing

TORONTO (UPI) — A British West Indian Airways Boeing 707 with 55 people aboard made an emergency landing Sunday night at Toronto International Airport after its nose landing gear failed to extend.

How To Stop Smoking May 13 at 3:00

On Sunday afternoon, May 13, a group of men and women will arrive — one by one — at the St. Helena Health Center. Most will not know each other. But all will have a common purpose — to stop smoking. Join this group and you will work with our medical team (physicians — including a pulmonary specialist — physical therapists, a dietitian and clinical counselors) for five days. They will help you learn how to overcome the physical addiction to tobacco, how to improve your breathing ability, how to cope with the tensions that "call for a cigarette", and how to keep your weight in line. By Friday, May 18, you should be able to return home free of nicotine and well on the road to better health. (The fresh mountain air, attractive private rooms and good food make the St. Helena experience a memorable one.) Ask your physician about this medical approach to smoking cessation. Send the coupon now for more details, or telephone for our brochure.

If you cannot attend our May 13 session, plan to join us June 3 or June 10.

Robber Hits Petaluma Bar

An armed robber stole weekend receipts today from the Buckhorn Bar at 615 Petaluma Boulevard South, Petaluma police reported.

Bartender Ivan S. Reese, 51, of Rohnert Park, said the robber, the only customer at 1:45 a.m. today, forced him to close the bar early and empty the cash register.

Reese said the man asked for a paper bag and also took his beer mug and ashtray so no fingerprints could be found. He said the man simulated a gun by putting his hand in his right jacket pocket.

He was described as white in his mid-20s with a brown mustache and wearing blue jeans and a blue jacket.

Santa Rosa police said a man of the same description robbed the Grogg Shop, 1911 Santa Rosa Avenue, at 3 a.m.

Scout Operation

OAKLAND (UPI) — It was announced Sunday that thousands of Boy Scouts will take part Saturday in Operation Fire Safe in an effort to clear debris from thousands of dead eucalyptus trees in the Oakland hills.

Septic Tank Inspection Fee Sought In Bolinas

A $1-a-month inspection fee for owners of septic tanks in Bolinas was added Saturday to the terms of a proposed ordinance regulating sewage disposal and drainage.

Directors of the Bolinas Community Public Utility District added the fee after James D. McCamant, accountant for the district consultant firm of Marshall and Farnsworth, said watershed management and septic tank surveillance called for in the new ordinance would require hiring additional personnel at a cost of up to $10,000 a year.

Permits for excavations, fills or other work affecting drainage would be required under the new ordinance, with which directors have been wrestling for months in order to help clean up pollution in Bolinas Lagoon and meet requirements of the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Board members, who had previously decided that both the biennial septic tank inspections and the first two hours of staff work on the permit applications would be free, concluded that charges for both services must be made after also hearing a financial report and cash forecast from Lyman (Rob) Robinson, district secretary-manager.

Robinson said the district had exceeded budgeted expenditures by $13,487, largely because of disaster operations when last winter's flooding rains caused heavy damage to the system. Federal disaster funds amounting to $11,961 will be available to the district, Robinson said, but until these are received, he can project a cash balance of only $12,791 at the end of the fiscal year in June.

Help in solving design problems for owners of failing septic tanks would be included under the fee system, the board decided. There are about 385 tanks in the district boundaries, according to the consultant's report, while an antiquated sewage system serves the downtown area.

Directors briefly debated whether the monthly fees could be properly assessed against owners of septic tanks in good condition, but concluded the program was a form of insurance which would benefit all owners.

"It's everybody's problem," said board chairman William E. Niman. "Even if (a failing tank) is not yours, you walk past it and you smell it."

The board will hear a report from the county counsel's office on legal ramifications of the new ordinance and will consider its adoption in a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the district office.

The Bolinas Community Public Utility District board also:

TIME CHANGE — Decided to begin Saturday meetings at 8 a.m., instead of 10 a.m. The board convenes weekly on Wednesday nights, except on the third Wednesday of each month, when it meets on the following Saturday morning.

LAGOON — Authorized director Orville Schell to write the state Lands Commission in support of the Bolinas Lagoon plan.

WATER — Scheduled discussion of a report on long-range water plans for Wednesday's meeting.

SEWERS — Heard from director Gregory Hewlett that groundbreaking for the new sewer treatment plant should begin in "perhaps midsummer."

BUDGET — Appointed Robinson, Niman, director Marguerite Harris and Clarence L. Seusier, a public member, to a committee to make recommendations for the 1973-74 budget.

Environmental Report Is Due

The San Anselmo City Council will consider an environmental impact report on the proposed Marin countywide plan when it meets at 8 p.m. tomorrow in city hall.

The council will also review a government structure study recommendation that the city consider formation of a Ross Valley fire district and merge various city services with those of Fairfax.

The council will also hear an appeal of the design of a parking lot proposed across from the Tamalpais theater.

Over 30 Years Experience In Nutrition

HERE'S HEALTH!

By JUNE EMBURY

Are you familiar with ICAN - the International College of Applied Nutrition? This remarkable group of physicians, dentists, veterinarians, biochemists, nutrition specialists and researchers have just held their 13th annual symposium in Pasadena. Margot Fraser and I were privileged to attend the two day session as guests and to introduce Birkenstock sandals, which received enthusiastic response. We were profoundly impressed by the calibre of the members, as well as the speakers discussing a variety of nutritional therapies and principles.

Evidently health profession people are finding it difficult to keep up with the demand for nutrition-oriented doctors and look forward to increasing acceptance of the concepts by their colleagues. (Incidentally, we learned of several new, exciting products at the Symposium, which we'll be sharing with our customers. This column will carry word of their availability.)

Bandit With Gun Gets $198 At Cleaners

A bandit brandishing a revolver got away with $198 from a San Rafael cleaners Saturday after threatening to shoot the shop's owner, police reported.

Gladys A. Brown, 27, owner of Thrift-D-Lux Cleaners at 705 B Street, told officers she was behind the counter at about 3:35 p.m. when a man between 22 and 25 years old, entered and asked for change for a dollar.

When she opened the cash register, Mrs. Brown said, the man pulled a revolver from his shirt and demanded she hand over all the money.

The bandit who was described as black, six feet, seven inches tall and wearing a multicolored skull cap, then forced Mrs. Brown into the back of the shop, threatening to shoot her if she didn't go, police reported.

Mrs. Brown told investigators that she waited for several seconds before walking back to the front of the shop when the robber told her, "I'm going to shoot you now." She retreated into the rear of the store while the gunman escaped, police said.

Witnesses said the bandit may have been whisked from the scene by an accomplice driving a getaway car, possibly a Pontiac.

SCHOLARSHIP GOES BEGGING —NO YO-YOS

What if they gave a yo-yo contest and nobody came?

That's what happened at Albert Park in San Rafael Saturday as city parks and recreation officials waited for yo-yo enthusiasts who never showed up.

Consider the plight of the deprived onlookers: Among the 10 basic tricks that would have been required of the contestants were "skin the cat" and "walking the dog."

The winner of the event would have been eligible for a $500 college scholarship.

10 Charities To Share In Schultz Will

Greenbrae developer Niels Schultz, who died April 14 at the age of 85, left his estate in two trusts for his family and also named 10 charities and civic organizations to share in any excess of $1.25 million.

Schultz made the bequests in a will signed just four days before he died. The will, which takes precedence over similiar earlier documents, has been lodged in the Marin County clerk's office for safekeeping but has not been filed in probate court yet.

No estimate of the value of the estate was made in the will, and one of Schultz's lawyers, Robert W. Elliott, said today the property has not been inventoried yet.

He said, however, that he expected the estate will total more than the $1.25 million figure or Schultz would not have made the bequests to the charities.

Named to share in any funds over the $1.25 million set aside for the family were the Shriners Crippled Children's Hospital in San Francisco, Masonic Homes Endowment Fund, Marin Council of Boy Scouts, San Mateo Council of Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, half to Marin and half to the San Mateo County Group), Marin General Hospital, City of Larkspur parks and recreation department, city of Millbrae parks and recreation department, and youth groups of two Greenbrae churches, Church of the Latter-day Saints and St. Sebastian's Church.

The will also set up two trusts, one in the name of Schultz's widow, Ellen, and the other for his five grandchildren. Schultz's sons, Niels Jr. and Alvin, and his daughter-in-law Mary Barbara Schultz, also are to receive unspecified amounts of income.

The widow is to receive a minimum of $120,000 income a year from her trust.

Schultz, who came to this country from his native Denmark, was a builder for more than 60 years. In addition to Greenbrae, he developed Millbrae Highlands on the Peninsula and many other projects in Northern Californai.

or Tuesday. He has said he will not be a "scapegoat" in the affair.

The 15 federal district judges stationed in Washington arranged a meeting for this afternoon to discuss the leak of grand jury minutes to columnist Jack Anderson. Several days during the past week Anderson has been including excerpts of secret grand jury testimony in his columns and the FBI has been called in to investigate how he got transcripts. Violation of grand jury secrecy is a federal offense.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said he found it "inconceivable" that the President's subordinates would not have told him about the Watergate bugging plans.

White House sources indicated the President plans to announce the resignations of a number of key advisers, as a result of the Watergate investigation, possibly within a few days' time. Nixon was in seclusion today in the Bahamas, reportedly considering his plans.

The New York Times said G. Gordon Liddy, one of the convicted Watergate conspirators, had been passed word by the White House to tell all he knows about the case, but that Liddy has refused.

The Star-News quoted investigators as saying that Kalmbach made payments from the West Coast fund to Segretti, rather than from Washingtonbased funds as previously had been believed. These payments have been said to have totaled $30,000 to $40,000.

The Star-News said a Senate subcommittee learned of the fund last fall but that the findings were not disclosed. It said the new special Senate Watergate committee now was looking into the matter.

The Post said that Nixon was advised in December and again in January about possible involvement of Mitchell, his one-time campaign manager and former attorney general, along with Dean and possibly others on the staff in the Watergate affair.

Nixon responded by saying "give me some evidence," one source said, according to The Post. Nixon reportedly pointed out that Dean and Mitchell had denied any involvement.

Copter Service Will Expand

San Francisco-Oakland Helicopter Airlines will add three new flights to its schedule, two of them from its Marin terminal on Richardson Bay, the firm has announced.

The new flights from Marin to San Francisco International Airport, to start next Sunday, will depart at 9:52 a.m. and 5:45 p.m. and travel via Berkeley, picking up passengers there at 10:03 a.m. and 5:56 p.m.

The helicopter firm also announced some minor changes in its schedule for the summer months.

Impact Discussion Set By Board

The Bolinas-Stinson School District board will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Bolinas School to discuss state-required environmental impact guidelines for district projects.

Also on the agenda is action on an application for state funds for an early childhood education project and a closed session to discuss employee negotiations.

Reed Budget Session Is Set

Trustees of the Reed School District board will discuss a proposed $2,422,995 budget for next year when they meet at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Del Mar School library.

The preliminary budget is down $30,800 from this year's estimated budget total of $2,453,795 and provides for step increases for employees but no new raises.

Also on the agenda at the meeting, postponed from Tuesday due to the board elections, is a request by substitute teachers that the $26 per day paid them be increased.

Lagunitas Board Due Budget Work

Trustees of the Lagunitas School District will take a look at preliminary 1973-74 budget projections when they meet at 7:30 p.m. today in San Geronimo Valley Elementary School.

The board also will hear recommendations by the county schools office for improved use of district facilities and go into closed session to instruct its employee salary negotiator.

OBITUARIES

Krebsbach Services Are Held

Mass of the Resurrection for Raymond M. Krebsbach of Santa Venetia was celebrated today at Blessed Sacrament Church in Santa Venetia.

Krebsbach died Saturday in a local hospital after a long illness. He was 58.

He was born in Esmond, N.D. He moved to California 30 years ago and to Marin County 20 years ago. He and his wife, Lucille, who survives him, made their home at 113 Ash Way, San Rafael.

He was a carpenter, last employed by Miller and Olson Construction Co. of Novato.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by five daughters, Jacquelyn Edgemon of San Jose, Sister Lolita of Alhambra, Los Angeles county, Clare, Kerry and Mary Lou Krebsbach all of San Rafael; a son, Tom Krebsbach of Bellevue, Wash.; three sisters, Florence Fraize of San Rafael, Lucile Beg Bengson of Novato and Kathryn Schumacher of Sacramento; four brothers, Ralph Krebsbach of Warwick, N.D., Donald Krebsbach of Whittier, Los Angeles county, James Krebsbach of Spokane, Wash. and Larry Krebsbach of San Jose and three grandchildren.

Burial was in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

JACK MULCRONE

Jack A. Mulcrone, 61, of Novato, a retired machinist, died yesterday at his home apparently of natural causes, according to Coroner's Deputy Donald L. Cornish.

Mulcrone was discovered dead at his home, 28 Palm Lane, by his wife, Elva, at 6 a.m., Cornish said. Two days before he had chest pains and an ache in his arm, but hadn't seen a doctor, Cornish reported.

Mulcrone had been employed by the American Can Co. in San Francisco. He was a native of Wisconsin and had been a resident of Marin since 1967. He served in the Navy during World War II.

Surviving, besides his wife, are four daughters, Margaret Scott and Donna Woehl, both of Seattle; Betty Carson of Kimball, S.D., and sister Mary Margaret of Sioux Falls, S.D., and a son, Robert Mulcrone of Santa Barbara.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Keaton's Chapel of Marin, Novato.

IDA BAXMAN

Funeral for Ida H. Baxman, 78, of Petaluma, was held today in Petaluma.

Mrs. Baxman died Saturday at a local hospital after a short illness. She was a native of Petaluma, but spent most of her life in Cazadero.

Mrs. Baxman returned to Petaluma in 1958 after the death of her husband, Charles, and lived at 956 Thompson Lane. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Petaluma.

She is survived by two daughters, Dee Tunzi and Alitha Wedel of Petaluma; a son, Steven Baxman of Fort Bragg; two sisters, Gladys Goree of Santa Rosa and Wilma Duffy of San Francisco; six grandchildren, and 13 great-grandchildren.

Private burial was at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

MRS. GRESHAM

Funeral for Marguerite L. Gresham, 75, former Petaluma resident, was held today in Petaluma.

Mrs. Gresham was a resident of Arleta, Los Angeles County, and died Thursday at a hospital in Sun Valley.

She was a native of Ohio and had lived in Petaluma for 20 years before moving to Arleta. She was the wife of the late Dennis Gresham.

Mrs. Gresham was a member of the Equestrian Trail Riders of Los Angeles.

She is survived by a daughter, Virginia Carter of Arleta, and a granddaughter.

Private burial was at Liberty Cemetery.

JOSEPH PRONZINI

Joseph J. Pronzini, 65, Petaluma rancher, died yesterday at a local hospital after collapsing at his home.

He was born and reared in Novato and had operated ranches in Marin and Sonoma counties. For the past 12 years Pronzini had worked with his brother, Reno Pronzini, in operating El Adobe Hereford Ranch, Petaluma.

He is also survived by a son, William Pronzini, and a daughter, Katherine Pronzini, both of Petaluma.

Funeral will be Wednesday at 11 a.m. at the Sorensen Funeral Home, Petaluma. Recitation of the Rosary will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow. Burial will be at Calvary Cemetery.

MISS FARRELL

Josephine Farrell, a resident of Ross for the past 75 years, died yesterday in a local convalscent hospital after a brief illness.

A native of San Francisco, she moved with her family to Ross as an infant. She lived all her life on Lagunitas Road.

Miss Farrell, the last survivor of four sisters and a brother, left no immediate family.

A Mass of the Resurrection will be held at 10 a.m. on Wednesday at St. Anselm's Church, San Anselmo, where she arranged the alter for some 40 years. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma. Rosary services will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

LOUISE MILLER

Louise G. Miller, wife of the owner of an interior decorating firm, died Saturday at her home, 128 Knight Drive, San Rafael. She was 67.

The Marin County Coroner's Office said Mrs. Miller was found at 8:30 p.m. on the floor of her bedroom after lying down earlier for a nap. An autopsy was scheduled.

Born in Columbus, Ohio, Mrs. Miller lived in California for 50 years, 19 of them in Marin County.

Her husband, Frank is owner of Frank J. Miller and Son in San Francisco.

Surviving, besides her husband, are two daughters, Mary Louise Phillips and Virginia F. Lavery of San Francisco; a son, Robert Miller of Petaluma; a brother, Richard G. Niswonger of Atherton, and two grandchildren.

Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated at 11 a.m. Wednesday at St. Sylvester's Church, San Rafael. Rosary is scheduled for 8 p.m. tomorrow at Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

WILDA THOLE

Wilda I. Thole, 62, retired Petaluma grocer, died today at a local hospital after a brief illness.

Mrs. Thole was born and reared in Santa Rosa. She and her late husband, George L. Thole, moved to Petaluma 43 years ago.

Mrs. Thole and her late husband opened Thole's grocery store in 1945 and retired in 1960. She lived at 1163 Western Avenue.

She is survived by a daughter, Patricia Conklin of Petaluma; a son, George L. Thole Jr. of Stillwater, Minn; a brother, Lloyd Rhoades of Manteca, San Joaquin County; and four grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow at Parent Funeral Chapel, Petaluma. Burial will be at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

Plea Date In Robbery Scheduled

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Two Richmond men charged with the March 29 holdup at a Corte Madera savings and loan office are scheduled to enter pleas May 3, while a third has been dropped from the case.

Kenneth Gerald Taylor, 22, and Raymond Bonitto, 20, are to appear before Judge Charles B. Renfrew in U.S. District Court to plead to charges of armed robbery.

But a similar charge against Edward Barnett, 20, was dismissed Friday by U.S. Magistrate Richard Goldsmith when a government prosecutor said the Federal Bureau of Investigation had accepted the man's story that he was forced to drive the getaway car.

The three were arrested after a high-speed chase across the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge. A total of $1,100 was taken in the robbery at the Civic Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Fairfax Sets Building Plans

The Fairfax Town Council will authorize drafting of construction drawings for remodeling of the police department and construction of a new fire department when it meets at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Fairfax Women's Club.

Fairfax voters last Tuesday voted 1,103 to 419 in favor of a $300,000 bond issue to finance the new public safety facilities.

The council will also review a request for a paint striping machine and announce two vacancies on the town parks and recreation commission.

The meeting will be followed by a meeting of the parks and recreation commission.

Don't muddy up the googol.*

*Googol: The largest number of things that has a name. Webster defines as the number one followed by a hundred zeroes.

There are googols of little creatures squiggling and burrowing, flitting and squishing under the mud, through the swamps and over the sandy marshes. Sea squirts, copepods, lugworm larvae and the babies of little fish. Each with a kind of a brain, each with the breath of life. But their life is ebbing. And as they start to go—you do, too.

You are standing on the threshold of time in as sacred a place as any in the world. It's where the life of the water and the life of the land converge in biological blur. These are the wetlands—the swamps and the mudflats that sometimes smell like rotten eggs. These are the marshes, clogged with weeds, swarming with bugs, teeming with beautiful life. This is where the moon moves the water in shallow ebbs and floods; where the sun pierces down to the ooze and the nutrients flow in a strange and marvelous way. Nowhere else except here in these sopping grounds is there so much life in so much concentration. But the life is dwindling. And as these lands start to go—you do, too.

These squishy, mushy lands are where most of our fish are born, the fish that feed the fish that feed the fish that fill the sea. These narrow strips of estuarine land are where the birds come to rest and nest and feed; and they are tied inexorably to the life support for the raccoons and the bears and the deer a hundred miles away. And to you.

In California, most of the wetlands are already gone. In Florida, they're going fast. Once there were 127 million acres of interior and coastal wetlands. Now forty per cent are gone, the precious specks of life in these treasured lands exchanged for yacht clubs and marinas and industrial growth. As we dredge the bays and fill the marshes and cover the mud with asphalt; as we spray our poisons and scatter our waste and spew oil upon the waters—we destroy forever the great forces of life that began millennia ago.

But now we have gone too far. Because this planet belongs not only to us but to them as well. To the umpteen zillion other things that fly in the sky and roam on the land and swim in the sea and burrow beneath our feet.

Now, especially now, if we will only stop to think—perhaps we will think to stop.

Armed Forces Day, Farewell At Hamilton

By PATRICIA PERRY

Armed Forces Day at Hamilton Air Force Base Saturday was a day of cheer and nostalgia. A day of color and contrasts. A clear, hot day, that brought Bay Area residents by the tens of thousands to a splendid five-hour show, which was also a farewell to Marin's military installation.

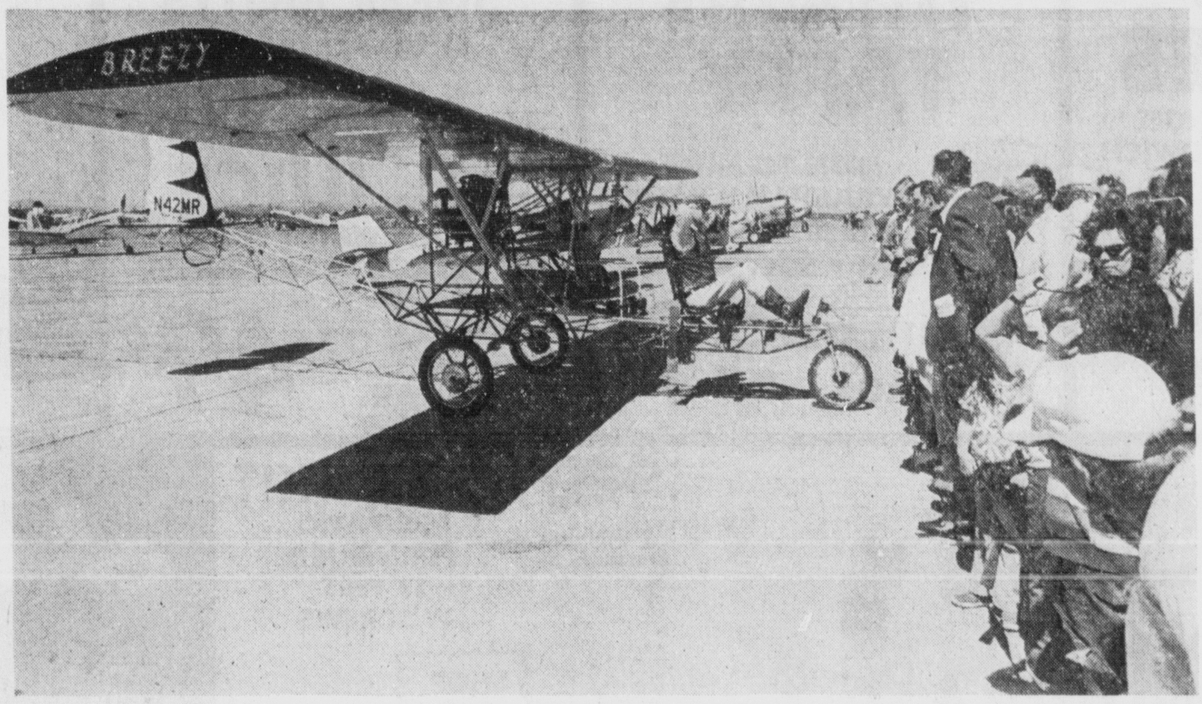
The cheer was evident in the person of Captain William W. Butler of San Rafael, recently released after being held prisoner by the North Vietnamese since 1967.

Captain Butler, hugging his young son on his lap, sat in the front row of distinguished visitors as the Thunderbirds performed their aerial maneuvers.

The whole day was dedicated to returning prisoners of war and in memory of those listed as Missing in Action. Next to Captain Butler's wife, Julie, sat Mrs. Jessie Hill, and her son. Her husband Senior Master Sergeant Robert L. Hill is missing in action in South East Asia.

The three were in the official Thunderbirds inspection team, together with base commander Col. R. R. Melton, San Rafael's mayor, C. Paul Bettini, and Novato City Councilman Wayne Sartain.

Although it was such a cheerful occasion, there was an atmosphere of sadness, for Saturday's show was the last such event at Hamilton, which is destined to become a reserve base by September. Notices scattered on various base facilities read: "Please don't ask about our status. We don't know."



HEADLINER — Breezy, a replica of a prop-driven plane of the Wright Brothers era, was a hit of Hamilton Air Force Base's open House Saturday. Owner Jack Gardiner of Mill Valley flew it.

The contrast between the United States Air Force of the space age and earlier years was dramatically demonstrated.

The five F4E Phantom Jets of the Thunderbirds poised, glittering red, white and blue, on the runway. Two hundred yards away sat vintage aircraft nearly spanning Air Force history.

Visitors could inspect a colorful P-40 of "Flying Tiger" fame, a still sturdy P-38 Lightning, (the twin-engine twin-boomed fighter of World War II,) a fat-bellied C130, three-quarter scale models of World War I planes, and dozens more.

The vintage aircraft display was arranged by Alfred V. Mankedick, assistant chief of airfield management at the base.

Contrasts were on all sides at the open house, which stretched a quarter-mile across the hangar and runway section of the airfield. The 41st Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Squadron displayed the Hc-130 Hercules and HH-53 Rescue aircraft which support their mission at Hamilton (they'll move to McClellan AFB, Sacramento, by September.) A young airman described the activities of para-rescuemen, and fascinated youngsters could inspect a flotation collar used in space capsule recoveries.

Fifteen WAFS from Hamilton put on a fashion show, modeling WAF fashions from the 1940s to today.

Anyone who had any doubt of military changes had only to watch Airman Second Class Karen Lanz later as she stood among the crowds watching the Thunderbirds perform their ritual inspection.

Airman Lanz was dressed in the WAF's outfit of 1942-44. She wore a calf-length khaki cotton skirt, sensible brown shoes, thick stockings, a long sleeved khaki shirt with matching tie, and a broad brimmed khaki forage cap.

The Thunderbirds, on the other hand, looked as if they were garbed by a Hollywood costumer. Pilots wore dazzling white jump suits and sungalsses. The ground crew wore matching blue jumpsuits, with white scarves knotted at their throats, caps and sunglasses.

Jets streaked across the airfield at 3 p.m. precisely, smoke trails forming delicate traceries. Pilots flew the jets in diamond formation, wings overlapping three feet, and performed complicated rolls and loops and arrowheads.

Then hundreds of visitors waited to see the vintage aircraft take off.

Perhaps everyone's favorite was "Breezy" a modern replica of a Wright pusher, with its wire frame and open cockpit.

Jack Gardiner of Mill Valley, the Breezy's owner, swung the wooden propellor, and, clad in flying helmet, leather jacket and boots, climbed into the cockpit.

Gardiner nonchalantly fastened his seat belt, taxied down the collosal concrete runway and took off in fine style, to applause from the departing spectators.

"It takes some nerve to fly that thing," muttered an Air Force jet pilot, who had watched the Thunderbirds perform without saying a word.

A Leftist Is Named Mayor

TOKYO (UPI) — A leftist candidate was elected mayor of Nagoya Sunday, dealing the conservative government of Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka a political setback in the nation's fourth largest city.

The election was seen as a sign of national discontent that will be reflected throughout the coming week in a series of national strikes and protests against living conditions in this highly industrialized nation.

In the election, Masao Motoyama, 62, defeated the government-backed Liberal Democratic party candidate, giving leftist-backed political leaders control of Japan's five largest cities.

Actor Writes His Own Wedding Vows

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor Rod Steiger was married during the weekend at his oceanfront home in a ceremony he wrote himself.

Steiger, 47, married Sherry Nelson, 36, his secretary. It was the third marriage for Steiger and the second for her.

Small Plane Is Missing

UKIAH (UPI) — Rescue parties searched the mountains in Sonoma and Mendocino counties Sunday for a light plane missing on a flight from Santa Rosa to Ukiah with four persons aboard.

The pilot, Leland P. Monroe of Santa Rosa, was five miles from the Ukiah airport when he last reported in by radio Saturday, but gave no indication of trouble, a spokesman for the Air-Sea Rescue Center at Hamilton Air Force Base said.

An air and ground search was launched when the Piper Cherokee became overdue. Aboard were Monroe, his wife, Doris, daughter, Sheryl Conner, 22, and son-in-law, King Conner, 21.

Redevelopment Session Tonight

The Larkspur City Council, sitting as the city redevelopment agency, will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at city hall to authorize consultants to work on redevelopment plans.

Then in a closed session, councilmen will hire a consultant to prepare an environmental impact report on the redevelopment project, which will support a major regional shopping center on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard next to the present Bon Air Center.

Rate Climbs On Birth Of Girls

LONDON (UPI) — Women who take birth control pills tend to have girls rather than boys when they give birth, the medical journal The Lancet said today.

Dr. Selwyn Crawford, writing in the journal, said evidence of this emerged in an investigation by Birmingham doctors seeking a possible link between oral contraceptives and a marked fall in respiratory complaints among underweight babies.

Coastal States Gas Caught In Squeeze

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Should we hold or sell 220 shares of Coastal States Gas Producing (NYSE) which cost an average of $11.75 a share? — V.R.

Q. I own 200 shares of Coastal States Gas purchased at $40. My goal was growth and needless to say this stock has been a great disappointment. Do you think that this stock will recover in the next year or two? — C.K.

A. Coastal States Gas' reserve position has been a major factor in share weakness. Although the merger with Colorado Interstate, completed on Jan. 2, 1973, helped beef up reserves, demand in the company's service ares is booming. A second important contributor to drop in share price is the cost/price squeeze in which Coastal is caught. While several major contracts have been rewritten on a cost-plus formula, others have not been renegotiated. Thus, this gas gathering and transmission company is in the unenviable position of supplying gas at prices well below their current purchase costs.

An extensive exploration program will be undertaken on property acquired in the merger with Colorado. In order to encourage producers to locate additional new gas reserves, rewritten sales contracts are incorporating incentive payments for these suppliers. Coastal has applied to the Railroad Commission of Texas for rate relief on one major contract and is seeking legal redress in another case. Periods of market strength should be utilized to dispose of these shares.

Q. I am interested in purchasing church bonds and would very much appreciate your views on the enclosed advertisement. — B.S.

A. The 8 per cent interest rate available on these bonds may also be secured in other more marketable debt obligations. The greatest drawback in institutional — church and hospital — bonds is the difficulty which may be encountered when selling prior to maturity. In order to attract buyers, these bonds may have to be sold at prices which are disadvantageous to the seller. While this is also true of other bonds, the resale or secondary market is active and large, thereby affording the seller a greater edge.

Market On Slow Side At Opening

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices drifted lower through midday today on the New York Stock Exchange. Analysts said many investors were still away for the Easter holiday which made for light trading.

Also first quarter earnings continued to show corporate profit gains, analysts said investor concern about inflation dampened any enthusiasm over the improved earnings. On Friday the government reported the consumer price index soared at a 9.6 per cent seasonally adjusted annual rate, the highest single-month gain in 22 years.

Salant Corp. was the most active issue, off ¼ at 8 ½ on 107,300 shares.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange declined in moderate trading. Champion Home Builders was the most active issue, up ⅜ at 6 ⅝ on 31,900 shares.

Italian Delicatessen Type Grocery Store To Open

An Italian delicatessen type of grocery store will open in a couple of months at 275 Marin Valley Drive in the little commercial area south of Hamilton Air Force Base.

The Neighborhood Grocery, to be operated by Guy and Mary Duryee of San Rafael, will be located across the street from the new theater, Cinema II. It will be an old fashioned neighborhood store, with beer and wine as well as groceries.

Duryee is a building contractor and former teacher.

THE UNIQUE EXPERIENCE, a new barber shop featuring plush furniture and private booths, has opened at Northgate Industrial Park north of San Rafael. It is located at 76 Mitchell Boulevard next to Dotto Glass.

Owner is Gary R. Trono of San Rafael, a 1969 graduate of Terra Linda High School, who graduated from San Francisco Barber College and worked for Joseph's of Northgate for two years. Trono takes customers — men, women, and children — by appointment only.

The Unique Experience has wall-to-wall carpeting, ornate furniture, and hanging plants. The shop is open Monday through Saturday.

Trono Devine

TERENCE J. DEVINE of Terra Linda, manager of the Hibernia Bank's automobile loan department at the Sutter-Grant office in San Francisco, has been promoted to vice president. He joined Hibernia in 1949 and became manager of the auto loan department in January of last year.

CAPTAIN DAVE'S Eatery, featuring the East Coast type of New England food, is open for business at the Alpha Beta Shopping Center in Larkspur, 578 Magnolia Avenue.

Owner-operator is David Frey of Tiburon, a captain in the Merchant Marine and a lieutenant in the U.S. Navy Reserves. He also has a degree from the University of Washington in Far Eastern and Russian studies.

Captain Dave's is open seven days a week from about 6 a.m. to 9 p.m.

PETER CARISETTI of Tiburon has been named vice president of Browne Vintners Co., San Francisco.

Formerly planning director for Browne Vintners, Carisetti has been in the beverage alcohol industry for more than seven years.

Simmons

JOHN V. SIMMONS of San Rafael, agent for the Redwood Empire District of Prudential Insurance Company, placed more than a million dollars of financial protection in 1972 with local families and businesses.

Archer C. Rounds, manager of the San Rafael office, said Simmons' achievement ranks him in the top five per cent of Prudential's 3,500 agents in the West. This is the fourth time that Simmons reached the million dollar figure during a year. He has been with the firm since 1964.

REALTORS BREAKFAST — Marin County Assessor Bert W. Broemmel will speak at the 8 a.m. breakfast meeting of the Marin County Board of Realtors tomorrow at the Corte Madera Lions Club.

BUILDING INDUSTRY Association of the Redwood Empire will sponsor a conference to explain OSHA (Occupational Safety and Health Act) on Wednesday (April 25) at Holiday Inn, Terra Linda.

Carl Brown of San Anselmo, executive director of the Redwood Empire Building Industry Association, said the all-day conference is open to anyone connected with the construction industry. Conference registration starts at 8:30 a.m., and adjournment is set for 3 p.m.

Speakers from the State Compensation Insurance Fund will explain OSHA and its impact on the building industry.

BANK OF AMERICA has prepared a guide on how the average family can match its routine expenses, entertainment costs and long-term goals with income.

The Family Financial Planning Kit, an eight-page instructional booklet, is available free at Bank of America offices throughout the state. It provides specific guidelines on developing a spending plan.

NATIONAL REAL ESTATE Fund, headquartered in Novato, announced the purchase of an 80-unit apartment in Sacramento and a 167-unit mobile home park in Lathrop, about 10 miles south of Stockton.

The Fund acquired 50 per cent interest in the Sundale Apartments in Sacramento, which sold for $1,350,000, and the Pacific Western Mobile Estates in Lathrop, which sold for $950,000.

National Real Estate Fund is administered by Capital Planning Securities Co. Inc., subsidiary of Capital Planning Associates Inc. of 97 San Marin Drive, Novato. The Fund, with about 2,600 California investors, owns or has a major interest in 32 properties with a total value in excess of $40 million.

HMO Sale Of Stock Is Planned

LOS ANGELES — HMO International has filed with the Securities & Exchange Commission a registration statement relating to a proposed public offering of 250,000 shares of common stock.

Of the shares to be offered, 175,000 will be sold by the company and 75,000 by certain shareholders. Clark, Dodge & Co. Inc. will manage the underwriting.

HMO International, Los Angeles, is in the business of providing management, marketing, administrative and other services as well as equipped facilities, insurance and prescription drugs, principally as part of a health maintenance organization.

Health maintenance organizations offer contractual prepaid health care in programs designed to reduce cost, broaden coverage and improve the quality of health care delivered.

Revenues were $7,157,000 and net earnings were $758,000 for the nine months ended Jan. 31.

Net proceeds from the shares to be offered by the company will be used primarily to repay certain short-term indebtedness.

Upon completion of the offering, HMO International will have 1,119,000 shares outstnading.

Metal Frame Homes To Be Discussed

Metal framing systems as an alternative to lumber in the construction of homes will be discussed on Tuesday, May 1, at Oakland Airport Hilton Hotel by builders, suppliers and subcontractors during a day long session sponsored by the Building Industry Association of the Redwood Empire.

Frank Conti, president of the association, predicted that lumber may become a thing of the past in home and light commercial building within five years. He said lumber pricing and supply history has forced the builder into accepting alternate products to lumber.

Dow Eyes Zero Water Pollution In Pittsburg

PITTSBURG, Calif. (BW) — Dow's chemical production complex here expects to have eliminated all of its water waste discharges into the San Joaquin River by the end of 1974, it was reported yesterday.

If the goal is achieved, it is believed that the plant could become one of the first major industrial chemical complexes in the nation to have succeeded in achieving zero water pollution.

The ambitious Dow Goal was announced by Dr. Earle Barnes, president of Dow Chemical U.S.A., who was in San Francisco to address California's annual Chemical Progress Week luncheon at the St. Francis Hotel.

Dow's Pittsburg chemical complex is the largest chemical plant in western United States. It occupies 450 acres which have a mile of frontage along the San Joaquin River between Pittsburg and Antioch.

The plant uses 27 million gallons of river water for cooling purposes each day. The plant must clean up the river water before it can be used for cooling purposes in the plant's processes.

Barnes said the plant will have eliminated all of its waste discharges to the river by the end of this year and it will have eliminated all of its thermal impact on the river by the end of next year.

The plant expects to do this by converting all of its chemical production plants in the complex to recycling operations and by disposing of some chemical waste materials in solar evaporation ponds located on the plant property. Three of the eight chemical process plants in the complex already are on total recycle operatins.

By the end of 1974 the plant expects to be in a position of not having to discharge any water back to the river.

It Would Make A Very Big Ball

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — If all the new rubber expected to be consumed in the United States in 1973 were rolled up into a solid ball, it would stand taller than New York's Empire State Building, says a trade source.

Domestic consumption will reach 6.5 billion pounds of new rubber this year, B.F. Goodrich forecasts, enough to make a ball 1,200 feet thick and 3,770 feet around. Less than one-fourth of it will be natural rubber, as the synthetics continue to increase their share of the comestic market.

Roofers Reelect Henris To Board

Horace Henris of Petaluma, president of Henris Supply Inc., was re-elected last month as a director of the Associated Roofing Contractors of the Bay Area Counties Inc.

Richard L. Miller, president of Marin County Roofing Co. Inc. of San Rafael, serves on the same board.

Barely A Nude Look At Muir Beach

By PAT ANGLE

It was clearly a case of no nudes are good nudes at Muir Beach Saturday.

For the first time this year sheriff's deputies on horseback were on hand at the small stretch of sand adjacent to the state beach, ready to discourage undraped sunbathing at the drop of a halter.

So were newsmen, from as far away as Sacramento, there to see what would happen when the law officers came up against the sun worshippers.

All that was missing — at least during the first three hours of the patrol — was the honest-to-goodness naked people, the kind the deputies were there to admonish.

Privately owned Little Beach was sparsely populated, despite the perfect weather, with only about 40 persons scattered along the sand. A few regulars, used to the crowds that sunny weekends have drawn in the past, said they thought most people had stayed away because of the prospect of police surveillance.

It was these past crowds that had led to complaints from the Muir Beach residents and establishment of the seven-day-a-week patrol.

Last year, the first year the mounted deputies were on the scene, the beach was the scene of minor confrontations and some arrests, as the nude bathers teased the sheriffs by running away and slipping in and out of their clothes.

"People were willing to fight for their beach then," said Lisa Landey, a law student from Larkspur.

But Saturday it looked as if the fight had gone out of most of the would-be nudists.

The barest sight around was an undressed baby and it soon became clear the two low-key deputies had no intention of rousting him. One woman briefly disrobed but put on her clothes quickly when a deputy requested it.

The whole scene gave credence to deputy Johan A. Earl's contention that nude beach patrolling is "kind of boring duty."

Despite the calm, however, people were definitely irked by the law officers presence.

"I think it's terrible," said a bearded man who identified himself only as Fred. "It's very intimidating to see those horses go back and forth."

A young woman recalled that last year, as she had been sunning herself fully clothed, a mounted deputy had raced into a group of bathers "in his haste to make his little raid and get his little medal."

"He almost trampled me," said she, adding, "Just hearing those walkie-talkies carried by the sheriffs really freaks me out."

"What are they going to do about the horse dung on the beach," another man asked acidly. "Maybe they'll have to hire a beach cleaner to pick up after the horses."

"They've ruined my beach and turned it into something really ugly," Miss Landey said.

She remembers that three years ago the beach was "a mellow, very friendly place" where people — including grandparents and their grandchildren —flocked happily, took their clothes off, played guitars and sang.

But all that changed in the summer of 1972, after residents complained to the county that the throngs of people, both nudes and nude watchers, were ruining the beach they owned and creating a health hazard because of the lack of sanitary facilities.

Most of the bathers interviewed Saturday said they don't believe that worries about health hazards were the real reasons for the objections voiced by the residents. Rather, they said, they think the beach owners were offended by the sight of naked bodies in the sand, below their hillside homes.

"I think it's their puritanical upbringing," said 27-year-old Jim. "They can't see that nudity is much more natural," he added.

"The . . . sat up there with binoculars — I saw them — and then they had the nerve to call the police and complain," said Miss Landey with some heat.

"Yeah, to be offended they had to use binoculars and get up on chairs too," laughed another woman.

There was frustration too on the beach Saturday because no one could figure out how to bring back the "good old days," sans deputy sheriffs.

Some mentioned petitions and organized protests, but wondered if those would really help. Miss Landey suggested the $1 fee to park on the state beach could be used to clean up Little Beach and set up restrooms there.

Meanwhile, the objects of the discussion — Deputy Earl and Paul Hughes, 35, a civilian member of the sheriff's mounted patrol, sat quietly on their horses, surveying the scene from a vantage point removed from most of the bathers.

"The worst part of their jobs," according to Hughes, "is being resented by some people." He is new to the nude patrol, although he has patroled for three years at Stinson Beach where there is almost no problem with sunbathers disrobing.

Earl, who was at Muir Beach last year, didn't appear too pleased at the prospect of having to make arrests, and said he likes to do his duty with as little fuss as possible.

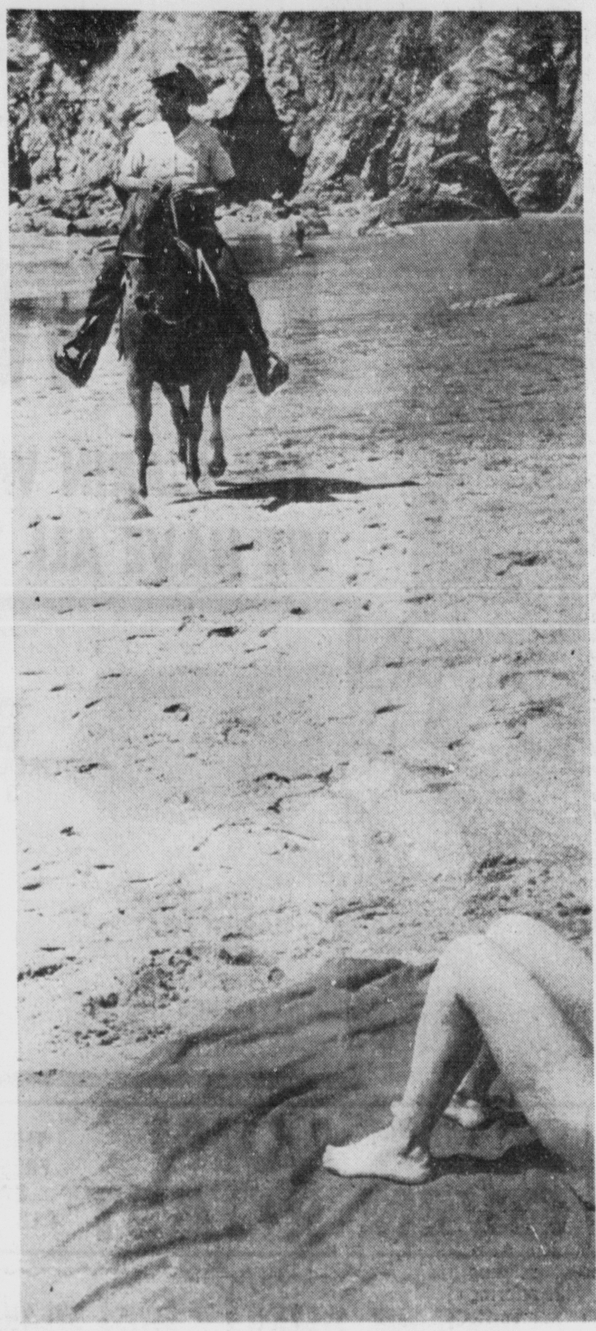
"It's no fun booking people," the 32-year-old deputy said. "So if someone undresses, I will simply ask them nicely — I'll even say please —to put their clothes back on."

Both Earl and Hughes admitted they personally see nothing wrong with nude sunbathing — in the right place.

"It should be in a secluded place where it wouldn't bother people who don't believe in it," said the genial Earl.

The men are also in favor of the Muir Beach Community Services District proposal that the county set aside a beach somewhere in Marin exclusively for nude sunbathers.

"Of course, Iwouldn't use it myself," the boyish-looking Hughes said with a grin. "I'm just the shy type, I guess."



BEACH PATROL — This nude was the exception to the rule Saturday as Marin County Sheriff's Deputy John Earl initiated the county's horse patrol at Muir Beach. The sunbather donned clothing immediately upon a firm and polite request from the Deputy.

It's a lot of cars for the money.

It has rack-and-pinion steering like the racing Ferrari. And a luxurious interior like the Mercedes-Benz 280SE.

It has independent front suspension like the Aston Martin. And the same amount of trunk space as the Lincoln Continental Mark IV.

It has front-wheel drive like the Cadillac Eldorado. And about the same headroom and legroom as the Rolls-Royce Silver Shadow.

The name of this remarkable automobile is the Audi 100LS. And what's even more remarkable about it is its price tag.

It's a lot less than you'd expect to pay for that many great cars.

Rec Program In Fairfax Due Study

The Fairfax Parks and Recreation Commission will consider a proposal for a sweeping reorganization of the town's recreational program when it meets at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Fairfax Women's Club.

At issue is a recommendation by commissioner Irma Kay that the city fire recreation directors Susan and Richard Woodall and recreation leader Kim Parker be replaced on an interim basis with College of Marin students.

Mrs. Kay has also urged that the commission be responsible for preparing its own budget, rather than allowing City Administrator Robert Crowe to perform the task.

Mrs. Kay first aired her proposals at a commission meeting last month in which several commissioners declared they were confused about commission goals and operation functions.

The commission is expected to draft a recommendation for the town council.

Hamilton House Plan On Agenda

Marin Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere will ask colleagues tomorrow to take steps to preserve surplus housing at Hamilton Air Force Base for senior citizens.

The Pentagon announced last week that Hamilton will be relegated to reserve status in September, and that much of the base housing will become surplus.

Roumiguiere is expected to ask the board to request that the federal government reserve at least a portion of the units for elderly persons.

In other business, the board will take up the City of San Rafael's threat to stop sending its fire equipment to blazes in unincorporated areas just outside the community's boundaries.

San Rafael officials say city residents are being taxed for unincorporated fire service often provided on a first-arrival basis by city equipment.

The supervisors, meeting at 9 a.m. at the Civic Center, also will consider reappointing Margaret B. Azevedo to the county planning commission, consider a sheriff's mounted patrol budget, discuss a regional housing task force report and weigh money requests from Marin Parents for Mental Recovery and the county youth commission.

Status Report On Arbitration Will Be Given

The Marin Hospital District board will hear a status report on arbitration to resolve four challenged votes in the recent union representation election at Marin General Hospital when it meets tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the hospital's Coral Room.

Nonprofessional employees at the hospital voted 94 to 91 against union representation March 22, but the final outcome was in doubt because of four challenged ballots. For Teamsters Local 856 of San Francisco to win the election, all four votes must be ruled valid by the state conciliation service and be in favor of Teamster representation.

The board also will hear an explanation of a proposed rate increase for Blue Cross membership.

Moretti Takes Up Drug-Price Cudgel

Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-North Hollywood, has taken up a battle that Marin-Sonoma Assemblyman William T. Bagley fought and lost last year.

As part of what he calls "a package of consumer bills," Moretti has introduced AB 684, to repeal the legal ban on advertising prices of prescription drugs.

Bagley and Assemblyman Harvey Johnson, D-El Monte, pushed a similar bill last year. But drug interests successfully opposed it. Johnson has joined Moretti as co-author of AB 684.

THE NEW BILL, like last year's, would not require any druggist to advertise. It would, however, require that the prices of 100 most frequently sold prescription drugs be posted in the store.

In introducing the measure, Moretti said:

"We know in the Los Angeles area the price of 100 one-grain thyroid tablets varies from $1.85 to $3.90. The cost of 500-milligram tablets of polycillin, a common antibiotic, ranges from $13.95 to $33.60.

"It is time that we quit bowing to the rhetoric that the sale of drugs is a professional service instead of a retail transaction."

OPPOSITION of the drug trade to the Bagley measure — which undoubtedly will follow the same lines regarding Moretti's bill — was based largely on claims that (a) compounding prescriptions is a professional job, and (b) permitting advertising would encourage substitution of inferior ingredients.

There is no argument that compounding prescriptions is anything less than a skilled professional job. But the majority of prescriptions call for drugs which the pharmacist does not compound. They are compounded by the manufacturer. The only difference between them and non-prescription drugs (which can be sold anywhere, and which are heavily advertised) is that they cannot be purchased without a doctor's prescription.

As to the contention that price advertising would encourage adulteration or cheap substitution, that argument also falls flat because most of the drugs are compounded by manufacturers and sold under trade names. If the doctor prescribes a certain label, that is what the pharmacist must use to fill the prescription.

PERMITTING prescription-drug price advertising would not turn druggists into price-cutters. We have clothing stores, furniture stores, grocery stores, etc., which do not court business on the basis of cut prices. But we have others that do. The customer has a choice.

He should have the same choice when he goes to have a prescription filled.

Maybe the current enthusiasm for "consumerism" — plus the additional "clout" of its sponsorship by the Assembly speaker — will enable Moretti's AB 684 to fare better than did Bagley's measure. We hope so.

A Closed Invitation

Stray dogs, raccoons and skunks seem to feel our garbage can is their reserved table at the barbecue pit. We have tried various ideas to discourage them over the years, but the pre-dawn bang of the garbage can toppling on the concrete and the messy job of replacing all the goodies were almost daily events. No more, we hope. At last, we think we have solved the problem. We wired our metal can to the wall of the house and put six inches of gravel in the bottom. Then we placed our plastic can inside. A closed invitation.

POLITICALLY POPULAR

Bridge Suicide Barrier May Be Waste Of Money

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Grandstanding San Francisco politicians on the Golden Gate Bridge District board are eager to waste $820,000 to add a suicide barrier to the bridge.

The same switches that turned on a battery of television cameras at a recent board revival of the proposed barrier also turned on the politicians. Some who virtually never lent a constructive note suddenly blossomed into statesmen calling eloquently for the barrier.

The less eloquent revived the contention that if the barrier saved one life it would be worth it. Since they were talking about the public's money, it was easy to say. It's their guilt feelings, but our money.

The board room, by coincidence, was packed with San Francisco citizens who loudly applauded their new statesmen.

STATISTICS ON SUICIDE in Bay Area counties, however, show that those taking their lives by jumping from high places ranged in most years from nil to about 3 per cent. Only in San Francisco, which abounds in high places, does the percentage leap in some years toward 10 per cent.

The statistics suggest very few jump from high places where there are few high places. In other words, people will continue to jump in San Francisco even if denied access to the bridge railing.

The fact that almost 500 persons have jumped from the span since it opened in 1937 is intolerable to the intense band lobbying for the barrier. We suspect that some of these persons are horrified largely because the tragedies are public. It is an easy nonissue for which to fight.

The unpopularity of opposing the barrier is evident in the fact no one has publicly objected to it. A spokesman for the San Francisco Planning and Urban Renewal Association, however, told us the group will protest on the ground any barrier will eliminate the present open view for pedestrians. People come from all over the world to see it, and hardly would enjoy peering through an endless eight-foot-high row of bars.

THE MONEY it would take to build the barrier would buy 16 additional buses seating 720 commuters a day — each way.

San Franciscans on the bridge board, of course, think little of squandering $820,000 to burnish their image. These same men,, after all, are raiding the district's limited treasury for $9 million to finance ferries instead of a proper bus system.

Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum voted with the San Franciscans to spend $67,500 to complete design and testing of the barrier. Its construction cost was estimated at $750,000, which probably will prove far too low an estimate. San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini voted against the expenditure, and Dean N. Meyer of Mill Valley was absent.

The proposal has been kicked around for 23 years, and deserves at least another 23 years of reconsideration.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

President Misusing Executive Privilege

I believe that the President should allow his aides to testify before the Senate subcommittee investigating the Watergate break-in. I think all of us in America, whether we are Republicans or Democrats, should be concerned enough to voice out opinions on this and any other matters pertaining to the running or legislating of our country.

I doubt very much if executive privilege should be invoked in such matters not pertaining to our national security. The only security the President seems to be concerned with in this matter is his own and his friends' who have high positions on his staff. To me this is deplorable and a deliberate misuse of the President's powers along with a deliberate miscarriage of justice.

I do hope that in time everyone will leave this state of apathy that exists in this country. This is our America and we should believe in it enough to be interested in what is going on in the three branches of government. If the President has nothing to hide about the Watergate, we should call on him to let the facts be known.

Use your influence as American people and write to your legislators and the President as I have already done.

'It All Depends Whose Ox Is Gored'

The past several days of Marin County and state politics provide a disgusting and sad moral commentary, not only for politicians but for many of our covetous citizens and those of the bandwagon type.

Marin County was one of the nation's most eloquent when it came to denouncing military might in Vietnam and to castigating military ponderance and its ancillary expense in general . . . All of this echoed from Sausalito to Kentfield. We had a host of lawyers and grocers and dentists who all suddenly were graduates of the Command and General Staff College . . .

. . . And now the President, throughout the nation, is trimming non-essential military fat — cutting military costs. Nationally this is a popular move but it is always selfishly unpopular wherever the fat is removed . . .

Condescendingly or jealously Supervisor Dorothy Young calls Hamilton AFB the country club of the Air Force . . . She can't believe the Air Force would abandon this great Hamilton super-haven. Supervisor Arrigoni suddenly forgets the county's national posture and nitty-grittily he becomes more provincial. He is going to "protest vigorously and loudly pursue the Pentagon reversal." Roar! Baptiste unflamboyantly "regrets the closure." . . . Yeah! We want the military base! We want uniforms! We want payday!

. . . Senator Tunney, super dove, calls the military closure "cruel and insensitive." And that just boggles the mind, if you have the recall for his previous statements regarding. . . the President bankrupting the country through military expenditure. Meanwhile over in the City, Mayor Alioto refers to military closures as devastating. Yet San Francisco-town was probably the most vocal anti-military establishment urban center in the nation. Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Max Taylor, had to flee out of a side entrance of the Fairmont for a hasty airport debouchment with anti-militarists in hot pursuit.

Doesn't all this strike you, as a thinking person, as politically and morally phoney? . . . Mailliard, who I do not know and have never met, added a measure of dignity to the Cinderella sister act by saying, "Better close it up and put it to another use." Hooray for that kind of fortitude and good sense, whatever his ticket. Shame on a vast multitude of multi-faced Marinites!

Arabs' Chickens Now Coming Home To Roost

The anguished bleatings of a section of the Arab community against the recent commando tactics of the Israelies are very strange. After all the Arabs have harbored and encouraged the Palestinian guerrillas to commit mayhem against innocent persons for years — all at once, plucky Israel decides to play the same game, and all at once the Arabs are screaming for sanctions and whatnot in the Security Council. When you come down to the nitty-gritty of the matter, it all depends on whose ox is geing gored — and since the Arabs started the terrorism and/or condoned it, or whatever, it appears that the chickens are coming home to roost!

First Aid Training Real Life-Saver

A week ago last Saturday a young man by the name of Steve Brocksen was riding his motorcycle along the Nicasio-Lucas Valley cut-off when he ran into a car at the intersection.

Two young men who were on their way to work in Mill Valley were present on the scene when the accident occurred. Both young men have American Red Cross first aid training. The younger, 15-year-old Patrick Kuhre, went back to Nicasio immedaitely and called in for the ambulance. The older, 17-year-old Frank Kuhre, went to the aid of young Steve Brocksen. He took off the crash helmet and noticed that the boy was in great pain when he tried to breath, so he turned him onto his left side and covered him with his own jacket. He stayed there talking to the boy and keeping him from moving until the police and the ambulance got there.

The I-J reported that 98 per cent of the cases of this type died. I believe that the prompt action of these two young men helped the doctors who operated on young Brocksen by giving them a fighting chance by their actions.

I believe that both young men, especially Frank, deserve a commendation for their desire to take the first aid course and then keep cool and calm when the need came to use their knowledge.

Nixon Can't Dismantle Capitol, But Congress Wants To Do So

WASHINGTON — The day Mr. Nixon bravely announced he had discovered this thing called the Watergate, and he had intrepidly decided to investigate it after scoffing for nine months at the investigation of it by others, and even to send his underlings up to Congress to testify about it under oath — that was the day Congress prevailed at least temporarily in the great executive-privilege showdown with the executive branch, and so it may have seemed to be the day the Capitol was saved from being declared null and void by the White House.

But Mr. Nixon's threat to the capitol never had been more than institutional. Even had he stuck to it, the capitol physically would have remained standing at the other end of the avenue, looking from the White House side very much as it has for more than 100 years.

IT TAKES the Congress itself to destroy the capitol, now that the British are constrained from raiding through the area anymore. And on the selfsame day Mr. Nixon was surrendering in the paper war with his legislative challengers, the House of Representatives was voting to do just that.

Not to tear the capitol down, exactly, but to dismantle and replace the only facade of the building which has survived the legislators' ego-fed campaign for more office space.

It is unfair to say all congressmen joined in this latest assault on the historic building we taxpayers provide for them to work in. The move passed by only six votes, and even as I write there is a counterattack under way to reverse it. But the odds are that the proposal eventually will become law, because it is the personal crusade of the leaders and senior members who will benefit most from it.

THE IDEA is to spend $58 million to extend the west front of the capitol, the one visible from far down the mall in the sweeping view that is the most impressive remaining part of Pierre L'Enfant's master plan for monumental Washington. The project would wipe out the west front as it now stands and the famous landscaped terraces stepping down from it to the mall.

It would insure that during the great influx of visitors from America and abroad expected here during the celebration of the nation's bicentennial, the capitol will be in about as disheveled a state as it was after the Redcoats razed it during construction in 1814.

The cited reason from the congressional elders is that something drastic must be done to keep the west front from collapsing on them. Or at least that was the reason they cited before the likelihood of imminent collapse was refuted by an engineering firm hired to study its condition. Now the repair aspect has been shoved to the background, and the principal reason is the need for more working space.

As speaker of the House Carl Albert, D-Okla., put it, "I know some have a different view, but the capitol has to grow with the rest of the country."

THE MEMBERSHIP of Congress has grown only slightly in this century, as the Senate increased by two with the admission of each new state. In that same period, five huge office buildings have been completed for members and their staffs. These are the Cannon Building (1908), Longworth (1933) and Rayburn (1965) on the House side, and the Russell (1909) and Dirksen (1958) on the Senate side. Together they have more than 2,500 office rooms, numerous hearing chambers, subways, cafeterias, swimming pools, gymnasiums, underground parking garages and much more.

But a signal disadvantage of all that office space is that it is across the street from the capitol itself, and to reach the House or Senate floor from it, a member must either walk or ride the subway as much as a block or even two. Thus the speaker, the party leaders and other elders traditionally have coveted the relatively few offices in the capitol. Nooks and crannies hidden among the clerestories and peristyles of the old building are prized signs of status, and handy repositories of Wild Turkey and Chivas Regal.

Senior members are not about to give up any of those hideaways to make more working space available. In fact, the extension of the west front (the east was pushed out 11 years ago) is largely intended to provide more of them, plus a few extra men's rooms.

It is not leftover Prohibition prudery that prompts such a big minority of members to oppose the extension, nor even envy of their elders. It is a sense of respect for what is left of the old capitol, and incidentally for the estimated $58 million, which is bound to increase. They do not agree that the capitol has to grow with the rest of the country, and I doubt that the rest of the country does, either.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Orient Draws Major Attention In American Foreign Policy

While not neglecting Europe, policy planners at the State Department see the United States dominantly occupied with the Western Pacific for some time to come. Their reasons:

The four great powers — Russia, China, Japan and the United States — converge there.

Except for the Sino-Soviet border dispute, events are improving the climate in their relationships. This opens up new opportunities to stabilize the whole area.

Much of the world's population is concentrated in Asia. Its people are dynamic.

'NIXON SHOCKS' TO JAPAN FADE. When Nixon devalued the dollar the first time and sent Kissinger to China without informing Tokyo, many predicted that U.S.-Japanese relations would be undermined.

It isn't working out that way. The "Nixon shocks" have passed and the emperor of Japan is paying a symbolic visit to Washington late this month in the most favorable atmosphere.

Tokyo is finding that improving Sino-American relations is bringing improved relations between Japan and China. And, as with the United States, the effect is to induce the Soviet Union to be more cooperative.

JAPAN, THE ECONOMIC SUPERSTAR. Its economy keeps expanding. At its present growth rate, the Japanese people will soon achieve an average income equal to that of Americans — $3,500 per capita. They are aggressively competitive but are taking steps to hold down the flow of exports to the United States in order to redress the imbalance of trade.

As in other industrialized countries, the Japanese are finding that improvement in the standard of living is bringing a deterioration in the quality of living. The massed population of Tokyo suffers in a cloak of the most polluted air in the world — worse than Los Angeles or Rome.

The reason: Too many motor vehicles in too small an area. Japan has 164 cars to every squqre kilometer; The Netherlands, 89 per kilometer; Britain, 59; the United States, 17.

FULBRIGHT BOWS TO LIBRARY OF CONGRESS. The chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has disputed every witness — Secretary of State Rogers, Secretary of Defense Richardson, Attorney General Kleindienst — who contended that the President is acting legally in using his war powers in Indochina.

Senator Fulbright has now accepted the verdict of the research staff of the Library of Congress in a study he requested. It concludes that a cease-fire does not of itself end a war and that there is no constitutional bar to resuming any part of the fighting by the President.

Marin's Simulated Earthquake Will Be No Paper Disaster

Marin County workers and officials of seven of the county's cities will cooperate with public schools and medical teams May 11 in the county's second disaster training exercise.

So far as I can find out, it will be the first time in years that any emergency operations area in the Bay Area has such a realistic test of its civil defense organizations.

Frank Kirby, Marin's emergency coordinator, has had telephones to both ears at once, obtaining helicopters, school buses and heavy engineering equipment for actual use in the drill.

The scenario, written by a team of disaster officials, will imagine that an earthquake with a magnitude of 6.0 has shaken the San Andreas Fault. Medical emergency teams will take to the air in helicopters to go to the scene of hypothetical injuries; school buses will transport children to emergency centers, and fire and rescue teams will go through the routines they'd perform in a real emergency.

The county's first disaster drill last December, was held entirely on paper, with no equipment actually mobilized. The second test will be much more realistic — and should be that much better training.

TRISCADECAPHOBIA is a word that I've never been able to find in the dictionary, but musician Harry James recorded a song about it during World War II. The word supposedly means "fear of the number 13," equating it with superstitions about black cats and broken mirrors and Friday the 13th.

I'm now a victom of the ailment — only it seems like Friday the 13th continued all last week end.

Nothing very startling happened on Friday itself — but Saturday the troubles began early.

I was trying to coax a big, black 125-pound dog into his crate to take him to a dog show in Sacramento. He obligingly put his front paws up into the truck, but when I tried to boost his hindquarters in, he flailed his massive head around, whacking me in my sunglasses. The nosepieces dug into the bridge of my nose — copious blood resulted.

A few minutes later, one door of the van slammed on my right hand while I had my arms full of gear I was loading in. That hurt like mad, but nothing broke, it turned out — the hand swelled half again normal size.

On Sunday, the first dog I showed was my friend that bopped me in the nose. As I was running around the show ring with him, he veered into me. I did the darnedest cartwheel you ever saw on the concrete floor, and the judge said too bad and gave the dog second place.

A couple of hours later I was standing at another ring, checking to see when our next dog was to be shown, when another exhibitor's Yorkshire terrier weighing all of about three pounds glared up at me, barked, and ran around and bit me in the heel.

I should have stayed in bed all week end.

MELVIN MADDOCKS

The Bureaucratic Approach To 'What Is A Bureaucrat?'

A good sociologist doesn't know the meaning of the word obvious. He will roll a stone — a tough, big-city stone, all angles — down the hill of an urban neighborhood, whacking 10-year-old Fords and Chevies as it goes. Next he will take a nice, round, comfortable stone and push it down a suburban incline — so slowly, so gradually that even a fat middle-class dachshund can get out of the way. Finally he will climb Nob Hill, reverently, and tumble this exquisite jewel of a quartz-piece down upper-upper-middle-class lawns — grass like green velvet.

He will poll all three neighborhoods for opinions, collate his own observations into nine statistical-distribution charts, and then, and only then, announce: A rolling stone gathers no moss.

IRONICALLY Dr. Amitai Etzioni, a Columbia University sociologist, usually an anti-cant man himself, has produced a 374-page study for the U.S. Department of Labor to report — are you ready?: You can't fit a square peg into a round hole.

For those who are not familiar with how one says "Please put a round peg in a round hole" in sociologese, here is Dr. Etzioni's free translation: "A better fit between a person's predisposition and the nature of his or her job should increase genuine satisfaction and reduce alienation, wherever it exists."

The specific "predisposition" Dr. Etzioni happens to be investigating is "bureaucratic predisposition." Are bureaucrats born bureaucrats or can they be made bureaucrats? This is what the Department of Labor really wants to know.

FOR A COUPLE of bucks (tax included) the secretary of labor could have bought a copy of Franz Kafka's "The Trial," the best study of bureaucracy ever written. Instead, at considerably more expense than a paperback, one assumes, the Department of Labor bought the sociologist's approach. And so, 2,592 workers took a 43-item "Tolerance for Bureaucratic Structure" test. The bureaucrat profile emerged thus:

He or she is older rather than younger; married or divorced rather than single; moderately educated rather than highly (or lowly) educated; black rather than white; Protestant rather than Roman Catholic or Jewish; and female rather than male.

It is too fine a point to suggest that the Etzioni test seems a fairly bureaucratic approach to the question of who's a bureaucrat and who isn't? Would anybody but a structure-tolerant" bureaucrat submit to this kind of exam in the first place?

POOR CONSCIENTIOUS bureaucrat! He just does what he's told, and nobody loves him for it, not even himself. In "The Fall of Rome," W.H. Auden caught the bureaucrat, typecast as a Roman, frozen forever in his spasm of self-contempt:

Caesar's double-bed is warm
As an unimportant clerk
Writes I do not like me work
On a pink official form.
Adding, just to rub it in:
Altogether elsewhere, vast
Herds of reindeer move across
Miles and miles of golden moss,
Silently and very fast.

How this soldier-ant, the "uptight" bureaucrat (Dr. Etzioni's adjective), is doomed to envy the nonbureaucrat, the grasshopper! — "easy-going, relaxed, unaware of time rhythms."

WHAT CAN BE DONE? Very little, Dr. Etzioni sighs, taking another plunge into the obvious to report: You can't teach an old dog new tricks. Sociologese coding: "Persons have some set preferences in terms of their work, which seem not easily changed once they reach maturity."

There is a patness to all this categorizing that even a good bureaucrat might be prompted to resist. Perhaps the time has come to announce a "Tolerance for Sociological Structures" test. It may surprise the social science industry, but most people are not thrilled to be identified as "bureaucrats" or even "nonbureaucrats." In their dreams they think of themselves as something more, something as varied — would a social scientist believe it? — as, in fact, individuals.

Extremists go so far as to protest that even sociologists deserve better than to become somebody else's generalization. Sure it sounds absurd, but after all, some of them may be round pegs in square holes too.

Bagley Plans Action On Amending Tax Rebate Bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The trimming of Gov. Ronald Reagan's income tax rebate plan is scheduled to become official this week as squabbling continues over the proposal.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, said yesterday he will amend the Reagan plan which he sponsors on the basis of new estimates showing less-than-expected state revenues.

Bagley, who sponsors most Reagan administration fiscal matters in the lower house, added that he doubted that even his amended version of the rebate plan would win the necessary approval in the Democratic-controlled Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee.

The cut-down form of the rebate proposal will allow the state director of finance to decide how much money the taxpayers will get back — scrapping the earlier firm, one-time 20 per cent rebate figure.

Squabbling over the plan continues to flare because Democratic critics say they don't want the money sent back to taxpayers when the estimated surplus size is bouncing up and down and no one knows for sure where it stands.

The Republican governor said in an April 13 interview that a projected $176 million cut in the state budget surplus might reduce — but wouldn't stop — his plans for an income tax rebate. Bagley said the cut probably will be in the vicinity of $100 million.

Democratic critics say the reduced revenue would "ruin" both the rebate plan and the governor's controversial plan for limiting future state governmental spending.

Reagan's original tax rebate plan was based on projections of a $852 million state budget surplus by June 30.

Besides the income tax rebate, Reagan proposes delaying the effective date of a one cent per dollar boost in the sales tax hike from June to Jan. 1, 1974.

Bagley said the legislature must agree soon on how long to delay the sales tax hike because it will cost $200,000 to print and distribute new tax tables for the June hike.

Meantime, Bagley said he will push a separate measure to delay the sales tax hike for one month — something he said everyone can approve.

"I ask, beg, entreat and implore the legislature to stop playing chicken with the taxpayers of California or the chickens will come home to roost on the legislature's back, and I don't want that," Bagley said.

Reagan's rebate plan, which Democratic legislature leaders agreed to hear in committee, is also the subject of an initiative petition campaign to place the issue on a special November ballot.

The governor says his initiative will save taxpayers millions of dollars over a 15-year period without curbing essential services. Critics say it would place state government in a straightjacket.

The ceiling provision is missing from Bagley's rebate bill. But Bagley said his bill will continue to provide a delay in the sales tax hike until Jan. 1 — the date Reagan prefers — and will appropriate $70 million for park acquisitions.

13-Year-Old Is Title Winner

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Teri Ann Carter, 13, Clovis, was named high point stock seat champion in the 13 and under class Sunday at the Grand National Junior Horse Show at the Cow Palace.

Miss Carter, who has 57 blue ribbons for showing horses, also won the western pleasure championship for riders 13 and under.

B.J. Henning of Sacramento and Becky Gregg of Santa Rosa tied for the high point stock seat championship in the 14 through 17 age division.

Corte Madera Panel Sets Final Meeting

The Corte Madera Citizens Fire Department Improvement Committee formed in 1971 after a series of disastrous residential fires in the town will wind up its affairs at a final meeting at 7:30 p.m. next Monday at town hall.

Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels said the committee will make its final report to the town council and then disband.

Since the committee's start, the Corte Madera Fire Department has added manpower and has begun manning the fire station on a 24-hour basis.

The committee will consider next Monday a five-year plan for the fire department prepared by Chief Frank L. Nelson.

He recommends moving the fire station headquarters to a site near the present California Highway Patrol building east of Highway 101. (The CHP would be displaced by Corte Madera's redevelopment plans, and is expected to relocate at the Larkspur ferry terminal.)

Nelson, in the five-year plan, says that since Corte Madera is a one-fire-station town, a station by the freeway cloverleaf would make runs to any location in town "acceptable for adequate response."

If the headquarters isn't moved from its present location on Tamalpais Avenue next to the town hall, Chief Nelson suggests remodeling the substation on Paradise Drive, east of the freeway, to give east side coverage.

He envisages the town hiring an extra fireman each year from 1974 through 1978.

Five Killed In Head-On Crash

SEATTLE (UPI) — Five persons died Sunday night when two cars collided head-on on the rain-slick Evergreen Point floating bridge spanning Lake Washington. Two others cars plowed into the wreckage.

The victims were identified as Patricia Jane Young, 25, Kirkland, Wash.; her daughter, Shannon Renee Young, 5; Daniel B. Solbach, 29, Seattle; his wife, Joanne Solbach, 27; and their son, Todd Belmont Solbach, 4.

All but the elder Solbach were dead at the scene. He died a short time after reaching University Hospital.

Board To Set Principalships

The Kentfield School District board will be asked to approve assignments of principals of its four schools for the 1973-74 school year when it meets tonight at 8 o'clock at Wolfe Grade School.

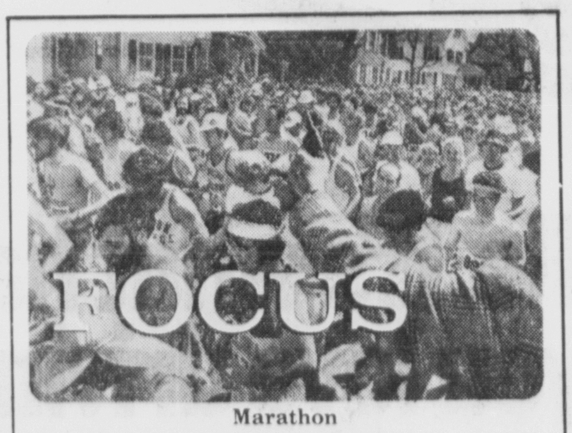
Arcima F. Taylor will become principal of both Adaline E. Kent elementary and junior high schools, Roy L. Smith, principal of Wolfe Grade, and Edward A. Allen, principal of Greenbrae School and assistant principal of Kent elementary.

Gene L. Hendsch, at present principal of Kent elementary, will be reassigned as an administrative assistant.

Freighter Sinks But Crew Is Safe

ATHENS (UPI) — The Panamanian freighter Astrid, swept by fire and a series of explosions, sank in the south Aegean Sea today but its 21 crew members were reported safe, a Merchant Marine spokesman said.

The Italian and Egyptian crew members abandoned ship in two lifeboats when seawater began flooding the 3,198-ton vessel.



Marathon

In 490 B.C., a small force of Athenians attacked and repulsed an invading Persian army near the town of Marathon. The Persians are said to have suffered losses of 6,400 men while only 192 Greeks fell in battle. A Greek soldier, Pheidippides, ran the 22 mile distance from Marathon to Athens bearing the news of the spectacular victory. When he arrived he cried out, "Rejoice, we conquer," and fell dead from exhaustion. To commemorate this event, a "marathon" run of 26 miles, 385 yards, has been included in the modern Olympic Games since they were first held in Athens in 1896. Appropriately, the first marathon winner was a Greek, Spyros Loues.

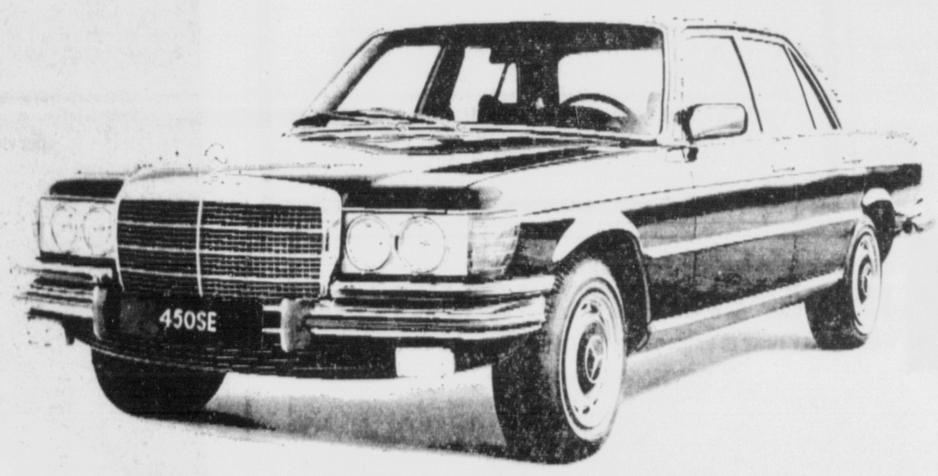
Introducing a $13,500 sedan that promises the most remarkable driving experience of your life: the new Mercedes-Benz 450SE



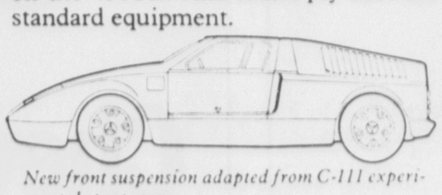
YEARS OF intense engineering effort were invested in the new Mercedes-Benz 450SE. Technical advances everywhere combine to produce handling response, security and stability that may well surpass any Mercedes-Benz sedan yet built, according to the engineers.

New front suspension

This car's sense of control is uncanny. The 450SE goes where you aim it—so precisely, that even veteran Mercedes-Benz drivers may find themselves astonished.

The reason: a zero steering offset front suspension system, adapted from the 180-mph C-111 experimental coupe.

Rear suspension design is the same fully independent system you will find on the 450SL. And radial-ply tires are standard equipment.



New front suspension adapted from C-111 experimental sports car.

The 450SE's designers wanted to keep the car as unruffled as possible—even in sudden, violent maneuvers.

2.7 turns lock-to-lock

An already superb power steering system was reworked to transmit an even surer road feel. Steering response has been improved, too. The 450SE goes from full left to full right in only 2.7 turns of the steering wheel—a figure unmatched by any domestic luxury sedan.

Under the hood is a 4.5 litre electronically fuel-injected V-8. And specifically designed to mate with this engine is a 3-speed automatic gearbox with a floor-mounted shift lever.

A disc brake on every wheel

In the new Mercedes-Benz 450SE a ring of air scoops is built into the inside of each wheel. Purpose: to bathe all four disc brakes in a steady gust of air. No domestic luxury sedan even employs 4-wheel disc brakes. Mercedes-Benz has used this system in its sedans for nearly a decade. Of course, the 450SE carries on in this tradition.

Shaped in the wind tunnel

Its designers gave the 450SE a shape that owes much to aerodynamics.

Massive windshield wipers are meant to harness the car's airflow to stay flat on the glass, even at maximum speeds. Vanes on the forward pillars and catch gutters on the rear window are placed there to scoop rain over the roof and away from the side and rear windows. Ribbed taillight lenses were designed to use the car's own air turbulence as a constant "scrubber" in rain and slush—staying visible to following traffic.

Compact outside, surprising inside

This spacious 5-passenger sedan only needs a turning circle of 37.5 feet—more than 7 feet smaller than any domestic luxury sedan. The 450SE itself is smaller, too. It is narrower and over 2.9 feet shorter. Surprise: in most vital respects, this new Mercedes-Benz gives you equal room inside. And there is more trunk space.

Front doors that breathe

The 450SE's built-in air-conditioning system is designed to prevent jarring blasts of frigid air; instead, controls are infinitely adjustable for temperature. Cooling or warming air is channelled not just through separate instrument panel vents but also via hidden outlets in both front doors.

A vacuum-operated central locking system is also built into your 450SE. One twist of the key in the outside driver's door lock silently secures all 4 doors, the trunk lid and the gas port.

Besides that air-conditioning system, standard equipment includes power steering and brakes; automatic transmission; electric windows; AM/FM stereo receiver; tinted glass; twin front fog lights and front- and rear-seat armrests.

The brief option list includes: leather upholstery; electric sun roof and fitted luggage.

The final significance

The 450SE incorporates more safety thinking than any Mercedes-Benz in history.

Mercedes-Benz motor cars: from $16,498* to $6,662*

Mercedes-Benz offers a vast range of models. Here are suggested retail prices for 8 of the most popular types:

450SLC Coupe	$16,498
450SL Coupe/Roadster	$12,773
450SEL Sedan	$14,605
450SE Sedan	$13,396
280 Coupe	$ 9,994
280 Sedan	$ 9,319
220 Sedan	$ 6,889
220 Diesel Sedan	$ 6,662

*East and Gulf Coast ports of entry, exclusive of transportation, other options, state and local taxes, if any. Copyright 1973, Mercedes-Benz of North America, Inc.

Some of it you can see, like massive locks fitted at every door; sturdy windshield and door pillars; wraparound front and rear bumpers; lavishly padded interior. Some safety thinking is invisible, like the fuel tank mounted inboard over the rear axle as far from harm's way as the engineers could devise—then encased in steel bulkheads.

Invitation to a remarkable experience

A new Mercedes-Benz inevitably stirs wide interest. So call your authorized dealer soon and arrange a test drive.

Anti-U.S. Call Made In Cairo

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

A Cairo newspaper editor said today Arab attacks on American interests in the Middle East were inseparable from military confrontation with Israel and urged the Arabs to prepare a detailed plan for striking at U.S. interests in the area.

Moussa Sabry, editor of the newspaper Al Akhbar, said, "The guns on the confrontation front... will not be silent for long. The days of sacrifice are approaching faster than some people may think."

"There must be a detailed study of a plan to boycott America, an effective plan stemming from the will of the masses," Sabry wrote. "This is the responsibility of all Arab people on all Arab soil. Let the Arab struggle against everything American go on for years and years so that the White House will come to realize what a high price it will have to pay."

Sabry's bellicose statement was the latest in a series of statements from Egyptian leaders which have led diplomats at the United Nations to fear a new war in the Middle East may break out before the end of the year.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohamed H. el-Zayyat said Sunday Egypt is determined to "reestablish our territorial integrity." His statement, on the CBS program "Face the Nation," followed by one day a plan submitted to Parliament by Egypt's President Anwar Sadat calling for full mobilization of the country's resources for a new confrontation with Israel.

Egypt announced it would build "popular resistance training camps" as part of the mobilization program.

In Paris today, newspapers reported that French-Israeli relations had reached "a grave crisis" over Israeli charges that Libya had sent French Mirage jets to Egypt. France has denied the allegation.

The French Foreign Ministry said Sunday that Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban "had not furnished any proof that the Franco-Libyan agreement has been violated..." The agreement provides that French jets will not be sent to any of the belligerents in the 1967 Six Day War.

Arab military chiefs of staff met over the weekend to discuss a common strategy against Israel. They said they made some progress in "confronting the Israeli enemy."

Egyptian Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Saad Eddin Shazli said after the strategy talks in Cairo that despite the "progress" achieved at the meeting, there was no success in attempts aimed at reviving the Jordanian front against Israel.

Shazli said the Jordanian front, which collapsed when King Hussein expelled Palestinian guerrillas in September, 1970, "has not assumed satisfactory form yet, though more attempts will be made to revive it."

Shazli said the meeting did not take up the Israeli commando April 10 raid on Beirut.

"The conference cannot deal with particulars," he said, "but with the overall method of confronting the Israeli enemy."

In other Middle East developments, the Italian newspaper Il Messaggero said Sunday a new peace initiative is being formulated based on the construction of a second Suez Canal.

The paper said Italian leaders have been working privately for nine months to promote the plan.

A similar report appeared in the Sunday Telegraph of London and Cairo sources called it "complete nonsense."

Two Men Rob Airlines Office

Two men, one armed with a snubnosed revolver, held up the offices of SFO helicopter airlines in Mill Valley yesterday and escaped with an undetermined amount of cash.

Marin sheriff's deputies said the men accosted attendant Matthew Cervelli about 8:26 p.m., flashed a revolver and fled on foot with the contents of a cashbox.

The men were described as in their 20s, black, six feet tall, medium build, both with beards and Afro haircuts, and both wearing floppy hats.

Effect Of Boycott Said Poor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., concedes the weeklong meat boycott had an almost "nonexistent" effect on prices but says consumer groups may try it again early in May.

Rosenthal, a leader of the boycott the first week of April, said Sunday the boycotters want both lower prices and a change in the nation's "archaic agricultural system."

"They understand that the boycott can have only a minimal effect on prices and it did have only a minimal, if almost a nonexistent effect on prices," Rosenthal said.

He said, however, consumer groups may launch another weeklong boycott early next month "contingent on the federal government taking certain action."

Crash Cushions Being Placed On Freeways To Ease Accidents

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — New crash cushions are being installed along California's most dangerous freeways to ease the blow of high-speed accidents, state officials said yesterday.

The plan is to replace sheer wall and gore nose abutments with more desirable barriers. The new types being used by the state are yellow water tubes, large garbage can-like containers of sand and 55 gallon steel drums with holes cut in the top.

"We have 29 that are operational statewide," explained Edward Tye, assistant state traffic engineer. He said initial results indicate that the crash cushions are a valuable tool in the campaign to reduce the number of deaths on the nation's highways.

During 1972, there were 38 accidents involving a crash cushion. There was only one death among them and that fatality was caused by fire rather than impact.

Seventy-one additional crash cushions have been proposed at critical places on various freeways.

On impact, the water tubes send a geyser of spray into the air, the sand tubs explode and the steel drums carefully collapse. Thus far, the state has 19 water installations, eight sand tubs and two steel barrels.

The gore nose is a sloping structure which highway engineers once thought would gradually stop a careening car rather than force it to crash violently into a sheer wall.

"But they work like a ski jump and launch cars into the air," Tye said. "They can roll a car, too, which is equally bad because of the number of people who don't wear seatbelts and are in danger of being ejected."

Videotape cameras have been installed at four locations of crash cushions. The cameras are on a continuous 12-minute tape which is running at all times. They are rigged to shut off automatically two minutes after the crash cushion is hit, giving highway engineers 10 minutes of film before the crash and two minutes after it.

The tapes have produced some interesting results. They often show cars hitting the crash cushions, backing away and driving off. They also have demonstrated that drivers sometimes cannot explain why they hit barriers.

In one case, a driver said his car was forced into the barrier by another car. The tape showed there was no other car in sight.

In another instance, a car rolled up to a Los Angeles freeway installation of sand filled tubs and the driver got out carrying a sack. He wobbled over to the tubs and pulled unsuccessfully on the lids. Finally, he gave up, got back into his car and left.

Highway engineers who watched the film think the driver was intoxicated and looking for a freeway garbage can where he could stow his empties.

Fire At Yosemite Ruins Cafeteria

YOSEMITE (UPI) — A fire Sunday destroyed the main cafeteria and damaged some shops at Curry Village, a recreation area in Yosemite National Park.

No injuries were reported in the blaze, which was contained about three hours after it broke out.

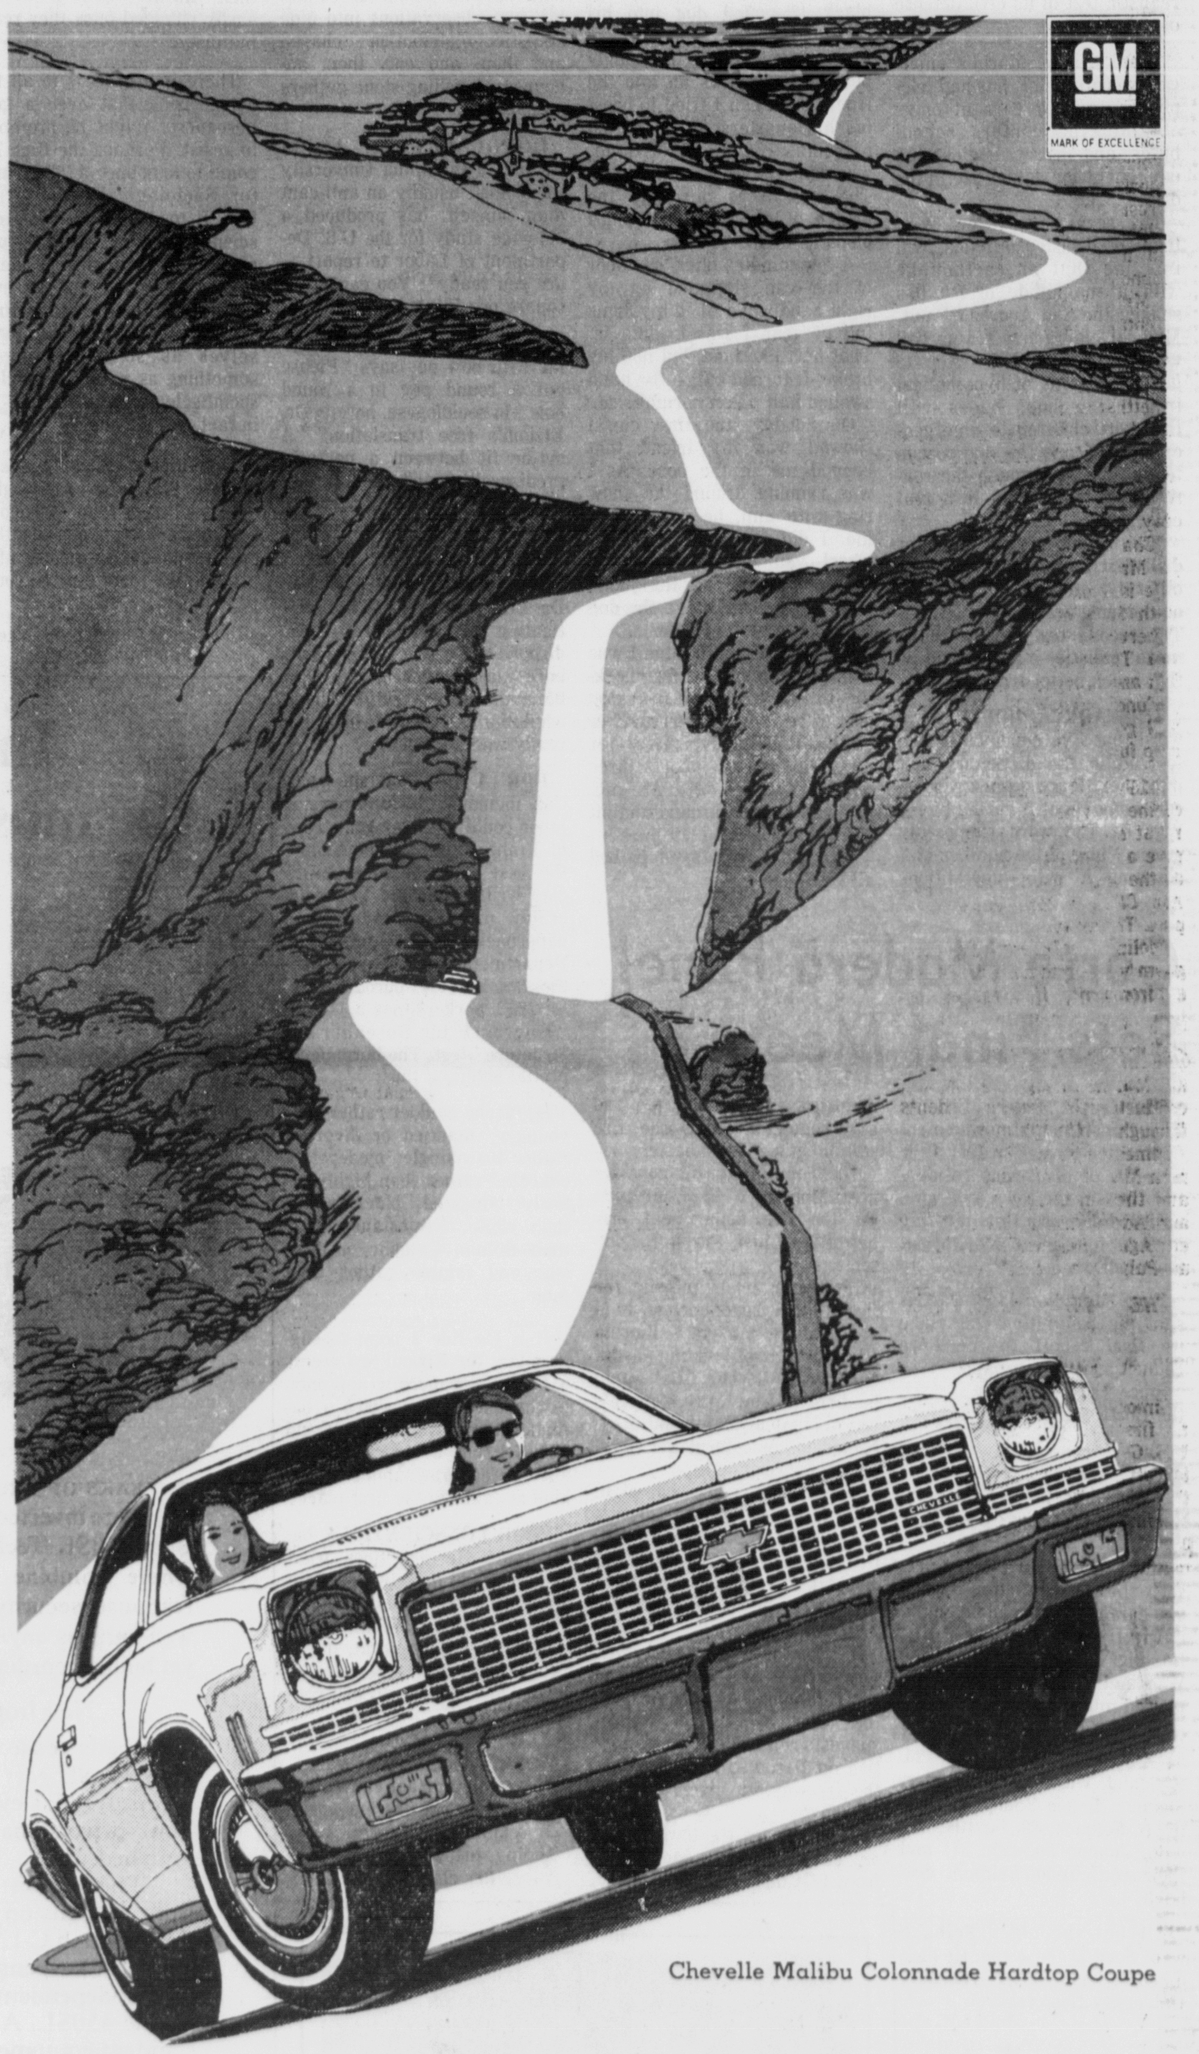
GM MARK OF EXCELLENCE

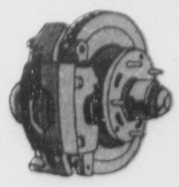


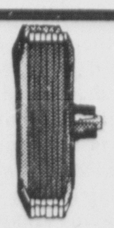
Chevelle Malibu Colonnade Hardtop Coupe

Chevelle. It's what happens when you love driving as much as we do.

When you start with a car the caliber of Chevelle (which we did) and add new suspension design, wider tread and wider 6" wheels (which we also did), what you end up with is one great mid-size road car. (Which you should.)
But reading about how a new Chevelle handles is like reading about falling in love. What you really want to do is experience it.

Front disc brakes.
A car like this deserves fade-resistant self-adjusting disc brakes. So do you.





Full Coil suspension.
Refined this year for added stability, smooth, quiet ride, improved road contact during cornering.

Full-foam swing-out bucket seats available.
For easy in, easy out. Release the side locking handle and the seat pivots up to 90°. There's a 5" forward and backward adjustment, too.

Chevrolet. Building a better way to see the U.S.A. CHEVROLET
Take a second to buckle up. It could save a lifetime.

Florynce Kennedy Preview Of Her Views On The Media

By BARBARA HOSMER

"Women are tired of turning the other cheek — after all, we only have four."

Noted for her pithy speech, activist and attorney Florynce Kennedy punched out her theme in an hour-plus monologue press session at a Tiburon home in preamble to the "Women and the Media" talk she will give at Redwood High School May 18, sponsored by Women on the Move.

"The sweet sound of reasonableness is out of style. Women should begin to criticize the sacred cows of this society," she emphasized with the thrust of a hand laden with rings. To Flo Kennedy the sacred cows include the media, the medical community, the Pentagon and the product manufacturers who cause huge waste of consumer dollars.

The media, she charges, have tended to distort or blackout the women's movement ideas, helped set women against women and inveigled women to waste consumer dollars in products that are a rip-off and bad nutrition.

"WOMEN HAVE been betrayed by the media." Referring to constant sports emphasis of media, she added, "We're at least as important as swimming, tennis and golf and should get coverage on a regular basis, and I don't mean the Chanel No. 5 — women have had the Chanel No. 5."

She also finds it "insulting that everytime Dick Cavett has Germaine Greer on his show, he also has to have somebody from the other side. And we women pay his salary. We pay for those shows" by buying the products that support them, she remarked.

To point up what she called the cultural tactic of pitting women against each other which the media emphasizes, she said that her Feminist Party will put on a Cinderella production in Boston this summer in which "Cinderella refuses the Prince's proposal and opens a bootery with her stepsisters, and I hope, her stepmother, too."

An activist since the early days of the National Organization for Women, Flo Kennedy went on in 1971 to set up the National Feminist Party. And it plans to caravan June 6 to 12 from Seattle to Hollywood to dramatize the media rip-off of women in films and television. "We'll do a campy shift on the Rose Parade to visualize attitudes" of the media to women, she said.

"We are protesting the media involvement in racism, sexism, advertising that waste consumer dollars, the image of women in films and the image of doctors," she emphasized.

AT 57, the early advocate of civil rights for blacks and women says, "At my age and in my condition, honey, I'm going to do what I want," and that means activism for women, minority oppressed peoples, consumerism and peace.

WOMEN ARE ripped off by the media, activist Flo Kennedy maintains and plans a protest by her Feminist Party from Seattle to Hollywood in behalf of "opressed groups." "The Feminist commitment on the media is the same as getting fed one meal a week," she remarked at a Marin press conference. ""Media perpetuates gulfs among people."

A graduate of Columbia University Law School and a former practicing attorney in New York, she is currently living at San Francisco's Golden Gateway Center, drives a 1965 black London taxi, and is finishing up a book, "The Pathology of Oppression."

She co-authored "The Abortion Rap" and is a leader in the current suit to deprive the Catholic Church of its tax exempt status on the grounds that it spends money to influence legislation, including anti-abortion regulations.

She pounces on the sterling image of the medical profession in media, including television, with relish:

"They fail to dramatize the poor health care, including radical mastectomies that women may not need, and the ignorance and incompetence of the medical profession is not shown . . . Women need to tell the medical profession to stop saying who can treat us, who can have abortions . . . They've given us hysterectomies when we don't want it.

"YET THE medical profession doesn't rise up at the atrocities," she commented, reciting the experiment on Chicano women giving one group the pill and the other group placebos but never telling them it wasn't the pill." The medical profession didn't say a word and then they said, 'We can't give you abortions" when the women became pregnant 'because it's against the law'.

"We need to encourage women to become paramedics and midwives and dare the medical profession to control our lives. We need to challenge the arrogance of the medical profession," she stated.

On consumer dollar waste she cited the media's ads for "new" soaps that are no better than the previous product but cost the consumer millions of dollars in advertising promotion, and media promotion of bad nutrition products.

"We pay for these people to give us Arid Extra Dry and the bad cereals," she remarked.

"We need to teach people the pathology of the production of an expensive soap. It cost $24 million to propagandize Bold by Procter and Gamble. We ask for $200,000 for child care and don't get it."

She also warned women about the restrictions being put on accessibility to abortion in California. The state legislature turned over the matter to the California Board of Medical Examiners who passed emergency regulations to raise the cost of abortion and other minimal medical procedures to prevent hospital competition with cheaper clinics, Flo Kennedy said.

"And they were enacted nine days after the Supreme Court decision . . . California put on the kind of regulation that the Court outlawed in the Georgia test case," the attorney pointed out.

FOUNDER OF the National Feminist Party, attorney Flo Kennedy says "It's time for women to protest. We've had the Chanel No. 5 from the media," she said.

The requirements include doing the medical procedures in a room at least 18 feet by 18 feet with blood bank and X-ray equipment. This means that what in a doctor's office would be a $25 procedure will cost from $200 to $400 in a hospital, she said.

"Now I don't want anybody to have an abortion who doesn't want one. I'm for freedom of choice, that's what we're talking about," but such regulations drive costs beyond reach of many women who then have no choice, she stated.

ON FEMINISM, she said, "Women shouldn't try to fight with the husband at home. Women should try to enlist him to understand how society uses him to oppress her. They say 'be a man, join the Marines,' He learns to punch people out. Kids are reared that way. We need to get to kids early. Show me a heavily oppressed woman and I'll show you unhappy kids.

"The husband takes the kid and says 'hit me. Hit me, ouch, that hurts. Hit me again. That's how the little boy learns, she said.

Women have a right to demand money for the real needs, she said, suggesting that the Pentagon and HEW switch budgets.

"Let volunteers fight the wars and pay the woman who reads to the blind . . .

"Whether you're a Marin County suburban woman or anything else, when you get ripped off, you're poor, honey!"

"I want choice for women. I don't want to have one group dictating jeans and another saying they don't like those 'dirty long-haired women.' We have to stop allowing media to prejudice us against each other," she finished.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Six Years Is Long Enough For This Kind Of Honesty

DEAR HELEN:

Psychiatrists say that if you face up to your faults, admit them, discuss them with concerned people, you're on your way to eliminating them. Wrong!

Before we married, my man was very honest with me. He said his worst weakness was women. I could understand that because he is the type that gets chased — and he never ran very hard.

Naturally he said all that was in the past, and it was — for six months. Then he started flirting at parties, or he'd disappear with a girl and return later in time to take me home. Afterwards he'd be very contrite, and would remind me about the "weakness."

Later, when he actually had affairs, he remained honest. "I just can't help it," he'd say, adding, "I warned you."

For six years he's expected me to forgive and forget, while "helping him to change." But the more he discusses his fault, the nearer he is to a new female interest. Each time he insists this one is his last, and my "understanding" has brought him to his senses. We both know better!

Last night I said, "No more! — I'm filing for divorce." He can't understand this. Says he's always leveled with me and he loves me best — and all he needs is a little more time.

Isn't six years long enough? — AMATEUR PSYCHOLOGIST WHO FAILED

DEAR A.P.:

Overlong, I'd say!

Your husband is like the girl who warns friends about her hot, hot temper. Then, when she explodes she can say, "Didn't I tell you?" She's using her honesty to excuse her actions, and she probably won't change until people stop accepting them as "her way."

Perhaps your husband can never change. If so, he should be a bed-hopping bachelor — or find a wife who doesn't think sexual fidelity is important. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I guess sex will never really go out of style, but I wonder how many people — men and women alike — are beginning to feel so pressured about it that they're losing the ability to enjoy?

You had a recent article about male impotence, giving fear as one of the main reasons — fear of failure, of not pleasing his mate, of being compared unfavorably to others. So true; but how about women?

We're fearful, too, these days. Books and movies tell us we're more sensual than men. Those explicit "How To" manuals that we're supposed to read avidly if we'd be complete women, say "Perform, perform, perform." We can't just relax and enjoy sex anymore, we must make a production of it, learn all the tricks, be super females who never fail. And if we don't always go crazy with ecstasy, we have to pretend — or we're to blame when our men drift elsewhere. Sometimes I feel as if I'm a trained courtesan, rather than a loving mate.

I long for the days when sex was fun, and I didn't have to keep trying for new heights (fantasize, they say, take Vitamin E, try everything kinky and new). Women as well as men are being forced into competition, and the elusive goal is "perfection," which none of us can reach all the time.

So ... I've come to dread what I once enjoyed. I'll never be frigid or unresponsive, but I'm tired of "performing," and trying to outdo my last response. Where did Love go?

Do any other men and women agree with me? — I WANT LOVE

DEAR IWL:

According to my mail, a great many men and women agree with you. As one man said, "Sex these days is like eating at the automat: You press the right buttons and you get what you came after, but it sure doesn't beat home cooking!" — H.

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? A fun idea? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, care of the Independent-Journal.

MONEY MATTERS

How To Run A Garage Sale

By JOSEPHINE RIPLEY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D. C. — What makes garage sales so popular?

I put the question to a number of people who not only stage these sales, but come home from others loaded with loot.

One answer: "It really goes back to the high cost of living. If you can get something in good condition for 50 cents to $2, why pay the full price for it?"

Or, as a grandmother put it: "If they had had garage sales when I was raising my family, I would have furnished the whole house and clothed the children from these sales."

Do people put on the sales to make money or to unload unused items?

A young husband replied, "Both. Many of us hold garage sales for the excitement of it. You have a lot of people coming to the house, and it's fun — a change from the routine of suburban life."

SAID HIS WIFE: "It's a way of getting rid of things you no longer need or use. And they may be just what someone else wants."

Who gets the best of the deal — the seller or the buyer?

"Probably the buyer," was the consensus, "since items are priced 'dirt cheap' for quick sale."

As for profits, the usual "take" varies from $30 to $50 per family participating (or even more if a family happens to be disposing of all expendables before moving overseas or into smaller living quarters).

It is common practice for neighbors to put on these sales jointly. There is an advantage in this collaboration since a larger display attracts more people.

"We have noticed," observed one authority, "that those who follow garage sales often pass by without getting out of the car unless there are sufficient items on display to pique their interest."

When is the best time to hold a garage sale?

There seemed to be general agreement among those interviewed that Saturday and Sunday are the best days or, for a big sale, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. Some feel a sale should last two days, at least. Others limit their sales to one day.

Suggested hours: From 10 a.m. to dark, or 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Time of year: spring or summer, or whenever the weather is propitious.

Christian Science Monitor Sketch by Gene Langley

"Be very specific as to days and time. And be prepared for people to arrive early! Have free hot beverages to serve if weather is chilly."

HOW DO you advertise a garage sale?

"By mimeographed flyers to be distributed in the neighborhood. By advertisements in the local paper. By a sign in front of the house. Strategically placed arrows are helpful in finding the right house, too."

The veteran garage-sale follower touches base at several sales during the day, carefully mapping his route in advance.

Garage sales are not always held in garages. They may be held in a carport, a basement, on the porch, or in front of the house. So make this clear in your announcement.

How should items be displayed in order to attract the buyer?

"Place items on tables, not on the ground. People don't want to bend over. Group things together — toys in one place, pots and pans in another. Antiques, if you have any, should be on a separate table.

"Clothing, which of course has been washed and ironed, should be displayed on hangers. Price and size of clothes should be clearly indicated."

Particularly stressed in the interviews was the importance of having in mind a "second price at which you would be willing to sell if a lower offer is made."

Advice to buyers: "Make up your mind quickly if you are interested in an item. If you turn away in indecision, the item may be gone when you come back."

A GARAGE sale calls for careful planning. You may be collecting things for months. Put different items in separate boxes.

Mark all items with masking tape. If several people are participating in the sale, identify each person's items by an initial or other insignia, in addition to the price.

Have separate cash boxes for each participant so there will be no problem when it comes to division of profits.

"Do not accept checks," warns one garage saleswoman. She also suggests a table of five and ten-cent items for children to buy.

Do you really get any bargains at these sales?

One veteran of the garage-sale circuit reeled them off:

"An electric knife sharpener for $2; tea kettle for 50 cents. A perfectly good radio for $1; crystal and bone china dishes, 50 cents to $1. A fertilizer spreader (for which she was hunting) at half price. It was brand new and had not even been taken out of the box.

"A new wheelbarrow, wool blankets, children's clothing, fur coat, and jewelry."

She is especially interested in antiques, and checks antique stores to find out what is selling well at the time. She looks for these items as she makes the rounds of garage sales. If she finds them, at the right price, she buys them and then resells at a profit.

Garage sales techniques and experiences may differ in different sections of the country. If you would care to tell us about them, write me in care of Money Matters, Box 353, Astor Station, Boston, Mass. 02123.

Indian Stereotypes Are Big Concern

By RICKY ROSENTHAL
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Mary Ann Red Cloud's daughter returned from school one afternoon in tears, asking, "Do we still scalp people?"

That was all her mother needed to ask the school principal for an assembly meeting — "to tell what American Indians stand for.

"We are not savage — not a scalping people," Mrs. Red Cloud explained to the students and teachers. "We have crafts, music, and arts — my tribe is known for its beadwork, designs, materials and colors."

Contrary to the TV images, Mrs. Red Cloud is more concerned than ever about attitudes and stereotypes of American Indians.

The children at her daughter's school in Whippany, N.J., listened to her explanations, she says, as do the many church and civic groups she addresses.

"SOME QUESTIONS are far out — such as, 'Do you still live in tepees?'" Mrs. Red Cloud acknowledges, "but at least people are interested."

A full-blooded Oglala Sioux, Mrs. Red Cloud has been trying to reconcile her two worlds

MARY RED CLOUD

ever since she was a young girl, growing up with a mixture of pride in being an Indian, and the wish to flee Indian poverty.

Mrs. Red Cloud was born and raised on the Oglala Sioux Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota. The affluent white world of "Dick and Jane" textbook fame was "pretend" for her, although she had to learn to live with it. "My hands were beaten with a ruler many times for not speaking English," she says, "but my thinking processes are still in Sioux."

Stories that transmitted Indian culture were a regular feature of evenings at home on the reservation. "Grandfather would tell them over and over again until you couldn't stand them," says Mrs. Red Cloud.

One series of stories dealt with a spider called Iktomi. "Once he was hungry and wanted to eat the grass the buffalo were enjoying," Mrs. Red Cloud recounts. "The buffalo asked him to do certain things in order to share their feast, but Iktomi could not make sacrifices to get what he wanted — he was a coward."

Mrs. Red Cloud goes on to explain that some of the Oglala Sioux at Wounded Knee, S.D., were willing to make sacrifices to get what they wanted.

"WOUNDED KNEE was not a surprise to me," she says. "I have been trying to prevent this kind of thing for the last four years, but apparently there isn't interest in America in general. What senators, what congressmen do we have supporting us?"

Mrs. Red Cloud's great-great grandfather, Chief Red Cloud, signed a treaty with the U.S. Government in 1868 which ceded to the Sioux all land west of the Missouri River in the Dakotas. But homesteading gradually reduced the breadth of the land, and new government policies were developed that further broke up the holdings, leading to the eventual massacre of Sioux at Wounded Knee in 1890.

Less than a century later, some of Mrs. Red Cloud's relatives were again facing the U.S. government — and each other.

"Full bloods' were suspicious of the president of the Tribal Council, Richard Wilson," she says. "A lot of people were starving, and charges were swirling that he had misappropriated funds."

The specter of racism that she has worked to destroy, is rising, says Mrs. Red Cloud. "Sioux are afraid — of the federal government, of the bureau (Bureau of Indian Affairs), and of whites."

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Two of a kind! Yes, two of today's birthday greats were born the same day, month and year. Guess which two?

1. SHIRLEY TEMPLE, 45 or 52 today. Her singing of "Baby Take a Bow" in a Hollywood film in 1934 shot this youngster to stardom. Overnight she became a top money maker, earning more than $3 million in less than five years. Adulthood sank her Good Ship Lollypop but she's happily married now (Mrs. Charles A. Black) and was appointed a delegate to the United Nations by President Nixon in 1969.

2. JANET BLAIR, 45 or 52 today, became an instant star 31 years ago in the film, "My Sister Eileen." Born in Altoona, Pa., she changed her name from Martha Lafferty when she began her movie career at $70 a week for Columbia Pictures. She was the vocalist for Hal Kemp's band until he was killed in an auto accident.

3. WARREN SPAHN, 52 or 74 today, is considered one of the greatest left-handed pitchers in the history of National League. He won 20 or more games a season 13 times; and he struck out batters 2,583 times in his career, both records for a southpaw. Serving with the combat engineers in World War II, he was the only major leaguer to win a battlefield commission for bravery. His Battle of the Bulge wounds earned him a Bronze Star.

4. LUCIUS D. CLAY, 52 to 74 today, was the United States military governor of West Germany when Berlin was threatened with a blockade in 1948 by the Communist powers. He came up with the idea of breaking the squeeze on food and supplies with a gigantic airlift, which was so effective the Reds finally gave up their threat and Berlin was saved. For this, the general is being awarded the $10,700 Konrad Adenauer Prize this year by the Germany Foundation.

ANSWERS: 1 - Shirley Temple, 45; 2 - Janet Blair, 52; 3 - Warren Spahn, 52; 4 - Lucius D. Clay, 74. (Blair and Spahn are the same identical age.)

A Peek Not Necessarily Needed For South To Refuse A Finesse

"You must have a very good oculist," West said rather bitterly when his singleton king failed to make a trick. Actually, however, South had just made the right play. Peeking had nothing to do with the matter.

SPADE ACTION

West led the three of spades, and East won with the ace. East returned a spade, and South won.

At this point, South led out the ace of trumps, felling West's singleton king. South could now draw two rounds of trumps with the jack and queen and could eventually give up one trump and one club. The contract was, of course, now unbeatable.

Why did South lead out the ace of trumps instead of trying a finesse? He simply made the right play instead of the wrong play.

CAN'T AFFORD LOSS

If South gets to dummy with a club in order to try a heart finesse, he will lose his queen of hearts to the singleton king. Later on, he will lose a second trump trick to East's ten. This will doom the contract, for South cannot afford to lose two trump tricks.

South didn't expect to drop the singleton king of trumps. He was merely taking out insurance against the only 4-1 trump break that he could handle. If either opponent had four trumps headed by the king, South was in trouble. But if the singleton trump were the king, South could survive as long as he didn't try a finesse.

TRUMP BREAK

South really expected the trumps to break 3-2. In that case, he would win the ace of trumps and give up one trump. This was all right since South could afford to give up one trump trick. The important thing was to avoid the loss of two trump tricks.

Slide Show Is Set On Insects

Ray Peterson, an entomologist at California State University at San Francisco, will narrate a slide presentation about insects of the Tiburon Peninsula at 8 p.m. Friday in the music room at Del Mar School in Tiburon.

Peterson, also a consultant for Natural Science Education Resources in Marin County, will lead a walk to study insects May 28 at 10 a.m., leaving from Shepherd Way off Trestle Glen in the Reed area.

The program is the third in a series sponsored by the Tiburon Parks and Recreation Commission.

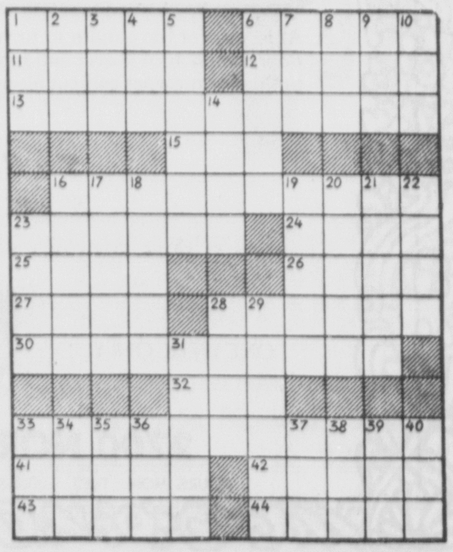
Saturday's Answer



Court To Hear Reserve Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court agreed today to decide whether members of Congress violate the Constitution by holding commissions in the military reserves.

The justices will hear arguments on the issue in the fall or winter and hand down a written opinion next term. At issue were two lower court rulings in the District of Columbia that the long-standing practice is unconstitutional.

The Defense Department appealed the decisions.

In other actions, the Court:

Agreed to hear an appeal by the Interior Department from a ruling in an Arizona case that the federal government must provide general welfare assistance to all Indians, not just those living on reservations.

Agreed to decide next term whether a firm which has a policy of refusing to employ aliens is violating the 1964 Civil Rights law.

Refused by an 8-1 vote to hear an appeal by a Baltimore Sun reporter, David M. Lightman, who is facing jail for contempt if he refuses to give a county grand jury the location of a shop mentioned in an article on lax law enforcement at Ocean City, Md.

Agreed to review local school board policies in Cleveland, Ohio, and Chesterfield County, Va., which require women teachers to give up their jobs midway during pregnancy. Lower federal appeals court handed down conflicting verdicts on the issue.

Declined to hear an appeal by a student who was suspended from school in Chattanooga, Tenn., for wearing a jacket with a patch replica of a Confederate flag on the sleeve. The Court let stand a lower court ruling that while the ban on the flag itself was unconstitutional, school authorities had the right to suspend the Brainerd High School student, Rod Melton, under their disciplinary powers.

The challenge to members of the House and Senate holding reserve commissions was initiated by a group of noncongressional reservists who opposed the Vietnam war.

The Constitution says "no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either House during his continuance in office." U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell relied on this provision in one of the actions upholding a challenge to the practice.

The secretary of Defense Department and other defendants argued that the situation is governed by another section of the Constitution which says "each house shall be the judge of the ... qualifications of its own members."

Reserves are divided into "ready," "retired" and "standby" categories.

The Justice Department said in an appeal that 6 members, with the exception of active-status standby reservists who are subject to a 15-day call each year, stand on "virtually the same footing as all civilians."

They can be activated "only if Congress declares war or a national emergency," the appeal said.

The department argued that the group —known as Reservists Committee to Stop the War —had no standing to bring the suit. The rulings if not reversed will encourage other suits by citizens seeking to air particular grievances about the conduct of government, the appeal said.

Most of the representatives and senators named by the committee when the suit was filed were in the "no pay" classification. Those said to be receiving pay were Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and Sens. Hiram L. Fong, R-Hawaii; Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz.; Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla.; John J. Sparkman, D-Ala.; J. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.; and J. Caleb Boggs, R-Del.

Members of the House include Speaker Carl Albert and Reps. William G. Bray, R-Ind.; Cornelius E. Gallagher, D-N.J.; Charles R. Jonas, R-N.C.; G. V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D-Miss.; Bill Nichols, D-Ala.; Alexander Pirnie, R-N.Y.; and Louise C. Wyman, R-N.H.

Egyptian Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Saad Eddin Shazli said after the strategy talks in Cairo that despite the "progress" achieved at the meeting, there was no success in attempts aimed at reviving the Jordanian front against Israel.

Shazli said the Jordanian front, which collapsed when King Hussein expelled Palestinian guerrillas in September, 1970, "has not assumed satisfactory form yet, though more attempts will be made to revive it."

Sahzli said the meeting did not take up the Israeli commando April 10 raid on Beirut.

In other Middle East developments, the Italian newspaper Il Messaggero said Sunday a new peace initiative is being formulated based on the construction of a second Suez Canal.

Tribunal Handed Hot Issue On Richmond School Desegregation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court was told today during arguments in a major school case that white students in Richmond, Va., were freely allowed to transfer from the city into nearby counties purely to avoid desegregation.

In what may lead to a landmark decision affecting big city school across the nation, the Court was asked to uphold a district federal judge's desegregation order that ignored county-city political boundaries in the Richmond area.

Judge Robert R. Merhige Jr., in January 1972, ordered consolidation of the school boards of the city of Richmond and of adjacent Henrico and Chesterfield counties as the only means of ending racial isolation of the all-black inner ci ty schools.

The order has been held in abeyance pending Supreme Court appeal. The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals held Merhige's action invalid last June.

William T. Coleman, attorney for the NAACP Legal Defense Fund, argued before the Supreme Court that white children were allowed to move freely across the county lines into the rural, mostly white county systems when their city schools were ordered desegregated.

"It is only when it comes to desegregating schools that (school) districts all of a sudden become the most sacrosanct thing in the world," Coleman said.

Coleman and George B. Little, attorney for the Richmond school board which joined in an appeal in favor of consolidation, also argued that neither the city nor the county systems now meets the Supreme Court's desegregation standards, either individually or collectively.

They charged the state had maintained county lines as a barrier against correcting the imbalance in city schools — some all black —and county schools whose black enrollments never exceeded 5 per cent.

The case, because of the impact it may have on other metropolitan areas, has attracted wide interest and an overflow crowd of visitors waited outside in line for seats.

The arguments were heard by eight of the nine justices Associate Justice Lewis F Powell Jr., formerly a Richmond attorney, disqualified himself because he served on both the city and state school boards in the past.

Computers Taking On Education Role

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Computers are taking an increasingly active role in education at the University of California.

During the past academic year, 351 courses required computer use. This compared with 271 courses two years ago and 193 courses four years ago.

Highway Design Award Winners

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Projects designed by California engineers in state service have taken seven prizes in the latest U.S. Department of Transportation's competition for outstanding projects emphasizing the highway and its environment, says State Director of Public Works James A. Moe.

Moe said the California Department of Public Works has won three first, two second and two third place awards.

He pointed out that since the beginning of the national competition five years ago, the Department has taken more awards than any other state with a total of 14 firsts, five seconds, six thirds and an honorable mention. He said this is nearly a quarter of all awards and more than one-third of all first place awards offered by DOT during that time. "We feel this outstanding showing by California's engineers emphasizes our concern for the environmental effect of our highways program."

He added that it is also evidence of the sensitivity and technical skill of state highway engineers and designers to the whole problem of harmonizing construction with the environment.

Moe listed the current winners as follows:

The William M. Sell Bridge across the East Fork of the Chowchilla River on Highway 49 in Mariposa County. The cast-in-place, prestressed concrete box girder structure is the largest ever constructed in California. It was built on curving alignment with piers rising 160 feet above the canyon floor and produces a simple, light appearance that blends well with the surrounding terrain.

Preservation of the Egret Rookery during construction of the Samoa Bridge across Humboldt Bay on Highway 255 near Eureka. The bridge crosses the bay via two islands. The larger of these, Gunther Island, contains a grove of eucalyptus trees used by the local populace of American Egrets as a rookery.

Design of the bridge was made to preserve the rookery and construction specifications carefully worked out so that the birds would not be disturbed during their nesting season. The large number of birds continuing to use the grove attests to the success of these measures.

The retaining wall of Interstate 280 Potrero Hill in San Francisco. Dubbed 'Babylon by the Bay" by both admirers and critics, this modern version of the famous hanging gardens of classical times was already a previous DOT prizewinner minus its greenery under a different category in 1971. The architecture of the landscaping, like the architecture of the wall itself, is a reflection of this cosmopolitan city.

SECOND PLACE

The Miramar Road Overcrossing on Interstate 805 in San Diego. Public Works projects are often impressive for their size or technical complexity. It is less common when a project also displays unquestionable esthetic qualities. Structures like the Miramar overcrossing should do much to increase demands for higher esthetic standards in public architecture.

The Grove-Shafter Freeway Park on Highway 24 in Oakland. The recently opened facility is located entirely within the freeway right of way. The project was one of the first and by far the most ambitious of this type ever taken under new legislation allowing for the joint use of right of way through lease agreements.

THIRD PLACE

A nine-mile section of scenic highway on Route 32 in the foothills of the Sierra Nevada east of Chico. This improved rural highway follows the top of a ridge providing panoramic views on both sides making it one of the most scenic drives in the state.

The Mission Bay Park on Interstate 5 in San Diego. This park displays an excellent solution to the use of the limited flat land in the San Diego area. The harmonizing design of the freeway and the landscape to the park serves multiple functions.

Moe said winners of former years include the section of Highway 88 over the Carson Pass for outstanding highway in a rural setting, the murals painted on the retaining wall on Interstate 210 in Duarte for outstanding example of landscape treatment, the Division of Highways maintenance station under the Intersate 10-405 interchange in Los Angeles for outstanding multiple use of highway right-of-way and the John Muir Parkway in Contra Costa County for outstanding preservation of historic sites.

THE CHARGE OF THE EGG BRIGADE

More than 500 eager, egg-hunting children, their faces aglow with Easter expectation, lapped San Rafael's Albert Park Saturday in search of four cases of candy eggs hidden by the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department, San Rafael Jaycees and Police Officers Association. A similar egg blitz was held near the Terra Linda Recreation Center on Saturday, according to Andrew J. Snyder, parks and recreation director.

Mill Valley Play Group Sets Opener

"The Roar of the Greasepaint, the Smell of the Crowd," a musical comedy which "caricatures the game of life we all play," will open in Mill Valley in May.

The Anthony Newley-Leslie Bricusse play is the first offering of a new community theater group in Mill Valley, the Rainbow Players. It will be staged May 4-6, 11-13 and 18-20 at the Mill Valley Masonic Hall. Show times will be 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 3 p.m. Sundays.

The plot concerns the antics of Cocky, who hops about the stage on a huge board as he plays the game of life, sometimes winning and sometimes losing. Kristi La Bianca, will produce and direct the musical and play piano as well.

Playing the role of Cocky is Dr. F. Thomas Shipp of Larkspur. Other cast members are Mark O'Brian, Susan Mosher, Mark Shepherd and Jenny Shipp, all of Mill Valley; Donna Gubbins, Craig Sandison, Nancy MacLean and Susan Geary of San Francisco; Ginny Riddle, Terra Linda; Susan Baldwin, Larkspur; Dyan Stebbins, Berkeley, and Marla Burr, San Anselmo.

Choreographer for the dance numbers is James Piersall, head of the Mill Valley Ballet Center.

The Rainbow Players, formed in February as an offshoot of Heliotrope, a free university based in San Francisco, is composed of about 50 members, Mrs. LaBianca said. Their ages vary from 15 to 43.

Newcomers are welcome to join the players "no matter what they have to offer," she said. "We'll teach them what to do if they want to learn. We all encourage each other. We're noncompetitive."

IN THE MIDDLE — Dr. F. Thomas Shipp, who plays Cocky in the musical, "The Roar of the Greasepaint, the Smell of the Crowd," is harrassed both by Sir (Mark O'Brian) and the Kid (Donna Gubbins) as he tries to play the game of live by someone else's rules.

Wildflower Show Finale Is Set

By GEORGE NEVIN

The Stinson Beach Magical Mystery Wildflower Caravan pulls out sometime this week, just as it has for the past 14 years, bound for the wildflower fields from the Oregon border to Mexico.

And just as in years past, three Stinson Beach women — Roberta Shockey, Anne E. Leary and Barbara Menzies — will crawl, stoop, bend, poke, probe and search for blossoms for the annual Stinson Beach wildflower show.

They'll drive dozens of dusty miles on potholed back roads, avoid border agricultural inspectors like the plague and look high (the Sierra Nevada) and low (the desert country) for flowering oddities and unusual plants to delight, educate and interest showgoers.

The women will return early next week, dump their booty in the Stinson Beach Community Center, site of the show May 5 and 6, then head out again for two more days.

On Friday, May 4, they'll attend to the last-minute details of arranging and identifying the more than 350 examples of native wildflowers and plants they expect to find, and the doors will swing open Saturday.

But after the show closes Sunday and all the flowers have been given to flower pressers and students, there will be no show to prepare for next year.

After 15 years, this is the finale, the last Stinson Beach Wildflower Show.

"We just wanted to quit while we're ahead," said Mrs. Shockey. "We didn't want the high quality and caliber of the show to decline."

"We'll just overwhelm everyone with the best flowers we've seen in our 15 years of doing the show," said Mrs. Leary.

The extraordinary winter and spring rains have resulted in the grandest display of wildflowers in 47 years in the Paso Robles area, she said.

On a scouting expedition two weeks ago, she said, "we drove all the way from McKittrick to Simmler (near Paso Robles) at five miles an hour, saying, 'Look at that, and look over there.' We couldn't believe our eyes."

Not only will the three women drive about 6,000 miles among them to gather blossoms, as in previous years, but two other helpers are expected to log an additional 1,800 miles.

Helen MacGavin and Gordon True Jr. will head out on their own to hit some of the spots that otherwise would be missed.

Looking back over 14 years of showgoing, Mrs. Leary and Mrs. Shockey said they couldn't have done it without the help of many others.

Thanks are due, they said, to botanist John Thomas Howell, curator emeritus of the California Academy of Science in San Francisco and author of "Marin Flora," especially for his help in identifying plants and flowers; Harriett Greene and Ruth Miller, who have collected tickets at many shows, and Mildred Sadler, who takes charge of refreshments.

The end of the Stinson Beach Wildflower Show doesn't mean that the three women expect to be idle from now on.

"We're planning another flower show July 13 and 14 for the Oakland Museum," said Mrs. Leary, "but that will be easy. We'll just collect the flowers and turn them in. No worries about labeling or arranging."

But that's not all they'll be doing. They said they'll be embarking on a campaign to get Marin road crews to spare roadside patches of wildflowers, now routinely mowed down.

And then there's a drive to halt the spread of three members of the pea family which literally are taking over Marin.

"You've heard of the eggplant that ate Chicago," said Mrs. Shockey. "Well, three plants — Scotch broom, genista and forse — are doing the same here."

The plants, which originated in Europe, were cultivated by Bay Area gardeners around the turn of the century, and literally escaped from back yards. They've been creeping across the landscape ever since.

Mrs. Shockey and Mrs. Leary, both of whom look far too kindly to hate anybody or anything, get quite heated when they talk about the three plants.

The most spectacular of the three is broom, with its bright yellow flowers, but genista definitely is the biggest problem in Marin, the women agree.

In case anyone doesn't know what broom looks like, sprigs of it, along with sprays of gorse and genista, will be on display at the wildflower show. Hours of the show are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

As in prior years, proceeds from the show will pay the women's car and lodging expenses, and the surplus will go toward building a retaining wall to keep part of the community center's patio from washing into a small creek.

One new wrinkle, a sign of the times, will be added to this year's show. A guard has been hired to protect the community center hall from break-ins during the show, not to prevent the flowers from being stolen but to prevent thefts of the valuable vases and dishes used in displays.

WILDFLOWER FAREWELL — Tending to wildflowers they view as good and evil, Roberta Shockey (left) and Anne E. Leary are about to embark on preparations for the last Stinson Beach Wildflower Show, May 5 and 6. While the poppies in the foreground measure up as colorful and essential in the roadside environment, the Scotch broom held by Mrs. Leary is considered by the women as a menace.

Some Things A Coach Just Can't Forget

OAKLAND — Golden State Warriors coach Al Attles will be trying to prove himself the world's best salesman tonight. His awesome task will be to convince the Warriors they are as good, if not better, than a team which beat them by 56 points only two days ago.

That's some idea to sell. If the Warriors lose tonight to the Lakers, which should very well be the case, the season is all over for them. Looking on the positive side, that means the team won't have to go back to Los Angeles and that in itself is something.

IT'S PRETTY HARD to say anything about a 126-70 game. The amazing thing was that it came when the Warriors were in a "must win" situation. Down 2-0 in the NBA's Western Conference finals, the Warriors would be coming out smoking, or so thought the 13,183 fans who had each plunked out $9 a ticket for the chance to sit in on Saturday night's action.

They got some of their money's worth for the first seven minutes or so. The score was tied at 12-all at the time, but then all kinds of silly things started happening. For every Warriors' shot that bounced off the rim, the Lakers would put one through the hoop. In no time the Lakers were ahead by 12 and things got progressively worse. By the time it had reached proportions of 114-62, Cazzie Russell and Fitz Williams were on the bench rocking with laughter, apparently telling jokes to each other. Since Fritz never got in the game, one in which even the ball boys were hoping to get into, it's a good bet his playing days with the Warriors are through.

AFTER IT WAS ALL over, Attles answered all the questions quietly, politely, although after a game like that all questions sound like stupid ones. What is the turning point in a game which really isn't a game? What do you say about a three-point play that puts a team down by 49 instead of 46? Normally a coach will say something about "forgetting" such a loss and trying to prepare for the next game. I think Attles will remember this one for the rest of his life.

"It's going to be very tough to forget this one," Attles said, putting his head back against the wall of the locker room. "You can't forget 75 rebounds, you can't forget shooting 23 per cent." The rebounds were those of the Lakers and the percentage, obviously, was that of the Warriors.

"THE BIGGEST single thing I'm bothered about is that they gave up," he said.

He said the Sunday schedule was going to call for the team to view the films of the game and then to engage in a normal practice session for tonight's game. Viewing that horror show should be enough punishment to last for years.

Lakers' coach Bill Sharman said he was going to discount the thing. "A game like that doesn't mean anything. They're a great team and we hope we don't let down," were his words on the subject. "They couldn't do anything right and we couldn't do anything wrong."

THE BEST part of Saturday night's show came at halftime when four members of the Berkeley Frisbee Group gave a demonstration of the art of frisbee tossing. Those little discs were flying all over the Oakland Arena and it was fantastic what those young men could make frisbees do. Behind the back and under the leg throws were sending frisbees all over the place.

One of the spectators at the game was USF guard John Boro, former Redwood cager who was seeing what not to do in basketball. He was doing some work for Sports Comm, a telegraph communications service, and it gave him the chance to see the game. Said Boro shaking his head, "It reminded me of that UCLA game when we got blown out so fast." The game John was talking about was played Jan. 19 in UCLA's Pauly Pavilion, the Bruins bombing the Dons, 92-64. The south rises again!

Warriors Seek To Salvage Pride Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) — Scenting a kill, Los Angeles Lakers coach Bill Sharman doesn't want his team to go "soft" on the Golden State Warriors tonight at 8 o'clock in their fourth playoff game for the National Basketball Association's Western Conference title.

Leading 3-0 in the best-ofseven series, the defending champion Lakers can advance to the NBA finals against either the New York Knicks or Boston Celtics with a victory.

The Knicks go into their fifth game of the playoffs Wednesday at Boston, needing only one more win to clinch the Eastern crown.

Los Angeles humiliated the Warriors by 56 points, 126-70, Saturday night to send a sellout crowd of 13,183 home disappointed and bewildered. But not Warrior guard Jeff Mullins.

"All we can do is attempt to salvage some pride," said Mullins. "You go out there Monday night playing it loose rather than tight because you have nothing to lose.

"Who knows? You might suddenly find that you're still in it."

Sharman kept telling his club to be aware of the old bugaboo overconfidence.

"We caught them on a cold night and these things happen," he said. "But I don't want us to get soft on the job here on Monday night."

Even Warrior center Nate Thurmond was embarrassed.

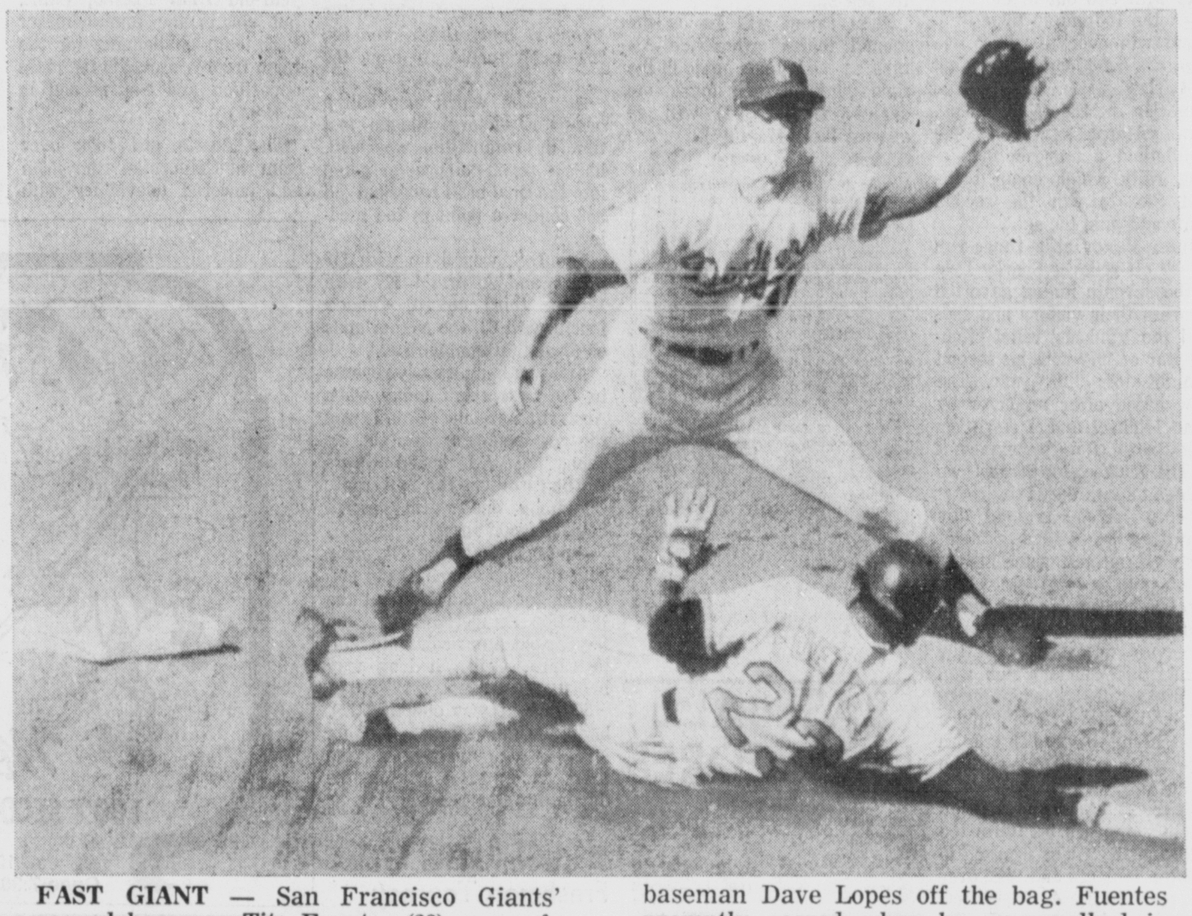
"I've never seen a thing like this happen before," he said. I've seen cold nights but not one where every man had a cold hand."

The 70 points totaled by the Warriors were the lowest in NBA playoff history since the introduction of the 24-second clock in the mid-fifties.

The victory may have been a costly one for the Lakers. Forward Jim McMillian, who topped all scorers with 28 points, strained ligaments in his knee late in the first quarter. And Keith Erickson suffered a twisted ankle when he bumped into teammate Wilt Chamberlain and fell.

Their availability for tonight's game will remain in doubt until game time.

Chamberlain, the Lakers' 7-2 center, has been an important factor in the Lakers success against the Warriors. He has hauled down 80 rebounds in three games, blocked nearly two dozen shots and cut off the middle on the Golden State forwards.



FAST GIANT — San Francisco Giants' second baseman Tito Fuentes (23) was safe at second base yesterday during the sixth inning in Los Angeles as the throw from Dodgers' catcher Joe Ferguson pulled second baseman Dave Lopes off the bag. Fuentes promptly scored when he was walked in from third by Los Angeles pitcher Andy Messersmith. The Giants, the National League Western Division leaders, won, 4-2.

Chicago Hosts Sizzling Giants

Combined AP & UPI

LOS ANGELES — Randy Moffitt, the relief ace of the red-hot San Francisco Giants and the brother of tennis star Billie Jean King, is asked more questions about tennis than about baseball.

"Yes," he said to inquiring newsmen after quelling a potential rally by the Los Angeles Dodgers for the second time in the series Sunday afternoon, "I do play a little tennis."

Moffitt of Mill Valley choked off a rally to preserve a 4-2 victory for Jim Barr as the Giants took three of the four games with their arch-rivals.

Both teams are idle today. The Giants, retaining a one-game lead over Cincinnati in the National League West, continue their trip Tuedsay in Chicago against the cubs.

Garry Maddox slammed a three-run homer, his first of the season, to provide the impetus for Barr's second triumph in three decisions.

Maddox discussed Sunday's game, in which he also had a double and a walk.

"I'm not trying to hit home runs this season," he insisted, "and when I do, it's strictly a mistake. We have Willie McCovey healthy so I've cut down on my swing and I'm just trying to meet the ball."

The Giants, who won a National League West Division flag in 1971 but then slipped to fifth last season, now have won 13 of their first 18 games. Meanwhile, the Dodgers are 7-10.

"Yeah, things have been going our way," Maddox agreed, "But we never beat these guys easy. They're always tough for us."

Joe Ferguson homered for Los Angeles, his fourth. He's now collected 18 hits of which 10 have gone for extra bases.

But it came down to the eighth inning with San Francisco leading 4-1. Dave Lopes and pinch hitter Steve Garvey led off with singles, only the fifth and sixth hits off of Barr.

Manager Charlie Fox immediately went for Moffitt, who three nights ago pitched out of a similar jam with two hitless innings.

Moffitt, 24 got out of trouble with two infield outs and a pop up although one run scored.

"I like the pressure of relieving," said the native of Long Beach, Calif. "I started out as a starter in the minors, went to long relief, then short relief. That's how I got to the majors.

"My best pitches are my fast ball and my sinker."

Dave Kingman started at third base for the Giants in place of Ed Goodson, who sufferred a pulled groin muscle Saturday night. Goodson is hitting .393.

Marin 'Cats' Cronin Hurls A No-Hitter

SOQUEL — Since Tom Cronin's parents came all the way to Santa Cruz County to watch him play baseball, he couldn't very well disappoint them, so he pitched a no-hitter Saturday morning as Marin Catholic High School defeated Marello of Santa Cruz, 3-0.

The victory gave the Wildcats seventh place in the Soquel Boosters baseball tournament.

Cronin, a junior right-hander, struck out 12 and allowed only two baserunners — one on a walk on a 3-and-1 pitch in the second inning, the other on an error in the seventh.

"He was mixing 'em (his pitches) up pretty well, and he was throwing the ball right by people," said 'Cat coach Dave Gonsalves. "They only hit two balls to the outfield off him."

Shortstop Layne Cozza made what Gonsalves called "a super play" in the second inning as he dove to knock down a line drive up the middle, picked the ball up and threw the batter out at first.

It was the first varsity no-hitter for Cronin, who pitched one on the freshman team two years ago. He is 5-2 this year with one save.

Marin Catholic scored in the second inning when Cozza tripled and came home when the relay throw bounced away, and added two more runs in the fourth on an error by Marello's second baseman.

Cronin's parents were part of a contingent of Marin Catholic fans estimated by Gonsalves at "20 or 30."

A's Kubiak Proves Worth In Victory Over Angels

Combined AP & UPI

OAKLAND — Switch hitting Ted Kubiak of the Oakland A's would rather bat left-handed. Sometimes he doesn't get a choice.

He had to bat right-handed Sunday and came through with a 10th inning single that gave the A's a 3-2 victory over the California Angels.

"I have more confidence when I bat left-handed," Kubiak said. He went into the game with a .263 average from the left side and only .143 from the right.

"I was looking for a good pitch to hit, just to get the run home," he said.

Kubiak took a strike then hit relief pitcher Ron Perronoski's next pitch to left field to score Angel Mangual with the winning run.

That ended a strategy battle in which Oakland manager Dick Williams outfoxed Bobby Winkles of the Angels.

"We had the situation we wanted," Winkles said. "We didn't want to change pitchers because Oakland would have used a pinch hitter. We wanted Kubiak to hit right-handed."

Williams stayed with Kubiak as his batter because he knew the Angels would change pitchers if he didn't.

The victory went to Horacio Pina 2-1, who took over for Catfish Hunter in the eighth inning.

Hunter failed to finish for the fourth game in a row, but Williams said it was his best effort of the year.

"He was great," Williams said. "I wanted a lefthander to pitch in the eighth inning and that's why I took him out."

Darold Knowles came in to pitch and gave up a single to pinch hitter Billy Grabarkewitz and that's when Pina came in to pitch. He struck out Frank Robinson to end the inning.

Nolan Ryan went the first 8⅔ innings for the Angels. He struckout nine but allowed 10 hits.

"I didn't have the velocity on my fast ball and didn't know where my curved ball was going," Ryan complained. It was the first time this season he failed to win and complete a game.

"He's a super pitcher," Williams said. "It was a game neither team deserved to lose."

The A's almost won it in the ninth inning but Lee Stanton leaped above the fence in right field to take a grand slam

CHAMPS TOURNEY

Touch Of Fate In Lee-Jack Battle

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino each won six tournaments to qalify for the mony tournament of Champions and it seemed like fate they should end up on the last day in a duel for the $40,000 first prize.

Nicklaus had a two-stroke lead going into the fourth and final round Sunday and Trevino caught and passed him once on the 'back nine but he couldn't make it stick.

Trevino had a string of five birdies on the eighth through the 12th holes with a pair of 25-foot putts, one 15-footer, a 12-footer and a three-footer. But he bogeyed the 13th when he missed a three-footer and Nicklaus got away from him.

Nicklaus put the clincher on with a five-foot putt for a bird on the 15th hole and parred in for a 68. Trevino was one stroke better with a 67 but still one short for 72 holes and settled for second money of $23,404.

Nicklaus had rounds of 70-70-68-68—276, 12 under par for the La Costa Country Club course. Trevino shot 68-71-71-67—277.

Trevino ran his career earnings to $985,138. The first prize would have given him million-

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Orioles' Williams Belts Ball, Gives Team Punch

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Joe Coleman has a 4-0 record for the Detroit Tigers, Orlando Cepeda has hit five homers for the Boston Red Sox and Jim Ray Hart is hitting .667 for the New York Yankees but the most significant statistic in the American League East may be Earl Williams' five homers in six games for the Baltimore Orioles.

Acquired from the Atlanta Braves in a winter trade that wasn't too popular with Baltimore fans, Williams is on a tear of five homers in his last six games and appears to be giving the Orioles the punch which they lacked last season while finishing third in the AL East.

Williams hit a two-run homer off Jim Perry to produce a 2-2 tie between the Orioles and Tigers Sunday and Baltimore went on to win the game, 5-3, with the help of Mike Cuellar's four-hit pitching and a three-base error by left-fielder Willie Horton. Horton's error came in the sixth inning when the Orioles scored three runs to take a lead they never lost.

The Red Sox beat the Cleveland Indians, 5-2, after an 8-7 loss, the Milwaukee Brewers shaded the Yankees, 4-3, the Kansas City Royals downed the Chicago White Sox, 6-1, after losing the opener, 8-4, the Oakland A's nipped the California Angels, 3-2, and the Minnesota Twins scored a 6-4 triumph over the Texas Rangers in other AL games.

In the National League, it was Philadelphia over St. Louis, 4-2 and 2-1, Montreal 2 New York 1 and New York 13 Montreal 3, Chicago 11-3 over Pittsburgh after a 10-4 loss, San Francisco 4 Los Angeles 2, Houston 4 San Diego 3 and Cincinnati 6 Atlanta 3.

"I don't have a homer-hitting formula," said Williams after the game. "If I did I'd sell it. I wasn't worried when I heard the Baltimore park isn't a hitter's park because I know when you hit a ball good it's going to go out no matter where you play. It's true my homers came in streaks and that this is a very fast start for me."

"He's won two games for us with homers," said Manager Earl Weaver, noting that lack of home run power contributed to the four-time AL champions' third-place finish in the AL East last season. "He's hit five of the nine homers we've hit, leads the club in RBIs and hasn't made an error yet."

Horton, who doubled in Al Kaline to give the Tigers a 3-2 lead in the sixth inning, let Don Baylor's single go through him in the bottom of the frame in which the Orioles scored three runs. Cueller, 1-2, yielded four hits, struck out three and walked three.

Ron Lolich's grand slam homer off reliever Sonny Siebert with two out in the ninth lifted the Indians to their first-game win over the Red Sox, who took a 7-4 lead with the aid of Carl Yastrzemski's two-run homer in the top of the inning. Tommy Harper's two-run single highlighted a four-run fifth-inning rally which enabled the Red Sox to win the second game and gain the split.

John Vukovich's three-run homer off reliever Sparky Lyle in the seventh inning gave the Brewers their victory and saddled the Yankees' relief pitching star of 1972 with his second straight loss this year. The blow came after an error by Gene Michael and a single by Ollie Brown. Ray Newman shut out the Yankees for the last two innings to earn the save.

Wilbur Wood raised his record to 3-2 behind a 13-hit White Sox attack which included four hits by John Jeter and a key two-run double by Chuck Brinkman plus a three-run homer by Carlos May as the hard-hitting Chicago club won the first game. Two run-scoring doubles by Steve Hovley and a run-scoring double by John Mayberry gave the Royals the victory in the nightcap.

Steve Braun's bases-filled double snapped a 2-2 tie in the sixth and the Twins went on to beat the Rangers and take over first place in the AL West. Jeff Burroughs homered for the Rangers and Harmon Killebrew connected for the Twins.

aire status on the Pacific Golfers Association tour.

Nicklaus' golf earnings now are $1,849,769. Nicklaus leads in the yearly money race with $146,064 while Trevino remains second with $125,715.

The 21st annual T of C ended up as a two-man show but the 29 other entrants took home a lot of money, too. Jim Colbert, Kansas City, Kan., took third place at 281, five shots back of Nicklaus and four back of Trevino, and won $14,628. He had a final round 69.

Chi Chi Rodriguez, the amiable Puerto Rican, took fourth place with 69—282 and won $9,384.

Five players were tied for fifth and each won $6,921 for 285 totals. They were Lanny Watkins (70), DeWitt Weaver (71), J.C. Snead (73), Jim Jamieson (71) and Bruce Crampton (74).

Defending champion Bobby Mitchell, who beat Nicklaus in a playoff last year, finished in a tie for 16th with 76—292 and won $4,091. Arnold Palmer, who has won this tournament three times, was in contention for two rounds but slipped and finished with 75—293 in a tie for 19th, and won $3,646.

No one in the field of 31 went away empty handed. The last man, Bob Shaw, an Australian, shot 75—302 and won $2,000.

WHA Playoff Losers Outshoot Winners

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The New England Whalers and Houston Aeros took the most shots on goal in Sunday's two World Hockey Association playoff games but the Cleveland Crusaders and Winnipeg Jets came away with the victories.

The Whalers hammered 36 shots at Cleveland goalie Gerry Cheevers but only two of them got past the pudgy netminder while the Crusaders connected on five of their 33 shots to post a 5-2 victory. The win was the first in four games for the Crusaders and moved the semi-final series back to Boston for a fifth game Thursday night.

Houston fired 28 shots at Winnipeg goalie Ernie Wakely but Wakely was more than equal to the task as he blanked the Aeros and helped the Jets, who took 27 shots, score a 2-0 victory and take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series. Game No. 3 will be played Tuesday night in Houston.

Gary Jarrett tallied three of Cleveland's five goals and Ron Buchanan notched the other two to help the Crusaders avoid elimination in four straight games. The Crusaders took a 2-1 lead in the first period on Buchanan's goals, which were sandwiched around Tim Sheehy's fifth goal of the series for the Whalers.

Jarrett's first tally was the only goal of the second period but New England reduced the margin to 3-2 on a score by Larry Pleau at 1:16 of the third period. Jarrett then scored two more goals from near the crease to ice the victory for the Crusaders.

Dunc Rousseau scored on a rebound with less than five minutes left to play in regulation time to snap a scoreless deadlock and Norm Beaudin fired a shot into an open Houston net in the final minute of play to give Winnipeg its victory.

Rousseau's goal was set up when linemate Milt Black dug the puck out of the corner and fed Larry Hornung at the blue line. Houston goalie Don McCloud was down when Rousseau got the rebound, stepped back, and pumped a shot high into the Aeros' net.

The insurance goal came when Chris Bordeleau blocked a shot at the Winnipeg blue line and sent it ahead to Beaudin. The Jets' rightwinger skated into the Aero zone and fired the puck into the net which McCloud had vacated for a sixth attacker.

Suburban Splits 2 With Vallejo Team

The Suburban Auto Pistons of San Rafael scored three runs in the sixth inning Saturday night on consecutive singles by Greg Schaefer, Dennis Staub and Jess Munyon and repelled Wilson-Russell Ford of Vallejo, 5-1, en route to a split of a softball doubleheader at Albert Field.

Wilson-Russell's Rich Balswick hit a three-run homer and pitched a no-hitter for 6⅔ innings until Phil Gambucci's single as the visitors won the second game, 4-0.

Lacrosse Results

The Church of Latter Day Saints (2-2) defeated Novato Parks and Recreation (2-4) Saturday, 8-7, in a Northern California Lacrosse Association junior league game at Novato High.

homer away from Reggie Jackson.

The A's put together the inning rally in the 10th inning on a two-out walk to Mangual, a single by Ray Fosse and Kubiak's single.

Both California runs came on homers. Bobby Valentine hit one in the sixth inning and Tommy McCraw tied the score with another leading off the ninth inning against Pina.

Sal Bando homered for Oakland's first run, his fourth of the season.

John Odom will be on the mound tonight when the A's take on the Angels again in the final game of their four-game series. Odom (0-2) will go against Rudy May (0-1).

Redwood Nine Wins Freshman Tourney

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO — Redwood High School's freshman baseball team Saturday won the championship of the Westborough Easter tournament by defeating Southwood of South San Francisco in the title game, 11-6, as Dave Hoffmire went three for four and drove in four runs.

Redwood placed left fielder Chuck Hall and infielder-pitcher Hank Kasprzak on the all-tournament team. The Giants reached the finals by beating Sacred Heart of San Francisco, 19-1, and Marin Catholic, 5-2.

Weekend Hours Set For Tennis Cards

Sausalito residents unable to obtain tennis court reservation cards during weekdays will be able to do so this Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. at the Department of Public Works office, 530 Nevada Street, city tennis director John Minton announced today.

The office will continue to be open weekdays from 10:30 a.m.-3 p.m. to accept applications, Minton added.

Weekend Swim Fatal For Former 49er

BIG SUR, Claif. (UPI) — Harold Ledyard, 41, quarterback with the San Francisco 49ers in 1953, drowned during the weekend while vacationing here with his wife.

Authorities said Ledyard, now of Winnipeg, Canada, drowned while swimming at Pfeiffer Beach.

Ramsier Wins Twice

ANTIOCH — Gary Ramsier of San Rafael won the second heat and the trophy dash Saturday night in the sportsman division of the program of NASCAR auto racing at Antioch Speedway.

200 MEDLEY VICTORY

Rick Colella Leads U.S. To One-Point Swim Win

LONDON (UPI) — The United States snatched victory by a single point over Australia today with a win by Rick Colella of Seattle, Wash., in the final event of the Coca Cola International swim meet.

Colella, who with his sister Lyn spearheaded the American bid for the team trophy in the 18-nation competition, won the 200 meter medley to edge the U.S. past the Aussies.

Australia, which also had a one-point victory margin last time the competition was held, had a seven-point edge going into the final of 24 races but did not collect a point in the medley.

The U.S. wound up with 118 points and Australia 117 with Britain third on 86, Canada fourth with 63, the Netherlands on 57 and Sweden with 47.

America had an early reverse in the first event today when Australia's Shane Gould won the 800 women's freestyle, an event the U.S. hoped Keena Rothhammer, the Olympic Champion and world record-holder, would win.

Australia's triple Olympic gold medalist Shane Gould collected her third victory at the 18-nation competition with the 16-year-old American from Santa Clara, Calif., a long way back.

The event was one the U.S. badly wanted to win in its struggle with Australia for the team trophy after starting the day with a four-point lead.

Miss Gould, who was second to Miss Rothhammer in the 800m at Munich, clocked nine minutes 1.8 seconds — nearly eight seconds outside the American's Olympic and world record — but won easily.

Heather Greenwood, a 15-year-old from Fresno, Calif., but not in the four-swimmer U.S. team challenging for the team trophy, provided the main opposition and was second in 9:04.9.

'The Aussie girl took over from the Californian after 400m and powered to victory with Miss Rotthammer struggling home in 9:23.4.

The tremendous strength of American sprint swimming was emphasized in the mens 100m freestyle when the top six places all went to U.S. entries. None were in the "official" team.

Ken Knox of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., the American short course champion, clocked 51.7 to win and post the fastest time ever seen in Great Britain. His time made him the third fastest in the world behind the legendary Mark Spitz whose world mark is 51.22.

He had nearly five meters in hand over Stan Carper of Portland, Oregon in his heat with Rick Klatt of Albuquerque, N.M., clocking 53.1 in another heat to steal second place overall. Carper placed third with 53.2.

In the 200m freestyle Heather Greenwood reversed the 800m placings and handed Shane Gould her first defeat of the meeting by winning in 2:06.4.

Miss Gould clocked 2:06.7, more than three seconds outside her world and Olympic gold medal mark, with Keena Rothhammer again below par when finishing fifth in 2:08.8.

Miss Greenwood held a two meter lead at the halfway stage and just held on to a fingertip advantage as the Aussie blonde whittled away the deficit on the last length. Shirley Babashoff of Fountain Valley, Calif., was third in 2:08.0.

San Marin On Redwood Track

San Marin High School will be seeking the inside track to its first Marin County Athletic League track and field championship Friday when it visits Redwood at 3:30 p.m. for a dual meet.

If the Mustangs (5-0) defeat Redwood (4-1), they need only get past Drake the following week for an undefeated season and an undisputed title. Should Redwood win, however, the Giants, Mustangs and possibly Terra Linda will have one defeat and a championship tie will be probable.

In tennis, the MCAL playoffs will be held Saturday beginning at 8 a.m. at College of Marin to determine the league's top doubles team for the North Coast Section tournament May 5.

In swimming, Redwood (10-1) is expected to clinch the undisputed title at Novato tomorrow at 4 p.m. The MCAL championships in diving will be held Thursday and swimming Friday at College of Marin, top finishers advancing up the ladder to subsequent regional meets.

In golf, contenders Redwood (4-0) and Novato (3-1) were to meet today at Peacock Gap, while San Rafael (3-1) and Terra Linda (4-0) will clash tomorrow at Marin Country Club.

The first half of the baseball season will conclude tomorrow with first-place Redwood (6-0) and second-place San Rafael (5-1) meeting Marin Catholic and Terra Linda, respectively.

Exiled Ugandan Wins Car Race

Combined AP & UPI

NAIROBI — Exiled Uganda businessman Shekhar Mehta today won the closest fought east African Safari Auto Rally in recent history after an unprecedented points tie with Harry Kallstrom of Sweden.

Mehta and Kallstrom finished with 406 points apiece. But according to rally rules, Mehta won the individual title because he had fewer penalty points through the first three checkpoints in the event. The organizers said the tie on points was unprecedented.

Shekhar, who reached Nairobi first of the 21 cars that finished, led Kallstrom by one penalty point at the checkered flag but dropped one during scrutineering to finish even with the Swedish rally driver.

IRWINDALE, Calif. — Don Dieckman, a 22-year-old drag racer from Long Beach, Calif., was killed Saturday when his "funny car" hit a guard rail and disintegrated before 15,000 spectators at the Irwindale Raceway.

Track officials said Dieckman was running a poor second to another car in the first race of the night when his vehicle began drifting toward the left guard rail about 500 feet from the starting line. He suffered massive head injuries and was dead on arrival at Santa Teresita Hospital.

Baseball

ATLANTA — Relief specialist Cecil Upshaw wasn't surprised when the Atlanta Braves sent him packing Saturday to the Houston Astros.

"I've had the feeling since spring training that I would be traded. It was just a matter of the right deal coming along," said the 30-year-old Upshaw.

The Braves sent Upshaw to Houston for 27-year-old reserve outfielder Norm Miller and a player to be named later.

Golf

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Hubert Green, who decided to stop letting things get him down, had his decision sorely tested yesterday before winning the $75,000 Tallahassee Open Golf Tournament.

Green went into the final round with a one-stroke lead and, playing steadily, increased it to three strokes over Rookie John Simon. But, on the 17th hole, he took a bogey and Simon birdied, leaving them but a stroke apart again.

Refusing to let things bother him, he played carefully through the remaining two holes. On the 18th, he took his par and then watched Simons' six-foot birdie putt lip the cup and roll away.

Green finished with a one-under-par 71 for an 11-under-par total of 277. Simons' 70 gave him a 278.

Tennis

TOKYO — Toshiro Sakai today upset three-time Wimbledon singles champion John Newcombe 8-6, 6-4, 4-6, 0-6, 6-3 to prevent Australia from making a 5-0 sweep over Japan in the Davis Cup Eastern Zone semifinals.

Malcolm Anderson scored his second victory by defeating Japan's top player Jun Kamiwazumi 4-6, 4-6, 6-4, 8-6 in the second of the anti-climactic reverse singles before a small crowd of 2,000 at the Denen Coliseum Clay Courts.

Australia won the semifinals yesterday when Newcombe and Geoff Masters defeated Sakai and Kamiwazumi in the doubles 6-4, 7-5, 6-4 for an unbeatable 3-0 lead in the best of five competition.

Australia will now meet India in the final round.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Australia's Margaret Court overcame a sluggish start yesterday to defeat Rosemary Casals of Sausalito in three sets and win $6,000 first prize in the Jacksonville Invitational Tennis Tournament.

"I feel I am very fortunate to have won," Mrs. Court said after her 5-7, 6-3, 6-1 victory that boosted her earnings to $83,000 this year.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Chris Evert yesterday overcame a shaky second set to defeat Australian Evonne Goolagong, 6-2, 0-6, 6-4, for the $5,000 first prize in the St. Petersburg Masters Tennis Tournament.

The check boosted earnings for the high school senior from Fort Lauderdale to $41,000 since she turned pro in January.

Horse Racing

NEW YORK — Angle Light, $2.60, Saturday won the $114,000 Wood Memorial by a head over Sham as the highly-regarded Secretariat, an entry with Angle Light, finished a soundly beaten third, four lengths back.

ALBANY, Calif. — Linda's Chief, $2.60, opened a 10-length lead Saturday and hung on to win the $123,500 California Derby at Golden Gate Fields by three-quarters of a length over Easy Ern.

Frazier Steers Knicks To Win

NEW YORK (UPI) — Walt Frazier had a license to drive in the fourth quarter and he steered the New York Knicks to a double overtime victory over the Boston Celtics.

Trailing by 16 points in the fourth session and Frazier having anything but a hot hand, Coach Red Holzman "gave Frazier license to take his man one-on-one" and the strategy started a Knick rally that beat Boston, 117-110, Sunday for a 3-1 lead in their National Basketball Association semifinal playoff series.

"With both Jo Jo White and Frazier having five fouls, it was to our advantage to have Walt play that way," Holzman said. Then, shrugging, he added "if it didn't work, so you lose."

Frazier scored a game-high 37 points, but it was in the fourth period that he turned the contest around as he netted 15 points, including a basket with 17 seconds left that tied the game at 89-all after regulation time.

"When we were down by 16, I was already thinking ahead to Wednesday," said Frazier, "but suddenly everything seemed to jell."

Bill Bradley said of Frazier: "Down the stretch, Clyde was 10 feet off the ground all the way."

Boston played a fantastic defensive game to make up for the absence of injured John Havlicek, out with torn muscles in his right shoulder. The injury may keep Hondo out of Wednesday night's game in Boston, too, and allow New York to clinch the series. If a sixth game is needed, it will be played here Friday night.

Havlicek said the Celtics were up for the game and there was no overconfidence when Boston held the 16-point lead in the fourth quarter.

"We've all seen teams come back from 16 points and win," Havlicek said. "To get that lead requires a great deal of defense. But sometimes the momentum swings the other way and that's what happened in this case.

"Our guys played an incredible game. Everyone tightens his bootstraps in a playoff situation and they were up for this one."

The Knicks, in turn, praised rookie John Gianelli, who filled in brilliantly when Williis Reed picked up his sixth foul. Gianelli scored four key points in the second overtime period and drew Dave Cowens into his sixth personal with 1:45 remaining. White fouled out a minute later and the Boston attack was throughly destroyed. White scored 34 points in the game and Cowens had 33.

"I think Gianelli did it in the end, when he blocked a key shot and then drew the foul on Cowens," Frazier said warmly.

Zwieg Injures Leg, Defaults Net Match

John Zwieg of Greenbrae, who was ahead at the time, was forced to default due to a leg injury Saturday in his first-round match in the 29th Northern California Sectionals tennis tournament in San Francisco's Golden Gate Park.

Zwieg took the first set from former University of California star Paul Wells, 6-3, despite the injury. He lost the second, 5-7, but was winning the third, 5-3 and 40-15, when he fell heavily and could not continue.

Baseball Leagues To Play Tomorrow

Petaluma Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park, St. Vincent of Petaluma and Tomales High Schools will resume league baseball action tomorrow (after a week's holiday respite) in a second-place tie, but not with each other.

Petaluma (3-1) is tied with Ukiah in the North Bay League, one-half game behind Napa's streaking Indians (4-1). Tomorrow the Trojans host the Ukiah Wildcats to complete the first round of league action, and then Friday travel to Napa to face the Vintage Crushers, whom they edged 8-7, in the first round.

Rancho Cotate (3-2) is tied with El Molino in the Sonoma County League, one-game behind co-leaders Piner of Santa Rosa and Healdsburg (4-1). Tomorrow the Cougars complete first round league play at El Molino in Forestville, and then Friday host Piner, which beat them, 1-0, in the first round.

St. Vincent and Tomales (3-1) are tied in the North Central League, one-half game behind the undefeated Kelseyville Indians (3-0). Tomorrow the two schools finish the first round of league competition with St. Vincent venturing to Kelseyville and the Braves hosting Upper Lake. Friday both are on the road with the Mustangs at Upper Lake and Tomales at Point Arena.

2. Each bid to be in accordance with the plans and specifications now on file with Corwin Booth & Associated Architects, 101 Howard Street, San Francisco, California 94105, where same may be examined and copies obtained upon deposit of $25.00 per set, which deposit will be refunded upon the return of such copies in good condition within five days after the bids are opened.

3. Each bid shall be made on a form to be obtained at the office of Corwin Booth & Associated Architects, 101 Howard Street, San Francisco, California 94105, and must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check or a bid bond for ten percent of the amount bid, made payable to the order of the Board of Trustees of the Marin Community College District, and shall be sealed and filed with the Clerk of the Board on or before the 1st day of May, 1973 at 2:00 P.M. and will be opened in public at or about 2:00 P.M. of that day in the Office Center, 180 Office of Planning, located at College of Marin, Kentfield, Marin County, California.

4. The above-mentioned check or bid bond shall be given as a guarantee that the bidder will enter into a contract if awarded the work and will be retained as liquidated damages if the successful bidder refuses to enter into said contract after being requested to do so by the Board of Trustees of the Marin Community College District.

5. The successful bidder will be required to furnish a labor and material bond in an amount equal to 50% of the contract price and a faithful performance bond in an amount equal to 100% of the contract price, said bonds to be secured from a surety company satisfactory to the Board of Trustees of the Marin Community College District.

6. Bidders are hereby notified that, pursuant to Section 1770 of the Labor Code of the State of California, Marin Community College District has ascertained the general prevailing rates of hourly wages and rates for legal holidays and overtime work in the locality where this work is to be performed for each craft or type of mechanic needed to execute the contract which will be awarded to the successful bidder. The prevailing rates so determined by the District Board are on file with the District.

7. The working day shall be eight (8) hours unless otherwise specified above. The per diem rate shall be the hourly rate multiplied by the number of hours in the working day.

8. Overtime, Saturday, Sunday and Holiday work shall be paid for in accordance with the union wage scale in effect for each classification.

9. All bidders must be contractors properly licensed to perform said work.

10. The Board of Trustees of the Marin Community College District reserves the right to reject any and all bids and/or waive any irregularity in any bid received. Unless otherwise required by law, no bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of thirty (30) days after the date set for the opening thereof and the Board will act to accept or reject the successful bid within that period of time.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

CITY OF FAIRFAX, STATE OF CALIFORNIA

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the City of Fairfax will receive sealed bids at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Fairfax, California, on or before 10:00 a.m. on the 4th day of May, 1973 for the furnishing of all labor, materials, and services required for the 1973 STREET RESURFACING PROJECT.

Each bid shall be made in accordance with the plans, specifications, and contract documents prepared therefor, now on file at the office of Ben C. Albritton, City Engineer, 35 Mitchell Blvd., San Rafael, where they may be examined and copies thereof be obtained upon deposit of $10.00 per set, which deposit will not be refunded. Bids shall be submitted upon proposal forms furnished by the City Engineer, and shall be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check, currency or bid bond, equal to ten per cent of the aggregate amount of the bids, which amount shall be given as a guarantee that the bidder will enter into the contract, if awarded him, and will file the contract bonds required within fifteen days after notice that his bid has been accepted.

The City Council reserves the right to reject any and all bids, and to waive any irregularity in any bid received.

Bidders are notified that, pursuant to law, the City Council has ascertained the general prevailing rate of wages and rates in the locality in which the work is to be performed, for each craft or type of workman or mechanic needed to execute the contract, and the prevailing rate so determined is on file at the office of the City Clerk and incorporated by reference herein. It shall be mandatory that all persons employed in the execution of the contract be paid not less than said specific wages and rates, and that existing labor agreements, relative to overtime, holidays, and other special provision, be recognized.

Bids received by the City Clerk will be opened and read publicly at the time, date and place above specified, and will thereafter be tabulated and submitted to the City Council for consideration.

HOUSEBOAT BLAZE — Flames whip across second floor of Sausalito houseboat from which two women leaped into Richardson Bay Saturday to safety. Flames and black smoke could be seen for miles and attracted hundreds of spectators. The fire spread from the second floor into the lower level, burning the boat to the waterline and causing damage to a second houseboat docked nearby.

Two Women Plunge Into Bay To Escape Blaze

Two women jumped into Richardson Bay from the second floor of a houseboat Saturday to escape a fire which burned the houseboat to the waterline at Gate 6, Waldo Point.

Nancy Hill, tenant of the upper floor, and her guest, Susan Hill, made the leap to safety. Susan Hill was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut foot.

Fireman William Lewis of Marin County Fire department, was treated at the same hospital for a cut middle finger on his right hand, received from breaking glass, according to Marin County Fire Department reports.

The fire, which could be seen for miles, attracted a crowd of about 200 spectators, but they did not interfere with the fire departments, county firemen reported.

Damge was estimated at $18,000 to the boat owned by Daniel Lombos of San Francisco and $800 to another nearby houseboat owned by David Wolfe of San Rafael.

Cause of the fire, which engulfed the houseboat, was not known. The boat was completely in flames when firemen arrived after receiving the call at 6:17 p.m., firemen reported. The fire was under control at 7:21 p.m.

The county fire department had three engines and eight men fighting the fire. Tamalpais Valley fire department sent one engine and two men; Sausalito sent two engines and six men and Tiburon fire department sent one engine and two men to fight the fire.

More Gas Seeping Into Town

WILLIAMSBURG, Mich. (UPI) — State and local officials intensified efforts today to guard against a possible explosion of volatile gas seeping from craters that have pockmarked this community.

The local Red Cross chapter planned to set up facilities on the outskirts of town to aid the approximately 50 families routed from their homes after the gas and mud filled geysers began erupting Wednesday night. State authorities completed standby arrangements to insure adequate firefighting manpower and equipment for any possible emergency use.

Meanwhile, Amoco Production Co., a subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana which is being blamed for the craters, said it planned to begin drilling shallow relief holes to ease gas pressure today. State geologists theorize the craters were caused by a natural gas leak during oil drilling in the area.

A similar proposal to drill Saturday was rejected by the Michigan Natural Resources Department because of the high concentration of the potentially volatile gas.

Seven new geysers were discovered during the weekend about three miles west of the community, which was described as "virtually evacuated" by a Grand Traverse County sheriff's deputy Sunday night.

Phones and electrical service were shut off from the area where gas concentration was heaviest and cars were banned from the area.

R.B. Le Fever, Amoco district production superintendent, said although "no gas was evident" at two of the six company wells in the area, his company has learned the location of core holes drilled for geological purposes in the area several years ago.

ALAMEDA (UPI) — Alameda Superior Court Judge Frederick M. Van Sicklen died Sunday. He was 62.

Officer's Atrocity Charge Said Untrue

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lt. Col. Anthony Herbert, who says the Army failed to investigate a series of atrocities reported by him in Vietnam, has been accused by a CBS News producer of making unsubstantiated charges against the military.

Barry Lando, a producer for CBS-TV's "60 Minutes," said Herbert's accusations were not supported either by factual evidence or statements of colleagues who served with him in Vietnam. Lando's claim appeared in the May issue of the Atlantic Monthly, which was released Sunday.

Herbert, the most highly decorated enlisted man in the Korean War, has reiterated his own claims in the book," Soldier." Herbert contends that he witnessed several atrocities on Feb. 14, 1969, and reported them that day to his commanding officer, Col. J. Ross Franklin.

Herbert says when he got no satisfaction from Franklin, he then reported them to Gen. John Barnes, the brigade commander, but that neither man took any action. Herbert also claims he was told to drop the matter, and that when he did not he was forced to retire from the Army.

The Army claims Franklin was on R & R (rest and recreation) in Hawaii on Feb. 14 and did not return to Vietnam until Feb. 16, two days after Herbert says he reported the war crimes.

Lando said in the course of his own investigation Franklin gave CBS a canceled check for a bill at the Illiai Hotel in Honolulu, indicating he was in Hawaii on Feb. 14.

"We went all over the country following (Herbert's) leads, but when it came to critical facts, the people he had told us would support his claims just did not," wrote Lando. "After talking with scores of men who had known Herbert in Vietnam, many of whom still admire him, we could not find a single person who believed that Herbert had been relieved (of command) for trying to get war crimes investigated."

Marin Musical Group To Give College Concert

Banana and the Bunch, a group of West Marin musicians, will appear at 8 p.m. Friday at the College of Marin's Fine Arts Theater.

The group's music has been described by critics as "a good strong sound."

Leader is Lowell (Banana) Levinger, composer, guitarist, pianist, pedal steel, mandolin, banjo, cowbell and glockenspielist. He is a former member of the Youngbloods group, as is bassist Michael Kane.

The other members are singing saxophonist Jack Bonus and David Getz, the drummer for the old Big Brother and the Holding Company.

Inmate Is Stabbed Twice

A San Quentin inmate, serving six concurrent sentences, was stabbed yesterday in the south cell block.

Larry D. Walters, 36, was stabbed once in the abdomen and once in the left chest. He was in good condition today in the prison hospital, according to Lee DeBord, information officer.

Prison officials are questioning one suspect in the stabbing which occurred at 5:35 p.m., DeBord said.

Walters was first sentenced in October, 1967 to six months to five years for conspiracy to commit petty theft in San Diego County. He was sentenced to five additional terms of six months up to 15 years for escaping from Rupert Crittenden Center in Oakland, and forgery, forging public seals, burglary and receiving stolen property in Los Angeles County, DeBord said.

This is the 15th stabbing this year at San Quentin.

ALMANAC

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Monday, April 23, the 113th day of 1973 with 252 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn.

English dramatist and poet William Shakespeare was born April 23, 1564.

On this day in history:

In 1898, the U.S. government asked for 125,000 volunteers to fight against Spain in Cuba.

In 1917, almost every performer stepped forward at a mass rally in New York City when asked to volunteer to entertain the troops overseas in World War I.

In 1941, thousands attending an "America First" rally in New York City heard Charles Lindbergh say: ". . . it is obvious that England is losing the war." The noted aviator opposed American entry into the conflict.

In 1965, more than 200 U.S. planes struck North Vietnam in one of the biggest raids of the war.

A thought for the day: Roman poet Horace said, "The brief span of life forbids us to cherish a long hope."

Pastor Gladly Eats On Roof

KENOVA, W.Va. (UPI) — Rev. Carl H. Hartman ate his dinner on the rooftop of the Poplar Street Church of God Sunday, keeping a vow he made last September.

The 30-year-old minister promised his congregation if Sunday School attendance ever reached 150, he would eat his dinner on the rooftop.

Easter Sunday drew 153 worshippers and Hartman climbed up on the roof and dug into a dinner made up of a hamburger-rice dish, salad, homemade biscuits soaked in butter and a soft drink.

Injured Deer Has To Be Killed

A deer that had been hit by a car on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Greenbrae, had to be shot, on Friday at 8 p.m., reported Larkspur Police department.

The badly injured animal was found lying on the sidewalk 100 yards from the La Cuesta Drive intersection.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Urine Test Tablets Can Cause Severe Stricture Of Esophagus

Clinitest tablets tell the diabetic whether there is sugar in the urine. The tablet is dropped in a given amount of urine, and color changes indicate a positive or negative response. These tablets are widely used, but some people make the mistake of storing them in the medicine cabinet with other drugs. This is dangerous, because the tablets contain 38 per cent sodium hydroxide which, if swallowed, is very caustic to the wall of the esophagus. The result can be likened to ingesting lye.

A case in point was recently reported by Dr. R. J. Payten in the British Medical Journal. An 82-year-old woman with poor vision swallowed a Clinitest tablet beliving it was aspirin. Soon after severe burning pain developed behind the breastbone.

THE DISTRESS subsided, but three weeks later the burned area in the esophagus began to heal. The ensuing scar contracted, leaving a stricture, or narrowing of the gullet. Swallowing solids and liquids became so difficult that X-rays were taken. There was a narrow localized stricture halfway down the esophagus.

According to Dr. Payten, after the narrowed part was stretched several times with a special instrument, improvement occured. He searched the medical literature and found 16 reported instances of accidental Clinitest ingestion.

VERY LITTLE HARM is done if the tablet is taken with water, because the caustic is flushed promptly into the stomach. One man took a tablet with water four times a day without ill effects. But strictures developed in 11 of the 16 reported cases. Five were children, emphasizing again the importance of keeping medicines out of reach of youngsters.

Clinitest, Clinistix, and TesTape are tests for urinary sugar. They are much easier to use than the old Benedict solution that had to be boiled. Actually, Clinitest tablets contain the ingredients formerly in Benedict solution, combined with sodium hydroxide to provide the heating action. The later is so caustic it harms the wall of the esophagus. But after all, it was never intended to be swallowed.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, % the Independent-Journal.

FINGERLIKE TUMORS

A reader writes: What is a papilloma?

REPLY

A tumor that protrudes from the skin or the mucous membranes that line the cavities of the body. Warts, horns, polyps, and fingerlike skin projections are examples.

MOUTH GERMS

H. W. writes: Is it true that the mouth harbors more germs than any other part of the body?

REPLY

Yes, and this is why human bites are so potentially serious.

CHILD'S LEGS ACHE

Mrs. P. T. writes: My 4-year-old girl complains of leg ache for days at a time. Besides romping too much, what would cause this aching? I did not take her temperature at these times.

REPLY

Rheumatic fever, arthritis, and some of the rarer joint disorders are possibilities. This girl should be examined when pain is present, because it might be of nervous or emotional orgin.

CROOKED SHOES

Mrs. M. S. writes: Our 13-month old daughter's shoes are crooked. The tops curve in and are misshapen. Is this serious enough for her to see a doctor?

REPLY

If the toes curl up, the shoes may be too short. See a physician, because it is difficult to picture the shape of the shoe from your description.

Public Notice

ORDINANCE NO. 1093
AN URGENCY ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL AMENDING TITLE 14.62, SECTION 14.62.03, BY ADDING THERETO CERTAIN PROVISIONS REGARDING JOINT OWNERSHIP

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

DIVISION 1. Title 14, Section 14.62.03 of the Municipal Code of the City of San Rafael is hereby amended and shall read as follows:

"14.62.03 WHEN REGULATIONS APPLY. Wherever a parcel, lot or area contains two acres or more of undeveloped land; or wherever five or more adjoining parcels, lots or areas, regardless of acreage are undeveloped, the GPC shall be combined with the existing district or districts on the entirety of said parcels, lots, or areas and shall supersede the respective regulations of the existing district or districts, to the extent set forth in this Chapter and shall apply in lieu of the regulations hereinbefore specified for said districts; provided, however, that the lands listed below are excepted from the provisions of this Ordinance:

1. Where a detailed development plan has been approved by the Planning Commission within the 18 months immediately preceding the enactment of this Ordinance.

2. Wherein a grading, excavating, fill or building permit has already been approved and has not expired.

The zoning map shall be changed to show all districts so established with the designation GPC-, followed by the district designation as it now is (to be read as: GPC-R1, GPC-R2, GPC-C1, etc.) Such notations shall be utilized on all applications pertaining thereto, notices, ordinances, and zoning map.

The provisions of this Section shall apply to any of the aforesaid categories of land as set forth in the first paragraph of this Section, irrespective of whether or not the title to said property is vested in one or more owners."

DIVISION 2. This Ordinance is an ordinance for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety and one of urgency, and shall take effect immediately. The facts constituting the urgency are that the City Council of the City of San Rafael heretofore adopted Ordinance No. 1075 providing for General Plan Conflict Combined District and at the time said ordinance was passed, the City Council of the City of San Rafael intended that there should be no development on certain parcels, lots, acres or land within the City of San Rafael, irrespective of whether said parcels are vested in one or more owners, and whether or not said parcels, lots, or areas were owned by the same or different parties. A question has arisen as to the meaning of Section 14.62.03 and the City Council does now clarify the meaning of that Section. If any other meaning were allowed to prevail, it could in part abrogate the intent and meaning of Ordinance No. 1075 as previously passed, and would be detrimental to the orderly development of the City of San Rafael. Furthermore, the public peace, health, safety and general welfare of the citizens of the City of San Rafael will be jeopardized.

Security Police Unit Named Outstanding

The 4661st Security Police Squadron at Hamilton Air Force Base has been selected as the outstanding security police unit in the aerospace defense command during 1972.

The top rating was awarded after a series of inspections, staff visits, tests and evaluations, the air force reported.

Chief M/Sgt. Andrew Howell, base security police superintendent, was selected as the 1972 outstanding security police senior noncommissioned officer.

S/Sgt. Bobby L. Gulley, administrative security noncommissioned officer-in-charge, was selected as the outstanding noncommissioned officer, grades E-4 through E-6.

Airman 1/C Franklin T. Pearson of the 4661st Security Police Squadron, was selected as the outstanding security police airman for 1972.

Delaying Switch

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Rep. J. J. Pickle, D-Tex., a longtime friend of former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, says the Watergate affair has delayed Connally's decision to switch parties, even if Connally is not willing to admit it publicly.

Mr. J. Oliver Finds Way To Help Shrink Painful Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues

...caused by inflammation and infection.

Junction City, Kansas.—Mr. J. Oliver writes: "I couldn't get relief. Then I bought Preparation H. I surely recommend it. It's worth its weight in gold."

(Note: Doctors' tests have proved Preparation H® actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation. It's so effective that in many cases the first applications give prompt, temporary relief from pain and itching in such tissues. There's no other formula like Preparation H.)

CHANNEL CHUCKLES

"They've really updated this movie. Five minutes after Don Ameche invents the telephone he gets a call from Acme TV surveys, Inc."

Smoking Climbs

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Cigarette consumption is increasing in California, despite the ban on radio and television cigarette commercials, according to Richard Nevins, a member of the state Board of Equalization.

Show For 118 Breeds Of Dogs

Dogs representing 118 breeds will be on display at the Redwood Empire Kennel Club show May 6 at 8 a.m. at the Sonoma-Marin Fairgrounds, Petaluma.

A total of 2,120 dogs have been entered in the show. Club president and show chairman Frances Pricolo of Petaluma said 22 judges have been selected from throughout the United States.

Benched judging will begin at 9 a.m. with best of breed judging scheduled for 3 p.m. Obedience trials will also be held.

Proceeds from entry fees finance a $250 club scholarship for a third year veterinary medicine student at University of California at Davis and a donation to guide dogs for the blind, San Rafael.

Students End A Long Holiday

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Thousands of young sun-worshippers headed for home and back to school today after one of the quietest Easter weeks on Florida beaches in recent years.

Authorities estimted more than 300,000 people jammed "the world's most famous beach" Sunday—most of them vacationing college and high school students enjoying the spring school recess.

Considering the number involved, police said there was very little trouble. The major problems were rough tides and an invasion of stinging Portuguese men-of-war.

Course Set For Parents

Six-week "communications" courses for parents will be given in May by the Family Service Agency of Marin at locations in Novato and San Rafael.

The Novato course will start at 10 a.m. May 2 at the Novato Human Needs Center, 1200 Grant Avenue. In San Rafael, a similar course will start at 7:30 p.m. May 17 at the agency office, 1005 A Street.

The courses teach skills of listening and expressing feelings between parents and children.

Plans Drawn To Save Marsh

By REBECCA LARSEN

Across one wall of the room was a huge sheet of paper with men, women and children writing, pasting and drawing on it.

At one end a woman glued up pictures torn out of a magazine. She labeled photos of a polluted stream and a traffic jam with the words, "Man Did This."

Another woman wrote: "Happiness near the ducks, freedom near the creek's earth channel. . ."

The scene was the College of Marin where 40 Greenbrae, Kentfield and Larkspur residents gathered Saturday to draw and write down the feelings they had had during a visit to what was once an all-salt marsh behind Marin Catholic High School.

Out of those impressions, the group later drew plans which they hope will replace a San Jose developer's proposal for putting up 272 townhouses and a 22-suite medical center on the 27-acre site owned by the San Francisco Catholic Archdiocese.

If the ecology-minded residents have their way the filled land there now, about 24.5 acres, will be partly reconverted to marsh with the rest turned into an "unstructured" park.

The group called the Greenbrae-Kentfield Citizens for a Neighborhood Marshland and Park will present its ideas to the Marin County Planning Commission May 7 when the commission is scheduled to review the massive development from builder Goodwin B. Steinberg. His plans have been before the commission for several months while residents have argued against him.

The land they are concerned about was once entirely a tidal marsh connected to Corte Madera Creek. Then a few years ago, the Army Corps of Engineers began filling and building levees at the site as part of stream channelization on the creek.

Saturday's session, run by landscape architect Lawrence Halprin of Kentfield, started out as a sort of sensitivity training session designed to raise awareness of the environment of the site.

First, the residents went out for three hours onto the land bordered by Corte Madera Creek and the creek bike path on the south. In the afternoon they met at the College of Marin to make plans for the property which they hope to buy by forming a county service area and floating a bond issue.

The group decided that the "unstructured" park just off Bon Air Road would take up one-half to two-thirds of the site and would include trees, grass, benches and a fenced tot lot.

"But let's not use any of our precious land for parking," said Barbara Boxer, one of the organizers of the group and a former unsuccessful candidate for supervisor. "Let the people park at the Safeway or the pizza palace."

The remaining land would be reflooded by dredging channels from the creek and the marsh still on the land, the group decided. Russell Ridge, College of Marin biology teacher, suggested that some of the dredged zones could serve as buffers between people and birds.

"We want to flood it to form a lagoon," said a woman, representing the Marin Canoe Club. "You can always sell a water area to the public."

Other proposals included extending the bike path from the creek to the park, building a canoe dock in the creek and planting a screen of trees and bushes between the site and Bon Air Road.

But several steps remain before these plans can become reality.

First, members of the group must win approval from the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission for a county service area which would coincide roughly with the boundaries of the Kentfield School District.

Then, they have to talk the county planning commission into turning down the developer's master plan.

Failing that, they plan to appeal the planning commission decision to the board of supervisors.

They have to persuade the archdiocese to sell them the property, and they have to sell their neighbors on paying for the project.

They hope to gain voter approval in November for a $500,000 bond issue which would cost the average homeowner $8 to $12 per year.

The group will meet again May 7 at 8 p.m. at the Marin Ecology Center, 1011 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur, to discuss the planning commission decision and plan the next moves.

Low Bidder For Work Announced

Apparent low bidder on a state Division of Highways project for improvements at Shoreline Highway and Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Olema is Grover Wilson of San Rafael.

Contracts will be awarded after verifications of bids are received, according to a department spokesman. Wilson's bid was $21,721. The work will include installation of flashing beacons to warn motorists of the intersection.

A photography exhibit and "gathering" with music will be held at the San Geronimo Valley Art Center from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, according to Andrea B. Lieberman, center director.
